U. OF C. VISIONS COLLEGE WORK MADE INTO FUN

Joy of Study Key to New Program.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Opportunity!

Make learning a pure joy, rather than a compulsion.

That is the basic idea back of the new "five year plan" in education which has just been announced at the University of Chicago.

How it will affect the undergraduate life and the professional schools, particularly medicine, was discussed yesterday by various authorities at the Midway institution.

It is an effort to determine just what a real education is and to justify the time and money spent in college work. It is to present the college years as the greatest fun in the world, the finest stimulation, years of blessed opportunity.

Getting Fun from Study.

The Carnegie Foundation, in announcing recently a gift of $460,000 to augment college libraries, said that in the discussion of whether a college education was worth while, one thing was certain. That is that the students get more out of what they dig up for themselves than they get from the compulsory work and the cramming.

President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the university has sensed this new tendency and has dared to put it into practice, tossing out of the educational windows traditions and customs hundreds of years old. It is not, however, a hasty move, for the senate of the college and several boards have been studying it for three years and it is still in a state of fermentation.

Dean Boucher Explains Idea.

Dr. C. S. Boucher, dean of the new college division, explains it as follows:

"We propose to permit the student to pass from general to specialized education [from junior to senior college] and to graduate with the bachelor's degree, not at all on the basis of college credits, but entirely on the basis of comprehensive examinations.

"We have two primary objectives in mind. First, we desire to protect the superior student against unreasonable lockstep, perfunctory, and time serving requirements, and to make it possible for him to progress as rapidly in his educational development as his capacity will permit.

A Standard of Achievement.

"Secondly, we desire to set up at least a minimum standard of educational achievement, which is not provided in the routine course credit system, to be measured by comprehensive examinations which some inferior students, who now acquire a degree through course credits, cannot pass.

"We desire to give meaning to the bachelor's degree—that the student has passed through a stage of real educational development, and has really achieved intellectually—that he has acquired a respectable amount of general education, and has mastered the factual information, the methods and techniques of at least one large field of thought to the extent that he can marshal the materials and subject matter of the field, organize it, correlate it, interpret it, and use it in an intelligent and purposeful fashion."

New Plan Affects Medical School.

It is right here that the new idea in medical education comes in. It, too, has cast in its lot with the university, and seeks to train minds able to reach out in research, rather than have a technical school for the making of practitioners. The doors of the old rigid course systems have been battered down here as well as in the other sciences.

Freshmen and transfer students will first enter the college division. This raw material will be handled by full professors and the best teaching material. A student may or may not choose to attend lectures. He will have an adviser as to his reading. He will punch no time clock on it, but he may take examinations at any time they are offered. On examinations Dean Boucher says:

"The general education examinations will cover the four major fields—humanities, social science, physical science and biological science. These examinations will be carefully framed with a view to the level of achievement which may legitimately be expected of all students who should be encouraged, or permitted, to progress to advanced study, and at the same time give the superior student opportunity to display his powers."

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Notre Dame's football warriors, undefeated since 1928, remain undefeated. Northwestern's Wildcats, conference co-champions, succumbed at Dyche stadium yesterday before 48,000 spectators after giving the South Benders their hardest game of the year. Margin of victory was 14 to 0. That score does not represent the intensity of the struggle.

It was well into the fourth quarter before the breaks which had favored Northwestern in the first half veered to the Gold and Blue. Then Marchy Schwartz, on the same type of play which Christy Flanagan and other great Notre Dame left half backs have made famous, broke through between his own right tackle and end and ran 27 yards for a touchdown, escaping the side line only by inches in his flight.

Schwartz's Run Decides It.

That run for a touchdown, from which Carideo place kicked the extra point, was the ball game. Notre Dame's touchdown which followed was the aftermath of daring plays which a losing eleven must attempt when the battle is in its final stages.

In the 53 minutes of playing time before Notre Dame's first touchdown spectators filling every niche of the concrete stands and temporary end seats, even perching on housetops of adjacent apartment buildings, had seen one of the sternest struggles in gridiron annals. In the east stands partisans of the old Gold and Blue were massed, confident, but often worried during the second period.

In the west stands Northwestern students and alumni sat with hundreds of Purple balloons, which they had not previously this season lacked opportunity to unleash.

Purple Opportunities Fade.

Four times in that tense second period it seemed Purple hopes might be gratified. As those opportunities faded they sat back in resignation during the second half as Notre Dame occupied the spotlight. Finally the balloons wafted skyward sporadically, not in token of victory, but because they no longer were of value.

Northwestern, underdog in advance expert criticism, played one of its traditional games against Notre Dame. It showed its wares at their highest value, and finally yielded to an eleven better balanced and equally determined. That has happened before in the final stages of former battles.

Notre Dame's regular linemen took a pounding from Reb Russell, Northwestern's battering back, such as they have not taken before this season. But when that battering reached the danger zone it was stopped before the final whitewashed line was passed. Northwestern fumbled twice within Notre Dame's 5 yard line in that second period of the Purple's greatest expectation.

Russell, Bruder Fumble.

Once it was Russell, who had carried for seven times in succession preceding the fumble. Then it was Bruder at the 2 yard line. There was plenty of excuse for those fumbles, for the Irish forwards, in desperation, were charging with a fierceness which bowled the oval from the hands of the ball carriers.

Two breaks gave Northwestern those chances. The first came when Clark intercepted a Notre Dame forward pass early in the second period, transferring the Purple from a defensive to an offensive team. The second came when Carideo, standing back for a punt on his own goal line, elected to fake and started to run, being tackled so fiercely that he fumbled the ball on his own 4 yard

Two Charged with $87,500 Fraud on Bank

William G. Weatherston, cashier of the First National bank of Oak Park at the time Timothy J. Crowe was president, was arrestetd by deputy federal marshals yesterday on a suppressed indictment charging embezzlement of $87,500 from the bank's funds. John J. Woods, candy manufacturer, was arrested at the same time.

The money, it is charged, was loaned by Weatherston to Woods for the purpose of financing his candy business, which had a capitalization of only $1,000, without the knowledge or consent of the bank directors. Woods is charged with aiding and abetting Weatherston to embezzle, each being named in ten counts.

Loss Made Good by Directors.

According to Assistant United States Attorney Owen A. West, who presented the case to the grand jury, the directors of the bank made good the loss, and it is reported that Crowe put up $50,000. Mr. West said the grand jurors were of the opinion that Weatherston must have shared in the embezzled funds and he indicated evidence to this effect would be introduced at the trial.

The alleged peculations occurred from December, 1928, to March, 1929. Woods, it is said, had previously maintained an account at the bank and obtained credit of $5,000 when the directors stopped the credit and marked off the debt as a loss.

Then, it is alleged, Woods gave up his old candy business, the Molly Stark company, and started a new one, the Shirley Marie Candy company, and conspired with Weatherston to abstract funds from the bank. The true bill charges Weatherston made false entries and misapplied deposits. When the alleged peculations were discovered Weatherston is said to have confessed and he was discharged.

Bonds Set at $10,000 Each.

Weatherston's explanation was that he made the loan in the best interests of the bank, Woods having gone so deeply into debt that he felt it necessary to let him have more money and save the candy business. The business is now involved in bankruptcy proceedings.

Woods, who formerly was employed by the Bank of Montreal, which he left because of an overdraft of $10,000, according to Mr. West, lives at 801 South 18th avenue, Maywood. Weatherston lives at 314 South Maple avenue, Oak Park. Bonds for the defendants were fixed at $10,000 each, and they will be arraigned before Federal Judge Woodward on Tuesday.

Mr. West said an unsuccessful effort was made to serve a grand jury summons on Crowe. He is no longer connected with the bank.

WHEN BANNER OF FREEDOM WAVED HE SOLD WHISKY

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 22.—(AP)—The patriotism of Louis Randolph gave Wake county officers cause for marvel. Over his filling station perpetually was displayed the stars and stripes of the American flag.

One peculiarity, however, troubled the men of the law. Sometimes the flag flew brilliantly into the wind; again, and with no apparent reason, it was furled. They investigated.

Today they searched Randolph's establishment, found two half gallon jars and minor receptacles full of whisky and arrested Randolph. When the flag waved, the deputies said, there was whisky for sale; when it was furled there was none.

SEEK NURSE FOR ARCTIC POST TO FIGHT EPIDEMIC

New York, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The mission board of the Episcopal church sent out an appeal in New York for a trained nurse to go to the little island settlement of Fort Yukon, where two epidemics are ravaging the population of 650.

Dr. John W. Wood said the need for a nurse was so urgent the journey would have to be made at top speed and the last 250 miles flown by airplane from Fairbanks.

The nurse who volunteers, he said, must be about 30 years old and contract not to marry for three years.

Miss Ethel Barrymore Is Stricken Ill

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Ethel Barrymore collapsed in her dressing room in the Cass theater today, an hour before she was to appear in the matinée of "Scarlet Sister Mary."

Miss Barrymore had dressed for the matinée in her makeup and costume of the Negro character "Sister Mary" in the play. The theater had been sold out for the afternoon and the audience was already in its seats, waiting for the curtain to rise. But the condition of the star made it necessary to cancel the performance.

Ethel Barrymore Colt, her daughter, was at her side.

Miss Barrymore was in makeup when she collpased. For half an hour she refused to permit the matinée to be canceled.

One Duelist Uses Sword, Other, Iron Bar; Both Hurt

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Two university students tonight fought a duel with strange weapons—one had a sword and the other an iron bar—which sent them both to the hospital with critical injuries. The youths, Cecilio Sanchez Herrera and Valentin Ibarra Olvera, fought on a suburban street as a result of old differences.

Robbers Seize $3,000 as Loop Throngs Pass

In plain view of Saturday night shopping crowds, four men last evening held up the men's clothing store of Joseph Hilton & Son, 209 South State street, in the heart of the loop. They escaped with $3,000.

The robbery was carefully planned. Two hours preceding it, one of the men entered the store, posing as a customer, and bought a $14.95 suit. He paid a $3.50 deposit and said he would return later. He described himself as L. F. Wilson, 3223 West Polk street.

Robber Returns with Pals.

Ten minutes before the closing hour at 9 o'clock, he returned with his three companions. He pretended to look at other clothing until after the store had been emptied of customers. In the meantime, Alexander Hilton, assistant manager, had been collecting the day's receipts from the various departments, on the first floor, the basement and the second floor.

Mr. Hilton was walking into the office in the rear of the store when one of the robbers leveled a gun at him. The other three stood where they could command the State and the Adams streets entrances, covering a dozen clerks, but telling them to keep their hands down.

Seize $3,000 from Hilton.

The $3,000, mostly in currency, was snatched from Mr. Hilton and dropped in overcoat pockets of one of the bandits.

Three of them walked to the Adams street entrance, unlocked the door and left. The fourth, who appeared to be the leader, backed slowly out after them. Mr. Hilton telephoned the Central district police as soon as he had left, but no trace of any of the band was obtainable. It is presumed they had an automobile parked on the south side of Adams street.

GALE HITS PARIS; MANY INJURED; CHIMNEYS FALL

PARIS, Nov. 23.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—A violent windstorm struck Paris just after midnight. Reports from various parts of the city show that numerous persons were injured by falling chimneys and scaffoldings of buildings under construction. The storm struck just as the theaters were closing and the cafés filled quickly with persons hunting refuge.

Reports were received of damage caused in northern France by heavy rains. A farmer's house near Amiens was partly demolished by a landslide, and the lower sections of Lisieux were under water.

Landslide Wrecks Train.

NANTES, France, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A landslide was what caused the wreck of the Paris-St. Nazaire express, in which the engineer was killed and 12 passengers were injured last night. It was believed at first that heavy rains had undermined the tracks, but engineers said today that a hill along the right of way crumbled as the train passed, sweeping the locomotive and two passengers into the River Loire.

POLICE RESCUE KIDNAP VICTIM IN MILE CHASE

Daniel Panalsuk, 35 years old, proprietor of a restaurant at 4643 South Clifton Park avenue, kidnaped last night by four men after he had closed up, was being driven south in Archer avenue when the car was overhauled at Karlov avenue by a Brighton Park flivver squad. In the latter were Sergts. James Walsh and James Triner. They chased the kidnapers' car for a mile, when three of the men jumped out and escaped. The fourth was captured. He said he was James B. Ryan, 21 years old, 6311 Ingleside avenue. Panalsuk told the police they intended to rob him. Their car had been stolen earlier from William Stange, 6136 South Wood street.

Normal Buying Will Pave the Way to Better Times

In times like the present, the impulse to conserve resources against a possible rainy day is strong. "We will buy only the things we can't do without," says the family head in announcing a program of economy. "Then if things get worse we will have some reserves to fall back upon." And back of it all is the thought that a little thrift for a while will do everybody good.

Thrift naturally has the weight of righteousness on its side. From childhood we have been taught that it is the proper thing to do. Often, however, in times like the present the basic idea of thrift is mixed up with a kind of economic asceticism. The hope is that through a process of self-denial and scrimping until it hurts we may be rewarded in some miraculous way.

This is more superstition than it is thrift. To deny yourself a new necktie in the hope that your self denial will help you keep your job is like knocking on wood. Your purchase of the necktie might have pushed a sales total over the top and helped somebody keep his job. The sustained buying power of that somebody may be helping you to keep your job. So it goes. Misers and spendthrifts pursue equally unsound courses. The really sane course is the middle course—normal buying for normal needs on the part of everybody whose incomes will permit it.

JUSTICE SETS HIGH BOND FOR MADDOX AGAIN

Gunman in Court in Shooting Case.

Claude Maddox, leader of the Circus gang division of the Capone army of hoodlums, gunmen, and racketeers, and other public enemies, belongs in jail, in the opinion of Police Magistrate George Fitzgerald Lee of Maywood, and that is where Maddox was last night. For the third time since Maddox was first accused of having shot Police Sergeant James McBride of Bellwood, the principal witness in the murder case against William J. (Three Fingered Jack) White, the Maywood justice of the peace put the gangster in jail under high bond.

When Maddox waived examination before Justice Lee yesterday on the charge of assault with intent to murder Sergt. McBride the magistrate ordered the defendant held to the grand jury in $100,000 bond.

Gangster in Handcuffs.

Judge Joseph B. David of the Criminal court twice before has released Maddox on reduced bonds. Maddox was at liberty yesterday when he walked into the Maywood police court, but he went out in handcuffs, between two policemen.

During one of the bond hearings Judge David had said that the grand jury should investigate the police magistrate under the statute prohibiting oppression. The grand jury called the police magistrate before it, and, although no public announcement was made, it was reported that the jurors were in accord with Justice Lee's idea that Maddox belonged in jail. Judge David the last time had reduced Maddox's bond to $10,000.

"This bond is absolutely out of reason," said Attorney W. W. Smith for Maddox yesterday when the bond given before Judge David was canceled and the amount raised back to $100,000.

Justice Defends High Bond.

"This bond is exorbitant for an ordinary case, it is true, but this case is an exception to the rule," replied Justice Lee. "A crime of this nature was not thought of by the lawmakers when they passed the bond laws."

"McBride only thought I was one of the men who shot him while he was riding on the street car," said Maddox. "I have as much chance standing trial here as I have flying to the moon."

That was the end of Maddox's speech. He was started to the county jail.

Expect to Indict Sammons.

James [Fur] Sammons, who was convicted last week as a vagrant, is expected to be indicted next week for a whisky robbery several years ago from the Morand Bros. warehouse. Judge Fisher was given this information yesterday by the state's attorney's office when he was asked to reduce the $150,000 bond set by Judge Lyle. The judge allowed the matter to be held in abeyance pending the grand jury action. In the meantime several bond forfeitures against Sammons in the Municipal courts were set aside when it was shown that Sammons had appeared in the wrong court due to his many entanglements with the law.

PROBE ILLEGAL WRIT

Judge Harry Fisher of the Criminal court yesterday started an investigation when he discovered that a court clerk had used the authority of Chief Justice John P. McGoorty without the judge's knowledge, to issue a writ of habeas corpus. A general investigation of the manner in which writs are issued for criminals is to be opened tomorrow morning.

The disclosure came about when Judge Fisher was criticized for issuing a writ of habeas corpus for John and William Carr, brothers, eight hours before they were supposed to be in custody of the Chicago police. The writ was returnable for 11 o'clock yesterday morning. The Carr brothers are wanted for alleged participation in the murder of John Guida, who was found dead in a saloon at 836 North Racine avenue last month.

"I read in the papers that I issued a writ of habeas corpus yesterday," said Judge Fisher. "Is anybody in court in the Carr writ case?"

Denies Pair Are Held.

Attorney Julius Resnick and a representative of Acting Police Commissioner Alcock's office stepped forward. The policeman filed a formal return to the writ to the effect that the police did not have the Carr brothers in custody. [Despite the police statement, however, it was reported that the Carrs were taken to the detective bureau at 11:20 o'clock Friday night after having been brought from Milwaukee by Sergts. Robert Massett and Edward Lyman. Furthermore, it was larned that the two were in custody in an outlying police station last night.]

"Who issued this writ?" asked Judge Fisher. "I did not issue it. Let me see the petition for the writ."

The judge looked at the petition and found that it did not bear any judge's signature, although all the papers necessary to such a proceeding had been issued and the police department served with a summons to bring the prisoners to court.

The Writ Is Traced.

Melzar P. Delano, chief clerk, was summoned and he said that David Wolff, clerk in Judge McGoorty's court had the writ on Friday evening. He said that he assumed that Judge McGoorty must have given Wolff authority over the telephone to issue the writ.

"I do not believe that Judge McGoorty transacts the business of his court over the telephone," said Judge Fisher. "Call Judge McGoorty at his home."

Judge McGoorty said that he had never heard of the Carr writ. Judge Fisher ordered the papers impounded for further investigation.

Attorney Resnick explained his connection with the writ. He said that Ray Moore, brother-in-law of the Carrs, asked him to get the writ. He said he telephoned to Attorney John R. Horan at the Criminal court and asked him to get a writ issued. Attorney Horan later informed him, Resnick said, that the writ was issued and gave him the official summons for the police department. He served the summons, he said, thinking it legitimate.

Attorney Horan and Wolff are to appear tomorrow for questioning as to why the writ was issued without authority of a judge.

LYLE SAYS HE HAS TOO MUCH WORK FOR ONE JUDGE

Judge John H. Lyle of the Felony court yesterday said that this branch of the court is burdened with too much business for one judge. The average number of cases passing through the Felony court each day is 80, according to statistics compiled by Judge Lyle.

Chief Justice Elect John Sonsteby and the outgoing chief justice, Harry Olson, have been apprised of the situation. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commission, has conferred with Judge Lyle, and it is reported that he favors dividing the Felony court work with two or three branch courts.

Judges Edgar Jonas and John Sbarbaro, who preceded Judge Lyle in the Felony court, also were required to handle more than 2,000 cases a month and one report showed 3,300 cases in a month. These cases, before the Felony court was started, were split up among the judges at the various branch courts in the police stations.

Youth Trapped Trying $5,000 Extortion Scheme

Davenport, Ia., Nov. 22.—(AP)—John J. Conaty, 20, Jersey City, N. J., confessed to police today that he attempted to extort from Worrall C. Dow, local business man, $5,000 by threatening to kidnap Dow's little daughter and then kill Dow unless he left the money in a church yard.

NEW YORK DOES THINGS BIG EVEN TO ITS RACKETS

Gangsters Take Toll of Hundred Millions.

New York, Nov. 22.—[U. P.]—Virtually every law enforcement agency in the city was pledged today to a campaign against racketeers who take an estimated yearly toll of $100,000,000 here, and who "prey on everything from babies' milk to funeral coaches."

Even private organizations—such as the Pinkerton Detective agency and the William J. Burns International Detective agency—have offered their services free of charge to District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain, who is in charge of the campaign.

Organize Safety Committee.

Organization of the committee of public safety, formed by Crain several weeks ago, proceeded with the appointment of Richard C. Murphy, a former assistant district attorney, as secretary. The committee consists of a group of prominent citizens, including business leaders, churchmen and welfare workers.

In accepting the offer of the Pinkerton and Burns agencies Crain said their men probably would be detailed to work outside the city. Coöperation between the police and the district attorney's office was assured, and it was announced patrolmen would become active in breaking up the racketeering gangs, while Crain's assistants would handle complaints from citizens who have been threatened by gangsters unless they pay tribute. The district attorney already has 750 specific complaints.

Start Defying Racketeers.

Merchants already are beginning to defy the racketeers, Crain said, and cited the instance of one prominent business man who refused to pay tribute. That man said he considered himself "marked" and now carries a pistol as well as having special police protection.

Another letter revealed that the harbor is now one of the most lucrative fields for gangsters. The communication to Crain said every pier and every railroad station on the waterfront, with the exception of the United Fruit lines, was under domination of gangsters. Basing his estimate on information that the gangsters levy tribute of three cents a hundredweight on every cargo of freight shipped into the port, the district attorney estimates that the racketeer ring derives $5,000,000 annually from that source.

Federal Attorney Howard W. Amelli in Brooklyn disclosed today that the grand jury had been investigating rackets since September. Acting Federal Attorney Robert E. Manley of Manhattan assured Crain he would coöperate.

GODDARD TO ASK 2D BULLET TEST IN STANTON CASE

Lieut. Col. Calvin Goddard said last night that he is not satisfied with the manner in which bullets were shot from revolvers in a test which may determine whether Danny Stanton, gangster, will be extradited to Wisconsin for trial as a slayer of Jack Zuta. The test is of Goddard's ability to distinguish bullets fired from six pistols of the same make and type.

"I had asked that a committee of three professors from Northwestern university, the University of Illinois, and the University of Chicago be present when the bullets were fired," Lieut. Col. Goddard said, "but when the committee arrived at the Criminal courts building on Friday the tests already were completed. I don't believe I shall attempt to make the comparisons unless the test is reconducted with the professors present."

Lieut. Col. Goddard made it clear that he believed the firing of the bullets without the professors present was only a mistake on the parts of Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach and the other attorneys in the case. "It was probably a misunderstanding as to the hour when the tests were to be conducted," he said, "but I believe I shall ask that they be made again with scientific representatives present before I undertake to tell which bullets were fired from which guns."

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

KIDNAP AND ROB 2 BANK RUNNERS ON BUSY STREET

At the busy intersection of Kedzie and North avenues three gunmen yesterday kidnaped and robbed two bank messengers of $7,500.

Oscar G. Pitts, 3065 North Gresham avenue, and John S. Fleisher, the messengers, were driving with the money from the Humboldt State bank, 2722 West North avenue, to the Second Humboldt State bank, 3234 West North avenue. As they drew up at Kedzie avenue, less than a block from their destination, two men stepped out of a large car just ahead of them, drew guns, and climbed into the messengers' car.

Pitts was commanded to drive half a mile north, where the gunmen took the money and escaped.

60 MORE ALIENS DEPORTED FROM CHICAGO BY U. S.

Criminals Are Included in Group.

Sixty more aliens were expelled from the Chicago district when a special train left the La Salle street station last evening with a total of 120 foreign undesirables, bound for New York, from where they will be deported.

The activities of the immigration authorities in ridding the Chicago area of foreigners who abuse their privileges here are in keeping with the government's recently announced drive against Chicago crime. Every six weeks a transcontinental train is run from Seattle to New York, and the contingents picked up in Chicago have steadily increased in the last year.

Deport Criminals from Chicago.

Four criminals were included in the Chicago group. They were Hans Bauder, swindler, just released from Joliet prison; Joseph Uzelac, who served a term in the Lake county jail for grand larceny; Emil Wilk, released from Joliet prison after serving a term for burglary; and Maurice Van De Gracht, released from the Indiana state prison after serving a term for robbery.

Five of the Chicago consignment were insane and the others either overstayed temporary permits of entry or were smuggled into the country.

U. S. and State Coöperate.

All branches of the federal government here and the state authorities are coöperating with the immigration authorities in detecting deportable aliens, according to Shirley D. Smith, district immigration director. All alien defendants in federal cases are investigated and immigration inspectors attend arraignments in the state courts. In addition, all state prisoners are investigated before they are released.

The number of deportable foreigners would be greatly increased if offenses against the dry laws were recognized by the courts as morally turpitudinous according to Mr. Smith. Conviction of two such crimes is required if the alien has been here more than five years and one such conviction is required if he has been here less than that time.

Poland, Jugo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania, Italy, and Great Britain were represented in yesterday's deportation. The 60 from Chicago brought the total deported from here since Jan. 1 to 510. A total of 700 were deported during the fiscal year ended June 30, while only 450 were expelled during the previous fiscal year.

U. S. PLANS TO FILE INCOME TAX CHARGES AGAINST AL CAPONE

Word was received yesterday from Washington that the next phase of the government's campaign against Chicago gangsters for evasion of income taxes will be the filing of charges against Al Capone, No. 1 of the public enemies listed by the Chicago Crime commission.

Special agents of the internal revenue bureau, it was learned, have been investigating Capone's affairs for more than two years. Their information is to be turned over to United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson here. The authorities point to the fact that already they have successfully prosecuted Ralph Capone, Al's brother; Jack Guzik, his gambling concessionaire, and Frank Nitti, his collector.

In line with the announcement from Washington was the statement of Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock that ten additional dry agents had been assigned here for special work.

ARGENTINE HEAD URGES NEED FOR CLOSER U. S. TIES

Lauds New Race Growing in Two Americas.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Nov. 22.—Fronting the magnificent Plaza de Mayo, the square celebrating Argentina's independence from Spain, won over 100 years ago, is the Casa Rosada, the rose tinted palace from which Gen. Jose Uriburu, provisional president for the last ten weeks, rules the country. The Casa Rosada is at the end of a tree lined avenue and faces the buildings of the Argentine congress. On the other side of the plaza is the cathedral where rest the bones of San Martin, patron saint of the republic's independence.

The close proximity of these monuments recording events of great moment in Argentina's history is felt to be significant, and there is a well defined feeling throughout the nation that the coup d'état launched by the man who is now directing the affairs of the republic will take its place in history along with those other famous days.

Took Oath Publicly.

In that square, outside the windows of his office, Gen. Uriburu and his cabinet took the oath of service to the republic before the assembled populace, an act which called forth the greatest ovation ever recorded in the country.

Through the courtesy of American Ambassador Robert W. Bliss I had the honor of an audience today with Gen. Uriburu. The president received us behind his desk in his gilded and red damasked office in one wing of the Casa Rosada.

Everywhere are signs that he is a busy man with the burden of his enormous tasks before him. This excellent soldier and much traveled provisional president strikes one by his [illegible] personality and character, and gives an immediate impression of integrity of purpose. He wears a small black mustache and his eyes gleam intelligently behind his eyeglasses.

"It has always been the desire of the Argentine people to promote the most friendly relations with the United States," Gen. Uriburu said, "and the present government aims to do the utmost to further that desire."

He then spoke about the development during the present century of a new type of culture and civilization in the two Americas.

"Americans a New Race."

"I think there is sure to be an evolution of a new race and a new type on this side of the Atlantic," said Gen. Uriburu. "It is arising from the mingling of races and their having to confront new conditions and is producing a new mode of living and thinking of a more vigorous and energetic character."

He stressed the necessity of the people in the United States knowing Argentinians more closely.

"Our people seem to know you, but the contrary is not the case," said the provisional president, but went on to express pleasure at the reception given Dr. Manuel Malbran on his arrival in the United States.

"I shall brush up on my English, for I am more anxious to see North America and your people than any others in the world," he declared.

Visitors were waiting outside as we shook hands with the general. As I thanked him for the interview, he said:

"The press can be of great help in furthering mutual good relations between our countries."

Plumed grenadier guards clicked their heels as we walked from the general's office through the gorgeously appointed hall of Casa Rosada and out into the Plaza de Mayo to mix again with the bustling crowds who gave the man we had just seen their unanimous backing. They have the greatest confidence in the activities of the provisional government which he heads.

PHYSICIANS PLAN A LA FOOTBALL WAR ON DISEASE

Code Numbers Suggested for All Maladies.

New York, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A proposal to adopt in medicine the football signal system which calls plays by code numbers will be considered by national medical authorities here Monday.

The medical numbers will identify the 20,000 distinct diseases and lesions against which American physicians are battling.

The purpose is to identify more effectively for all doctors the large class of diseases which have obscure but important complications likely to be overlooked.

It is like regarding disease and the doctors as two opposing elevens, with the ball in possession of disease. The code gives the defending medical men a means of identifying the oncoming "hidden ball" tactics of the disease attack.

Idea Two Years Old.

It has been drawn up in printed form for consideration of the national conference on nomenclature of disease meeting at the New York Academy of Medicine. This is the first meeting of the kind in this country. The public health relations committee of the academy sponsored the idea two years ago.

The report says the present 20,000 names do not always indicate the nature of diseases specifically enough. The result is that statistics do not always truly represent the experience of physicians and the country's "health bookkeeping" is incomplete.

The numbers purpose to classify disease first according to the part of the body it affects and second by its cause. When the cause is unknown the numbers identify "the tracks which the cause leaves."

Body Would Be Gridiron.

In the football analogy, the gridiron for this game is the human body, and instead of yard lines the physicians are marking it off with a system of latitude and longitude in disease, which is as definite under their practices as the difference between a two yard and a 20 yard gain on the field.

Thus if the code is adopted a physician may report that a patient has 612-14. That means "a protozoan infection of the tongue." When a physician in San Francisco reads that elsewhere doctors are treating 612-14 the westerner knows exactly what is meant; but with present names he might not know.

The committee making Monday's report includes representatives of the American Medical association, American Public Health association, American Statistical association, American Hospital association and various federal medical and statistical services.

Robber with Blank Pistol 'Shoots' Grocer in Aurora

Two robbers believed armed with blank cartridge pistols last night held up August Kunde and his wife in their grocery at 4th avenue and Union street, Aurora, and escaped with between $800 and $900. Kunde, infuriated at his loss, seized a cleaver and hurled it at the men as they left. One bandit turned and fired his pistol point blank at Kunde, but the charge caused only a powder burn on the grocer's apron. Two women and a man customer witnessed the holdup.

Never Ending Search

For better ways to cut food prices

As food merchant to a nation, A&P bears a responsibility greater than that demanded of a mere trader in food. Selling food to great numbers of families involves the well-being of millions of people. Reducing the nation's food bill calls for more than the slashing of grocery prices.

It calls for everlasting watchfulness for better methods of food growing and producing, of shipping, of handling and storing, of marketing and retailing food—command of every invention and every means known to man for assisting the flow of food from its sources to the store counter.

Because A&P assumes the entire task of bringing food from producer to consumer, its responsibility to the public is greater than if it performed but a small part. Its search for better methods must be never-ending. Its way of lowering the cost of food to the consumer must be the best.

A&P makes food prices low by the best methods of Today. A&P will keep food prices low by the best methods of Tomorrow.

ADOPT SUBWAY PLANS WITHOUT O. K. OF EXPERTS

Faherty's Board Ignores Property Owners' Pleas

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The subway plans, without substantial change, were approved unanimously by the board of local improvements yesterday without the recommendation of a majority of the advisory engineers and in the face of the protests of a number of property owners concerned with the improvement.

About 125 property owners attended the recessed hearing of the board on subway plans, but soon sensed that it was futile to argue against the contemplated action of the board, as announced in advance by President Faherty. It soon became apparent the board would vote as Faherty decided. Technically the board adopted a resolution providing for the construction of the State street subway by special assessment of the property benefited thereby.

Council May Not Amend.

That is a preliminary to the adoption of an ordinance, which must be done by the city council. When this ordinance is presented by the board the council is required by law to refer it to the committee on streets for consideration. Neither the council nor the committee can change or amend the ordinance, according to the lawyers; their powers are limited to approval or rejection.

If the aldermen favor the viewpoint of the property owners, who favor the subway but disapprove certain construction features, the councilmen can force Faherty and his board of local improvements to amend their own ordinance. The property owners anticipate that the aldermen will refuse to jam the ordinance through.

One lawyer asserted that if the council balks at the proposed mezzanine floor—on which there are more objections than to any other construction feature—the board of local improvements will be forced to start new proceedings.

Faherty announced yesterday and Friday that the property owners' view on the mezzanine floor is right, and consequently the plans on that feature are wrong. Despite this, however, he forced through the plans. His attempt to justify his course was the statement that in a project of this size it is impossible to follow through the plans.

Main Point of Dispute.

The main point of protest is the thickness of the street roof over the mezzanine floor. The plans call for a thickness of 8 feet 3 inches between cross streets and 9 feet 9 inches at street intersections. The property owners urge a thickness of 7 feet between cross streets and 8 feet at street intersections, which they have been advised by experts can be obtained by the use of silica steel, instead of the steel prescribed in the plans.

In this roof—that is, between the surface of the street and the ceiling of the mezzanine floor—are to be placed the wires, pipes, and conduits of the public utilities. There is as much perpendicular space for utilities in one plan as in the other; but the city claims that the property owners' plan would require more columns, and therefore the lateral space for utilities would be reduced.

To offset this criticism the engineers for the property owners would assign some space below the mezzanine ceiling to the utilities. To this the city engineers object, because they say that these obstructions would seriously interfere with the movement of traffic.

Owners File Protest.

The height of the ceiling of the mezzanine floor controls the height of the mezzanine floor, in which State street building owners are vitally interested; because it will be above, below, or flush with the basement floors. State street owners filed a written protest "against the adoption of any plan . . . which places the mezzanine floor generally at a level lower than 7 feet above city datum and at street intersections at a level lower than 6 feet above city datum."

The west curb on the street is 14 feet above city datum, so that the property owners ask that the ceiling of the mezzanine concourse be placed not lower than seven feet beneath this curb and at the street intersection eight feet. To place the mezzanine ceiling at a lower level, the protestors assert, would [1] unnecessarily increase the space of the public utilities, [2] involve unwarranted expense, and [3] diminish the purposes of the mezzanine floor.

This protest was signed by Marshall Field & Co., the Davis company, the Fair, Carson Pirie Scott & Co., Stevens Bros., the Palmer house, the Boston Store, Mandel Bros., Lytton Building corporation, Balaban & Katz corporation, Baskin Clothing company, Maurice L. Rothschild, S. S. Kresge, and the Northern Trust company representing the Republic building.

Want Change on Station.

There are other complaints. Property owners suggested a station at Superior street, instead of Grand avenue. The board of advisory engineers declined to pass upon it "because of the lack of sufficient time to consider it"—but Faherty's board approved Grand avenue.

Other property owners urged that the west side connection be placed in Polk street instead of Harrison street, because Polk would permit a larger growth of the central business area. That suggestion was turned down without any explanation.

Still other property owners wanted the mezzanine floor extended south of Congress street. Protests were made against other construction features at the south end of the tube. But all were shoved aside.

Faherty explained: "There is no way to satisfy the property owners unless you give them what they want gratis. These plans have been passed upon by Robert Ridgway, who has had more experience in building subways than any other man in the country. I'll take his word."

Indications point to a battle when the subway plans get before the council committee.

BOMB INTENDED FOR ASSOCIATED PRESS DESTROYED IN TIME

Spokane, Wash, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A time dynamite bomb, believed capable of blasting a city block, was delivered to the Associated Press office here today and was taken apart by locksmiths and an Associated Press employé two hours before the time clock was set to go off.

The bomb, placed in a steamer trunk and attached to an electric battery and a time clock, was delivered to the Associated Press this morning by the American Railway Express company.

Cleveland Williams, Associated Press correspondent, checked and ascertained the senders' names were faked and this afternoon took the trunk to a locksmith. The smith opened the trunk and Williams ripped the bomb apart.

Two years ago a dynamite bomb was left in the entrance to the Spokesman-Review building, which houses the Associated Press office. The fuse died out without igniting.

3 GET $4,000 IN HOLDUP OF HILLSIDE BANK

Three bandits raided the Hillside State bank on Butterfield road in the western suburb and escaped after scooping $4,000 from the cashier's cage and vault shortly after the bank opened yesterday. The robbers fled toward Chicago in an automobile bearing a Berwyn license tag.

As the bandits entered two of the trio forced Edward W. Heidorn, cashier; Joseph Marik, assistant cashier, Andrew Yundt, a director, and his 17 year old son from behind the cages and against a wall in the bank lobby.

The third bandit rifled the cashier's cage and the vault. Heidorn made a move for an alarm button, but was promptly halted by one of the robbers. No customers entered the bank during the holdup.

ALCOCK APPEARS BEFORE JURORS AGAIN TUESDAY

A committee of the grand jury is reported to be investigating some of the testimony of Acting Commissioner Alcock before the jurors Friday afternoon. The acting commissioner is to make a second appearance Tuesday afternoon.

Former Judge Bernard Barasa, who is said to have threatened to have Capt. William Shoemaker's vice squad transferred to the "sticks," just prior to the actual transfer, was promised an opportunity to testify tomorrow afternoon. However, it is reported that he may have to wait until later.

Attorney Barasa denied he made the threats which the former vice squad members say he did. Commissioner Alcock denied that Barasa or any one else had requested the transfer.

DOCTOR'S STORY IN DRUGGAN CASE UNDER INQUIRY

Lyle Refers Testimony to Crime Board.

Municipal Judge John H. Lyle has referred the testimony of Dr. Adolph Kraft, physician to Terry Druggan, beer baron and public enemy, to the Chicago crime commission for presentation to the Chicago Medical society. This was disclosed yesterday when Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the commission, made public all correspondence on the judge's action.

Dr. Kraft appeared in court when Druggan was scheduled to answer a vagrancy charge. He testified that Druggan was too ill to come to court although he admitted Druggan had several times left his hotel room for air. Judge Lyle issued a warrant for Druggan's immediate arrest. Several hours later when police raided the hotel suite they found that Druggan had fled.

Judge Lyle's Letter.

"I have been urged to take steps concerning the testimony of Dr. Kraft, but I have hesitated because I do not know whether he was imposed upon or not," the judge wrote Col. Chamberlin. "He should have known all of the circumstances before he testified as he did. I hesitate to impugn the honesty of a physician in good standing in the medical profession.

"However, there are circumstances connected with the case which are disturbing to me and I am wondering if the Chicago crime commission would suggest to me some procedure which would bring to the attention of the medical profession generally the necessity for closer coöperation between the medical and legal professions to the end that physicians will exercise great care to avoid lending themselves to a fraud upon justice."

Tells Doctors' Stand.

Col. Chamberlin forwarded the letter to Dr. James H. Hutton, president of the Chicago Medical society. Dr. Hutton quoted a report of the society's public relations committee of October to Federal Judge Wilkerson.

"If the Chicago Medical society can be helpful in the matter of examining individuals summoned before you I am sure that such assistance will be promptly supplied . . . in the interest of preventing the miscarriage of justice due to careless or superficial examinations of criminals which may lead to the issuance of affidavits of illness which may be unwarranted."

development, the student may make an honorable exit from college at this point and go into business.

The student who goes on to advanced study will have a special examination which will require more advanced knowledge and depth of penetration. One of the difficult tasks the college boards are now working on is the framing of these examinations. Examinations will be in the nature of barriers which must be passed, but they are given by a board, not the individual instructor, who works with the students. The examinations will be published and may take the essay or problem type, or both.

There is to be periodical stock taking. It is anticipated that two years in the college work should be sufficient for the general education It is keyed to take hold of the initial eagerness of youth and lead it into the field of real university work. Dean Boucher looks upon the college division as a "gap bridging period"

"Two Years for Most Students."

"This gap bridging period for most students will be two years," he says. "For others it will be one year or less, for others it may be three years. And for some others it will probably become clear that the gap cannot be bridged successfully — they have reached their limit of achievement because of deficiencies in capacity or in seriousness of purpose, or because of personal problem handicaps."

The great new medical clinics of the university are now consolidated in the university scheme, being rooted in the biological sciences division, of which Dr. Richard E. Scammon is dean. The group clinics are in this division.

The question of speed in turning out doctors' degrees has hardly been considered here, but whatever is gained in the eight years normally required before interneship must be gained in the lower division, for the state law arbitrarily demands 45 months in the medical school.

Views of Medical Deans.

Dr. Scammon looks on medicine as an experimental science, not an empirical art. Both he and Dr. Franklin C. McLean, dean of the clinics, said they did not know what constituted a true medical education, but the new arrangement is highly satisfactory to them, as it makes study and experimentation and research more flexible. Take eighty medical schools with eighty different courses for graduation. Any one of the eighty that may be considered best may be found by the student in the wide area of choice offered here.

"The scientific study of disease, like other scientific disciplines, belongs essentially in a university," said Dr. McLean.

"The close association with other forms of research, the liberal atmosphere necessary for investigation, the freedom from the exactions of routine work, especially heavy in medicine, the necessity for limiting one's self to a relatively small portion of the field of medicine without losing the proper perspective, the physical equipment required, the importance of direct access to clinical material in a hospital or our patient department, the need of young, imaginative students to help in the research, to furnish the proper intellectual stimulus, and eventually to replenish the ranks of the investigators—all of these can scarcely be brought together under one roof elsewhere than in the midst of a sympathetic university.

For Routine Training Elsewhere.

"It seems equally evident that the routine care of patients and the generally accepted standards for the training of medical students who plan to enter private practice can be, and in the majority of instances have been, successfully fulfilled in hospitals and medical schools, which have little or no provision made for the scientific study of disease.

"Since there are already a sufficient number of such schools for the teaching of prospective practitioners of medicine and since there is also no inherent duty on the part of a university to serve the public in practical medical matters when such service is more properly the function of other organizations and of private physicians, it is obvious that the sole legitimate reason for the establishment of a university department of medicine is the scientific study of disease considered as an independent intellectual discipline."

CITY LOPSIDED; MISFIT WARDS CHEAT VOTERS

Aldermen See Immediate Need of Remapping.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Ald. John J. [Bathhouse] Coughlin represents a population of 31,517 in the First ward, while Ald. Frank R. …ings of the 39th speaks for a population of 150,892. These extremes, showing a First ward citizen has almost …e times as much representation in the city council as a resident of the …wing northwest side, hit the aldermen in the eye yesterday as they …ed revised census figures which …ntuated the inequalities between the fifty wards.

Analysis of the figures shows that, due to the "pocket boroughs" and the disparities in wards, the equivalent of almost a million of Chicago's population is squeezed outside the doctrine of equal representation in …al government. It shows how minority rule has grown.

Minority Elects Majority.

In 26 wards a population of 1,267,…1 elects 26 aldermen, or a majority of the council. In the other 24 wards a population of 2,108,153 has 24 aldermen, a minority.

In other words, as the wards now stand, about 37 per cent of the population has 52 per cent of the city council. The other 63 per cent of the population has only 48 per cent of the aldermen.

On the basis of a population of …375,329 in Chicago, if the wards were of equal size they would have 67,506 population each. As they now stand … of the 50 wards are below this figure. Two of them are less than half that size. One ward is more than twice that size. In between they are graded off into all sorts of disparities.

In the famous "bloody 20th" 33,…1 population has one alderman. This ward has about four times as much representation in the council as has the 41st, the home of Ald. Thomas J. Bowler, drainage trustee …, with 126,252 population.

Old Wards Have Advantage.

Out on the fringes, where population has been spreading and increasing, voice in local government has been diminishing, while in the older parts of the river wards, where population has been stationary or has actually slumped off, representation has been growing.

One illustration, taken from the revised ward figures, shows that in the …, 20th, and 27th wards, which are …ped in the loop and across the river on the west side, a population of …,366 has three aldermen. Up on the northwest side, in the 39th, 40th, and 41st wards, where population shifts have been most marked, a population of 383,548 has three aldermen.

Here Are the Figures.

Ward.	Population	Ward.	Population.
1	31,517	34	58,150
[illegible]	33,791	44	59,483
[illegible]	39,584	10	60,075
[illegible]	40,133	23	62,857
[illegible]	43,958	6	63,790
[illegible]	45,520	47	65,058
[illegible]	45,853	48	65,361
[illegible]	45,547	3	68,679
[illegible]	46,042	4	70,249
[illegible]	46,985	29	73,454
[illegible]	47,920	9	73,700
[illegible]	49,236	5	73,886
[illegible]	49,505	12	77,321
[illegible]	49,717	18	84,019
[illegible]	51,558	30	84,593
[illegible]	51,591	8	92,148
[illegible]	51,681	19	95,664
[illegible]	52,043	30	101,278
[illegible]	52,846	37	105,265
[illegible]	53,770	40	106,404
[illegible]	54,613	19	107,518
[illegible]	54,875	7	115,521
[illegible]	55,319	15	124,689
[illegible]	57,421	41	126,252
[illegible]	57,898	39	150,892

One arrangement of these figures shows that in one set of the 25 smallest wards, 1,208,932 people have the same number of aldermen as a population of 2,166,304 in the other 25 wards.

To put it another way, it is the equivalent of blocking 957,000 people in Chicago out of representation in the city council. Or about 28 per cent of the population is robbed of having full voice.

Quick Action Is Urged.

Ald. James B. Bowler [25th] said yesterday he would urge Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], head of the judiciary committee, to appoint the rest of the subcommittee on redistricting, of which Mr. Bowler is head.

"We haven't got the detailed census figures yet," said Ald. Bowler, "but if they get here in the next week or two, I believe we could complete the redistricting job so the election commission could put the changes in effect for the February primary and election."

General sentiment at the city hall was, however, that there will be no redistricting until after the April mayoralty election. The present 50 ward plan was passed by the council in July, 1921.

REFUSED A JOB, NEGRO SLAYS COMPANY HEAD

Claude Moore, 40 years old, 5448 Adams street, president of the Modern Linen Supply company, was shot and fatally wounded yesterday by a Negro to whom he refused employment. Edward Freeman, 30 years old, 5737 Calumet avenue, was arrested shortly afterward as the gunman. Moore died last night at the Michael Reese hospital after identifying Freeman as his assailant.

Moore was alone in his office at 255 West 31st street when Freeman entered, according to Moore's story. Freeman asked for work, and was refused. He reached for a revolver and fired twice at Moore, one bullet taking effect. Moore attempted to return the fire, but his pistol jammed.

Sergt. John Benson of the Stanton avenue police took Moore to the hospital, and returned to the office. There he found a small boy who witnessed the shooting. The boy directed Benson to 31st and Dearborn streets, and pointed out Freeman.

CRANE PREDICTS GREAT FUTURE FOR 'YOUNG CHINA'

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Nov. 22.—"Young China is coming through the present period in its history in a very promising way," Charles R. Crane, former minister to China, declared in an interview today following a month's trip to China.

Mr. Crane believes that "with the fine, resolute body of devoted young Chinese, who know where they are going, in charge, with a menace of further European influence removed, with Japan more sympathetic and Russia demoralized for a century, China's relative position in the world is much more promising than it has been for a long time."

"Peiping, of course, misses its political life," he said, "but the intellectual life there seems almost more vigorous than before. Educational institutions are growing rapidly and are being reinforced not only there but at Tientsin. Young China is promoting mass education—that is, a wide knowledge of the 1,000 characters, and is doing much for the modernization both of rural and urban life. Young China is also doing well in positions of trust in commerce and industry."

WATCHMAN IS FOUND DEAD.

ESTIMATES CITY HAS $60,256,731 FOR 1931 BUDGET

$3,058,832 Less than in 1930, Controller Says.

City Controller Schmidt yesterday sent to the city council his estimates of the amount of money available for expenditure by the city departments out of the general corporate fund during 1931. The figures show that the aldermen will have $3,058,832 less to appropriate for next year than was expended during 1930.

Estimate Higher than in 1930.

In contrast to the estimated resources of $64,957,611 for 1931 is the figure of $39,475,256 which the controller submitted to the council last year as a basis for the 1930 budget. This difference in estimated resources for the two years is partly accounted for, according to the figures, in the fact that a deficit of $13,526,568 was carried into 1930 from 1929 while a surplus of $435,286 will be carried into 1931.

Another factor in the difference is the financial relief legislation obtained by the city this year, which raised the tax rate from $1.075 to $1.37. Bond issues to take care of some of the city's indebtedness were passed at the special session of the legislature.

In submitting the estimates to the council Schmidt reminded the aldermen that the 1931 budget is the first to be passed under the new law that requires the appropriations to be limited to the estimated resources. He also warns the aldermen thta the city will be short of ready money at two periods of next year.

Explains His Prediction.

"The controller desires to advise," he wrote, "that during 1931 there probably will be two periods during which a shortage of actual cash will prevail in the corporate fund: the first period being from the first part of the year until such time as the 1931 tax levy ordinance has become a law, and the second period being some time between September and January.

"The second period will come after we have used all of the city's borrowing power in tax warrants against the 1931 taxes, including the borrowing from the working cash fund, until the 1930 taxes begin coming in in sufficient amount to retire the 1930 tax warrants and to permit the reimbursement to the working cash fund of loans made during this year on account of 1930 taxes."

This year for the first time the controller did not list itemized expenditures for the departments. Instead he assigned only a total for each departmental appropriation.

Spending Not His Job.

"How the money should be spent is the problem of the finance committee and the department heads," said Controller Schmidt. "Because it has been the custom of the controller to itemize is no reason why I should continue to do so."

In the totals the major departments, such as police, fire, health and the bureau of streets are given appropriations only slightly in excess of those for 1930. Large increases are noted only for the election commissioners, who are apportioned $1,800,000 as against $1,143,980 for 1930, and the account for "interest, judgments and reserves" which is given $9,414,380 as against $7,412,800 for last year.

In giving the major departments approximately the same amounts as last year the controller slashed considerably under the amounts estimated by the department heads as required for their needs. The departmental requests totaling $84,210,554 represent an increase of 33 per cent over their appropriations for 1930.

Some Decreases Listed.

Among the decreases suggested in departmental appropriations are the following:

Department—	Appro., 1930.	Estimate, 1931.
Transit committee	$ 208,400	$ 8,400
Misc. government	1,057,075	801,745
License	312,320	35,000
Public service	153,240	125,000
Public benefits	969,995	500,000

With the corporate fund estimates Controller Schmidt also submitted the estimated resources of the water fund and the vehicle tax fund. In the water fund Schmidt estimates there will be $5,988,053 less to spend in 1931 than in 1930, while the vehicle tax fund will have $212,509 more for street repairs.

FIGHT ON PHONE FRANCHISE VETO MAY BE DELAYED

Councilmen Prepare for Session Tomorrow.

Members of the city council who are opposed to the proposed franchise to the Illinois Bell Telephone company were preparing yesterday to defend Mayor Thompson's veto of the ordinance at tomorrow's council session.

The council session of Nov. 5 was recessed without taking any action on the veto because of the absence of Thompson. The recess was taken at the request of Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the council committee on gas, oil, and electric light, in which the franchise was drafted. Yesterday Ald. Arvey said he has not decided whether he will make an attempt to override the veto.

Indications were, however, that because of recent developments the council may let the veto stand and take no further action on the franchise until after the mayoralty election of next April, when it is expected the franchise ordinance will be revived.

Election Threat Recalled.

Arvey will not contest the veto, according to reports in the city hall, because of Thompson's reported statement that he will attempt to defeat in the February election any alderman who takes a stand against the veto. Among the proponents of the franchise are a number of aldermen who have supported Thompson and to relieve them of embarrassment an issue will not be made of the veto, the reports say.

The aldermen in favor of the franchise, however, point to the letter submitted by the telephone company on Friday in which the company agreed to "bear all the reasonable and necessary expense of relocating and adjusting its facilities" when the subway is constructed as eliminating the chief objection of Thompson.

Against this argument other aldermen say that the agreement is restricted to the present proposed subway; that if the city within the term of the proposed franchise constructs other subways the telephone company would not be obligated to pay the relocation costs. In the opinion of these aldermen the city can best secure itself against the burden of relocation costs by restating in the proposed franchise the clause in the expired one which definitely obligates the company to pay.

Besides the telephone franchise the aldermen will have before them tomorrow the investigation of the contracts let on the north approach to the Wabash avenue bridge by Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works. In view of the findings of the committee on efficiency, economy, and rehabilitation, Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th], chairman, is expected to ask the council for authority to proceed with the investigation.

LANDLORDS CUT ITALIAN RENTS IN WAR ON H. C. OF L.

Ten Per Cent Reduction Is Ordered.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Nov. 22.—When the government early this week cut the salaries of its employés and called for a general reduction all around, the people became very pessimistic. That is, the salaried people.

First of all the butchers and grocers said they could not reduce their prices because rents were too high and that the landlords could not reduce them because the cost of living was so high.

But the circle was broken today when Sig. Parisi, head of the Fascist federation of land owners, called upon Giuseppi Bottai, minister of corporations, and announced that the landlords had decided that they could manage an immediate reduction of 10 per cent on rents of all houses, apartments, and shops in Italy.

Call It "Economic Revolution."

The extremist press of the Fascist party is jubilant, calling this an "economic revolution" brought on by the vigor of the government's action of cutting salaries, which was motivated by the budgetary deficit and a feeling that prices were too high all around.

Whatever it is, it seems to be working, and the prices of foodstuffs are already going down. Costs of staples, such as bread, milk, macaroni, cheese, beans, sugar, and meat were reduced today. A first class mortatella, or ham, today sold for 57 cents instead of 62; 2.2 pounds of Parmesan cheese dropped from 73 cents to 57 cents, reductions amounting to around 10 per cent.

The directors of the National Association of Newspapers today also decided to cut the prices of papers, selling at 1 cent, 20 per cent. Hereafter the newspapers will sell for 20 centimes instead of 25 centimes.

General salary reductions in all fields seem imminent now the government has taken the lead. It is pointed out, however, that only countries where government employés are such an important element in the population would such a move prove effective. The national tourist agency is already preparing to capitalize on reductions in the cost of living as a lure to tourists, although the hotel prices have not yet been affected.

Berlin Bread Trust Broken.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—The Berlin bread trust was broken up by the Prussian trade ministry in a campaign to force down the costs of foodstuffs. The trust persisted in maintaining the price of a loaf at eleven cents, although independent bakers were selling it for nine and one-half cents. The ministry retorted with a decree prohibiting the trust to fix the price.

REPORT DEALERS WILL CUT PRICE OF MILK TO CHARITIES

Milk dealers of Chicago have arranged with officials of several charity organizations in the city to provide milk for the needy this winter through recognized charity agencies at a discount from the prevailing market price.

This information was received yesterday. Officers of several large milk companies declined to comment on the report, referring inquiries to the Milk Council of Chicago, an organization of the larger milk companies.

M. O. Maughan, secretary of the milk council, declared the dealers were considering requests for supplies of milk for the needy from several sources, but had made no announcement of their plans. It is understood that a public declaration of such a move by the distributors of milk might bring complications in answering pleas of established customers for unusual extension of credit or free supplies.

The plan of the dealers for coöperating with established agencies is essentially to allow a price reduction of 10 per cent, or 1.4 cents a quart, on all milk purchased in addition to about 450 gallons a day which the distributors of the city are at present donating outright. No reductions will be authorized or considered unless they come from the recognized charitable agencies, it was said.

CALL THOMPSON SCHOOL ACTION A SLIGHT TO NEGRO

Efforts to effect the appointment of a Negro member of the school board were begun yesterday when a committee of five called on Mayor Thompson at the Passavant hospital. Having been told there that "the time has not come" for the fulfillment of his past promises, the committee started the wheels for a protest to the city council tomorrow against the confirmation of expected board appointments.

The committee included Dr. Herbert Turner, president of the Chicago branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Earl B. Dickerson, Edgar G. Brown, W. Ellis Stewart, and Attorney Edith Sampson.

A resolution to be circulated today reads in part:

"Whereas a final appeal was made with the usual excuse from him [Thompson] that this is not the time and the council is about to confirm the final and only remaining appointments of his administration on Monday;

"Therefore be it resolved to put every colored citizen on record as opposed to this slight of 300,000 of our population." The resolution then accused Thompson of attempting to satisfy all elements of the population except the Negro.

The program of protest also includes a massmeeting at Poro college, 4500 South Park way, at 4 o'clock today.

GOODMAN WILL GIVE PLAY TO AID GOOD FELLOWS

All of Theater Staff Will Donate Services.

A letter was received yesterday at the Good Fellow headquarters, in THE TRIBUNE offices at Dearborn and Madison streets, reading as follows:

"In view of the present unemployment situation, the theater committee of the Art Institute of Chicago and the Goodman theater administration hereby pledge the gross receipts of the Goodman theater's presentation of 'Hotel Universe' at a benefit performance Sunday night, Nov. 30, to the Good Fellow fund."

Every One to Help.

The letter was signed by these members of the institute's theater committee: Charles H. Worcester, Percy B. Eckhart, Arthur T. Aldis, Walter B. Smith, and Robert B. Harshe, and by Hubert Osborne and Miss Gertrude Lee, director and business manager of the theater.

Every one connected with the civic theater — members of the cast, stage hands and ushers—is contributing a day's service next Sunday for the fund to help destitute families through the temporary business slack. The total receipts from the ticket sales will go to the fund, and every penny that goes into the fund reaches some deserving family, THE TRIBUNE paying the cost of administering the charity.

"I thought at first," said Miss Lee, the theater manager, "that we would have to deduct our expenses from the proceeds, but the members of the institute's committee, some of the biggest men of Chicago, were so heartily in sympathy with the work of the Good Fellows that they suggested giving the total box office receipts to the fund.

Volunteer Services for Day.

"The members of the cast, the stage workers, office employés, and the ushers, when they heard about plans for a Good Fellow benefit performance, volunteered to donate their services for the day. I'm awfully glad we're going to do this thing right."

"We'll be able to adopt a couple of families for the winter, or at least until they become self-supporting," said Director Osborne. "I hope the Good Fellow department will assign us families with lots of women and children. I know I'm speaking for the cast when I say this will make us a lot happier this winter to know we are helping some of the unfortunate."

Critics Differ Over Play.

"Hotel Universe," written by Philip Barry, is a modernistic drama that has the critics at swords' points over its artistic merits. However, the critics agree on one point—that the play is an interesting innovation in modern drama, popular with the public because of its novelty, if for no other reason. Tickets can be ordered by mail or telephone or by calling at the Goodman theater box office in the Art institue.

Two more of the well known Getz family became Good Fellows yesterday. George F. Getz sent a $100 check on Friday. George F. Getz Jr. and James R. Getz yesterday contributed $50 each.

A matron of Highland Park mailed $5, saying she was following the suggestion to help furnish necessities for hungry and cold families rather than to spend this amount on a Thanksgiving basket of luxuries.

Regulation of Treasury May Bar Soviet Products

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Agitation over Russian trade with American interests has broken out anew with the disclosure that treasury authorities have drafted a proposed new regulation which in effect would exclude soviet products from the United States. In the face of vigorous protest from American importers, the original draft as laid before high treasury officials has been referred back to the customs bureau for such modification as is possible "without impairing the effect sought."

CHILDREN'S JOY OVER SEEING DAD ENDS COURT BAN

Reno, Nev., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—The two children of George M. Evans, wealthy Washington, D. C., realty man, meeting their father in court today for the first time since he arrived here two weeks ago, innocently acted as judges in a case involving themselves.

As Hawley, 8, and Sylvia, 4, entered the court with their mother, Mrs. Anne S. Evans, daughter of the French Countess Festetics de Tolna, they shrieked for joy and then ran, arms outstretched, to their father. Judge Moran at once modified a restraining order which prohibited Evans from seeing his children. Mrs. Evans protested, asserting he might kidnap them, but was overruled. The order was issued Nov. 4, when she said she had to call police to keep Evans out of her apartment.

Rule Quickly on Corsets, Style Change, Judge Says

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Any case involving ownership of corsets should be decided quickly, because the style of women's figures might change and the outmoded corsets couldn't be sold. Thus reasoned Circuit Judge Richard C. Stoll in a written opinion today in the case of C. H. Berryman vs. Selman's department store, interpreting a contract.

Drives Car, So Judge Rules He's Able to Help Father

Grand Haven, Mich., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—A son who can afford an automobile can contribute at least $1.50 to the support of his 72 year old father, Probate Judge James J. Danhof has informed a son of John Vanhoef of Holland, Mich. The son was the only one of four who was unwilling to pay the assessment.

GIFTS OF $37,500 ANNOUNCED BY ROSENWALD FUND

Three appropriations in the field of social science and public administration totaling $37,500 were announced yesterday by the board of trustees of the Julius Rosenwald fund. The gifts were made as a part of the general program to aid social studies and improvement of public administration.

One sum of $15,000 goes to the interstate bureau of legislative reform, which is under the direction of Henry Toll, former member of the Colorado state legislature. This bureau is to serve as a clearing house of legislative information. A similar sum is for the survey graphic, to be used in the educational work and publishing costs of the survey associates, which is organized to disseminate information on social problems. A contribution of $2,500 a year for three years was made by the fund to the New York state department of labor to assist in experiments in public employment agency work.

The gifts were a continuation of appropriations previously given.

HOOT OWL GIVES POLICE PROBLEM IN ORNITHOLOGY

Police of the Grand Crossing station are wondering what to do about a hoot owl which has been peeping through the bedroom of Mrs. Jack Levinson, 8224 Ellis avenue, and making faces at her. She reported the annoying bird to Desk Sergeant Edward Nealon and he promised Mrs. Levinson that if the hoot owl bothered her again he would take stern measures. The sergeant said he hoped, however, that the owl would prove to be a mere casual offender, because there is nothing in the police rule book about owls and he doesn't know what repressive measure he will take if the bird starts making faces again.

VET WANTS JOB TO BUY FOOD FOR THREE CHILDREN

Sally Appeals for Work to Aid Unemployed.

An ex-service man who had put off making an appeal for a job until all his resources were exhausted, because he felt there were others in greater need than he, told his story in a letter to Sally Joy Brown at THE TRIBUNE's bureau for the unemployed.

"I am 34 years old, and have a wife and three children too young to permit my wife to work. I have been out of work since last May," he wrote. "I have been ill, but I am practically well now. My experience in the business world has been in the office and sales end of small manufacturing concerns. Previous to entering military service I was a timekeeper and assistant paymaster in a munition factory employing 2,000. As long as I can get enough to feed my family I don't care how much salary I get."

Widow Writes Appeal for Job.

Another written appeal came from a widow who cannot support her two children after having been out of work several months due to sickness. She asked for a place as a maid in a hotel, but would take anything in order to keep her family together.

A man, above 60 years old, the grandson of one of Chicago's early settlers, sent Sally an appeal for a job so he might support his aunt. He had been a salesman, but was laid off. He has also done clerical work and served as a floorman in a bank.

When asked what were the best jobs the day had to offer yesterday Sally said a country club in a western suburb wanted a married couple to act as caretakers, their expenses being provided for, including food.

Get "Created" Jobs.

"We got some 'created' jobs, too," Sally continued. "We had the second order from a hotel for an upholsterer. A call came in for a man to lay linoleum from a household that had originally planned to do it."

Among other job offers yesterday was one for a practical nurse. Mr. H., in the 900 block, Webster avenue, wanted a cartoonist; the L. S. T. company, on Loomis street, called for a stenographer, saying they needed some special work done; Mrs. L wanted a man to sell poultry.

If you can think up a job tell it to Sally by telephoning Superior 0100. As soon as Sally receives the job offers they are sent to the Illinois free employment bureau at 116 North Dearborn street.

FREE WOODPILE TO KEEP IDLE WARM IN N. Y.

New York, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A free woodpile to keep the home fires burning for the city's unemployed will be established Monday in a vacant lot. Alfred E. Smith announced today the pile would be replenished every day with six truck loads of wood from construction work on the 86 story Empire State building.

The city opened an abandoned ferry pier today as a cafeteria and barracks for the jobless to augment the facilities of the municipal lodging house.

Welfare Commissioner Taylor said the temparory refuge would hold 3,000 lodgers and feed 15,000 diners daily, taking many men out of the breadlines of charitable institutions, which he said had been feeding 19,000 persons a day.

The emergency employment committee, seeking $6,000,000 to provide jobs for unemployed heads of families in New York City, announced today its subscriptions had passed the two million dollar mark. A $50,000 gift by the United States Steel corporation was the largest announced today.

Auto Crashes Into Crowd; 27 Pedestrians Injured

STUTTGART, Germany, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A motor car in Ostheim drove into a crowd of pedestrians tonight and injured 27 persons. Seventeen were taken to a hospital in a serious condition.

MANY WIVES CAN'T FEED FAMILY WELL ON LOWER BUDGET

New York, Nov. 22.—(AP)—More than one family is going hungry these days because the wife does not know how to plan nourishing meals on a suddenly greatly reduced budget, Miss Marian S. Van Liew, director of home economics at the home making center of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs, said today.

"Women who are not familiar with food values are practising a deadly sort of economy by cutting down on the food they feed their families," she added.

Miss Van Liew has planned a series of menus covering one week, whereby she said a family of four, including two children, may be fed well for about $13. A sample day follows:

Breakfast—Oranges, cracked wheat with milk and sugar, toast and butter, coffee, and cocoa for the children.

Dinner—Corned beef with potatoes, carrots and cabbage, bread and butter, Indian pudding with lemon sauce, coffee, milk for the children.

FIRE LAID TO ROBBERS.

Petersburg, Ind., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Officers here believe that robbers fired and looted the filling station and grocery store of Clarence Bradfield, three miles east of here on state highway No. 57, early this morning.

ONLY A HUNGER NEEDED TO ENTER THIS BREAD LINE

Church Asks Seekers of Aid No Questions.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The bread line—with its 2,000 members daily—conducted by the Rev. Dr. Johnston Myers at Immanuel Baptist church, 2320 South Michigan avenue, was not set up to meet a transitory hard times period. It is only longer at such times. This bread line is permanent, and in a sense is more necessary in prosperous times, when relief needs are not advertised.

So declared Dr. Myers yesterday as he revealed bits of history which reach back more than a generation and related how countless thousands of hungry were fed, perhaps for the first times in several days, at old Immanuel.

"We are no theorists down here at Immanuel," said Dr. Myers. "In just a plain way we meet plain hunger and know that so far as the hungry man, woman, or child is concerned, there is but one immediate answer. That is plain substantial food. There is only one requirement here. It is hunger. Not long ago a policeman brought a hungry dog in here. We fed him."

His a Simple Program.

Dr. Myers admitted his method does not measure to standards set by great charitable agencies. He urged, however, that those agencies be supported now as never before. But he defended his own program as following the simple mandates and example of Christ.

"Countless times it happens that people get into temporary tight fixes when a meal or two will see them through," said Dr. Myers. "Under such circumstances, people do not wish to register and be investigated by organizations. Would you apply—and be registered—under such circumstances?

"There are many people like you who would be crushed by charity investigation. But if they could slip into the anonymity of a bread line in some temporary crisis in their lives, their self-respect would be preserved.

Former Guests Now Backers.

"Do you realize that feeding good food to 2,000 people daily costs money? Still more important, do people know that one-half the cost of the Immanuel bread line is paid by former members of it?

"We have fed one of the best known publishers in America. One of the largest automobile manufacturers in the country was a member of our bread line. Another guest was one of America's celebrated actors. Pick almost any one in that crowd and you will get a story.

"On the other hand we have our regular boarders. Some have come winter after winter for years."

Dr. Myers told of a visit of a Chicago meat packer and dramatized an incident in connection with that visit. Dr. Myers called to Bill, one of his regular boarders, to talk to the packer. Bill shuffled over.

"How long have you been coming here, Bill?" asked Dr. Myers.

"About 20 years, I guess."

"Like it?"

"Sure do, doctor, you sure treat me good."

Bill walked away. Dr. Myers turned to the packer. "Would you hire that man in your plant for any sort of work?" he asked, and the packer shook his head.

"Bill is a type," Dr. Myers explained. "We have many of them. 'No account,' people say, but they are men and they have stomachs. In the summer they can pick up trivial jobs and earn bits here and yon, but they cannot accumulate enough to see them through the winter. Without the bread line they must starve or be cared for at public expense. I believe this the better way until age makes them public wards."

Dr. Myers announced that Immanuel church has opened a branch at 921 North Wells street, where 800 people were fed yesterday. He said the number will soon go beyond the thousand mark at that place. Immanuel church is the largest single buyer of bread at the largest bakery in Chicago, and one of the largest buyers of meat in the city, he said.

YANK'S DEAL FOR FAMOUS DUTCH PAINTING IS OFF

New York, Nov. 22.—[Special.]—To the great relief of German art circles, Vermeer's famous painting, "The Coquette," also known as the "Young Lady with a Wine Glass," will not leave the Brunswick gallery, in Brunswick, Germany, to become the property of an American art collector.

The deal for the Dutch masterpiece, which last September was all but completed by Sir Joseph Duveen, is now definitely off, it was learned today. Public opposition to the transaction, which threatened to deprive Brunswick of one of its greatest art treasures, was the cause of the canceled agreement.

They're Here! For Your Thanksgiving Dinner!
From the Cold Northwest! Freshly Dressed, Dry Picked

White Bear Farm TURKEYS
Weighing up to 15 lbs. Lb. 43c

Now! Let's Talk Turkey!

We feel it our duty to tell you of the Turkey situation, forewarn, forearm you, so your Thanksgiving Dinner, the year's most important feast, will be the success you have a right to expect it to be.

Market Overrun with Low-Grade Turkeys

The warm weather of the past few weeks has glutted the market with low grade turkeys. You can buy them at most any price you want to pay—but—would you want to serve them to an eager, expectant family or honored guests? Aren't you willing to pay a few cents more on the pound to buy a turkey that is everything a fine bird should be? We did. We were glad to get the kind of turkeys Stop & Shop customers demand. But, even then, 43c is the lowest price in 20 years for turkeys of this quality.

How to Know Good Turkey

Stop at our window. What a story it tells! On the one hand a thin, emaciated, grey-looking bird—the kind that's flooding the market—a southern bird that has roamed the outdoors during these unseasonably warm winter days, chasing bugs and developing long, stringy muscles . . . fibrous . . . tooth-resisting.
On the other hand, note our WHITE BEAR FARM TURKEY. Plump, full-breasted, pink-white. Examine these birds closely—or a glance will tell you. There is as much difference between the scrawny southern bird and our fine WHITE BEAR FARM TURKEY as there is between lanky, hard-muscled cattle that run the range and heavy stall-fed steers that yield beef so tender you can almost sever it with a fork.

What "White Bear Farm" Turkeys Are

It's a well known fact that Northwest Turkeys are the finest, and White Bear Farm Turkeys are the pick of northwestern flocks. Tender, flavory, young hens and toms. With the first nip of early autumn frost they run to the barn to keep warm. There they gorge their crops with fattening grain, drowsing, first on one leg, then on the other; taking on plumpness that means full-meated, juicy breasts . . . short, stocky drumsticks that brown to a tender, succulent goodness. Isn't it worth while to pay a few cents more a pound to bring this delicious, flavorsome goodness to your table?

Look for the White Bear Farm Label

Every bird is selected by our turkey experts—tagged with our WHITE BEAR FARM LABEL . . . your assurance of a tender, meaty bird that will make your Thanksgiving Dinner a feast long to be remembered.

BLAMES COUNTY FOR $12,000,000 ROAD WORK DELAY

Urges Right of Way Action to Speed Construction.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, took the Cook county board to task yesterday for not obtaining necessary rights of way which would permit the state to proceed with $12,000,000 worth of road improvements as a boon to unemployment.

Mr. Hayes' attitude was expressed in a telegram received in Chicago from Palm Beach, where the veteran auto club man is improving in health. The wire read:

"Nineteen million dollars was set aside by the state for road widening and the building of highway and railroad crossing separations within the immediate metropolitan area of Chicago and of this sum only $7,000,000 is under contract. Under existing conditions, it seems inconceivable that the board of county commissioners have failed to secure necessary rights of way to permit the state to complete this greatly needed improvement and provide employment now for men who are idle. Twelve million dollars spent now will buy more material and man power than it will a year from now.

Money May Be Refunded.

"Unless the board acts promptly we may lose this $12,000,000 through the necessity of the state returning the unexpended portion to the road fund with the result that we will be compelled to secure a reappropriation of money to complete the job, every bit of which should be under contract now."

Cook county's benevolences in 1930 will double the 1929 figure, both in the amount of money expended and the number of families aided, Joseph L. Moss, director of the county's bureau of public welfare, reported to Gov. Emmerson's unemployment commission.

Estimating their demands for the remainder of November on the basis of the first twenty days of the month, the bureau will have aided 18,000 families by Dec. 1, at a cost of $600,000. During 1929 10,000 families were given help at a cost of $333,434, Mr. Moss said.

Start Food Drive Today.

The church committee of the governor's commission will start its food drive this morning with pleas for canned goods and other edibles being made from the Protestant pulpits and in Jewish synagogues.

The ministers and the rabbis will ask that Thursday be made a real Thanksgiving for the jobless and their families and a like appeal will come from Catholic altars Thanksgiving morning at the special masses.

Working under the chairmanship of George W. Dixon, the church committee is asking that food be brought to the churches and there distributed to the needy in the districts.

Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the $5,000,000 relief drive sponsored by the governor's commission, proposed a slogan of "Blot Out the Blues" as a watchword for the drive yesterday and made the plea "finish our job and then blot out the gloom." Mr. Clarke announced that $149,877 had been contributed to the fund since the drive began Tuesday. He anticipates large corporation and industrial employés' subscriptions within the next few days.

W. G. Grunow, president of the Grigsby-Grunow company and Majestic Household Utilities corporation, in addition to being a TRIBUNE Good Fellow, announced yesterday that his executives, department heads and others will distribute baskets of food to 250 families of former employés each week.

NEW PERUVIAN CABINET SWORN IN BY REBEL LEADER

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A new cabinet, succeeding the one which resigned last night, was sworn in this evening by Provisional President Luis M. Sanchez Cherro. Col. Ernesto Montagne, foreign affairs, Maj. Alejandro Barco, war, and Commander Carlos Rotalde, navy, are the only members of the previous cabinet, which took office in August following upon a revolution headed by Lieut. Col. Cerro, to retain their portfolios.

The new ministry includes two civilians, the finance and justice ministers. Dr. Manuel Augusto Olaechea is a widely known financier and president of the board of directors of the Reserve bank, while Dr. Jose Luis Bustamente Rivero is a noted Arequipa lawyer and worked with Lieut. Col. Cerro to overthrow the Leguia administration.

Col. Antonio Beingolea, new minister of the interior, has a brilliant record in the army and was exiled several times during the Leguia regime. Col. Manuel Rodriguez, public works, is considered a brilliant young engineer.

George A. Ross, 50 years old, was fined $200 yesterday by Judge George A. Curran on disorderly conduct charges filed by Mrs. Lottie Brenner, divorced wife of "Count" Von Buelow. Mrs. Brenner testified that Ross sent her numerous love letters of a threatening nature. Ross asserted he merely wanted to sell her a pool table.

AUSTRALIA MAY TAX INCOMES TO AID UNEMPLOYED

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A system of compulsory contributions by wage earners to aid the unemployed of New South Wales is planned by Premier Lang. The donations would bear interest at 5 per cent and would be payable in three or five years. The plan is to be submitted to the Labor caucus on Monday, it is undestood. It would tax incomes exceeding $2,500 about 10 per cent, and would yield about $60,000,000.

HOOVER BUILDING PLAN TO AID IDLE IS NEARLY READY

Program to President Early Next Week.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—The administration's legislative program for stimulating public building and public works construction in the interest of the unemployed will be completed and finally placed in the hands of President Hoover early this coming week, it became known tonight. Virtually all the suggestions for new construction have been filed with the Hoover cabinet committee and the President's emergency committee of unemployment and are now in process of being incorporated into a definite comprehensive program.

Although no definite figures are obtainable, it was said tonight that President Hoover will ask the new congress to approve supplementary construction appropriations in the first deficiency bill running in the neighborhood of 150 million dollars. This would be in addition to the regular funds asked for public works construction during the next fiscal year. Funds obtained in the deficiency bill would be expended largely during the final months of the present fiscal year ending next June 30.

Calls for 100 Million.

Legislation authorizing at least another 100 million dollars worth of new construction projects in addition to public roads and naval construction are now, tentatively at least, in the Hoover emergency relief program. Should this legislation pass early enough in the session funds for financing the new construction projects would be included in the second and final deficiency bill which normally is approved just before the short session adjourns.

Reports that President Hoover may ask congress to approve a blanket emergency relief appropriation running into the hundreds of millions of dollars for expenditure, as the President considered desirable in meeting the unemployment situation, have been frowned on in official circles, but it is considered still possible the President may ask for a limited sum which he could expend in an emergency without calling a special session of congress.

Want Red Tape Omitted.

In addition to asking for additional funds, it was learned today that the administration is planning to ask congress to cut red tape and permit the government to put up a bond and take over property needed for government building sites prior to the completion of condemnation proceedings.

It was reported today that the preliminary work on the new Chicago postoffice has reached the stage where bids for construction of the building may be asked early in the new year. A suggestion that bids for the foundation work be asked for within the next month has been turned down, it was reported today, because the Chicago architects believe they will have the working drawings completed so bids for construction of the entire building can be asked by the time the railroads complete alterations.

Hoover's Plans Delayed.

The President's plans for expediting public buildings construction has been handicapped by the fact that so much time is taken up by the treasury in getting projects ready for the builders.

The board of directors of the American Institute of Architects today made a statement asserting that unemployment relief is being hindered throughout the country by lack of completed plans for public buildings.

BIG SHAKEUP IN RUSSIA; DICTATOR SQUELCHES FOES

Stalin Grabs High Posts for His Followers.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Nov. 22.—While other European capitals heard reports and denials of serious unrest in Russia, political observers at the seat of the soviet government today regarded recent changes and transfers in government posts as evidence that the communist party, headed by Josef Stalin, intends to strengthen its finances all along the line to complete the five year plan for the industrialization of Russia.

The central committee, realizing that the reconstruction plan could be retarded or blocked by even the slightest opposition, some time ago started a move to eliminate both the "right" and "left" blocs in the party and to install in the most important posts only men known to be of unswerving loyalty to party policies.

Stalin Bloc Victorious.

Some former members of the "left" opposition, headed by the exiled Leon Trotsky, joined with the "rights" against the party program, but so far Stalin and his "center" bloc have been victorious in all sectors.

Most of the dissidents, under strong pressure, appeared before the last all-union party congress, confessed their political sins, and either received absolution or were ousted.

Only Bukharin, who did not believe in the plan for intensive industrialization, hung back. There were reports that he would be expelled from the party and shorn of his few remaining posts, but recently he, too, admitted his error and promised to throw his complete support to the party program.

Premier Is Removed.

The central committee appeared to be satisfied with his statement and it is now expected that Bukharin, who is known as one of the most intelligent men in the soviet union, may have some of his power restored.

One of the most important demotions was that of Sergei Sirtsov, who was removed as premier of the Russian Socialist Federated soviet republic on charges that he was an unrepentant member of the "left" bloc. He was succeeded by Daniel Sulimov.

He was by no means the only head to fall under the ax. Liminadze, an important member of the Georgian communist party, was ousted, together with Shatskin and Stem, somewhat lesser lights but still important figures.

Split Up Trade Organization.

The former Premier Rykov, who was one of the "right leaders" and who now is on "vacation," has repented, but it is believed that he may have a hard time holding on his job.

It may be that the pruning process is not yet over, but it is generally believed that all the principal leaders now are united in support of the program by which Stalin hopes to make soviet Russia one of the world's greatest industrial nations.

The government today established two independent commissariats in place of the existing organization which previously handled both domestic and foreign trade. One will be a commissariat of internal supply and distribution headed by Anastas Mikoyan, the second a commissariat for foreign trade in charge of Archibald Rosengolz.

Meanwhile, government officials have characterized as "utterly ridiculous" reports abroad of serious internal troubles in Russia. They denied categorically reports that communication between Moscow and Berlin had been cut off, and they scouted several reports that Stalin had been assassinated.

Not only had there been no attempt on Stalin's life, they said, but there have been no mutinies, outbreaks or uprisings.

Communication Cut Off.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Nov. 22.—All efforts to penetrate the Russian frontier by telegraph have been futile during the last 24 hours. The soviet legation here is unable to explain the sudden censorship. All central Europe is eyeing the border in face of persistent rumors that all is not going well in the soviet capital.

Berlin Also Cut Off.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 22. — The German government received a wireless message from its Moscow embassy this morning containing only routine information and no mention of disturbance in Russia. The foreign office then tried but was unable to reach the embassy by telephone. Only wireless messages are coming in from Russia.

Telegrams from Kovno, Lithuania, report that 91 persons have been arrested at Kharkov, including several high officials of the Ukrainian government.

IOWA COMPLETES 1,040 MILES OF ROAD; CELEBRATE

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 22.—(AP)—The history of transportation in Iowa rolled along Des Moines streets in pageant today as thousands of the state's good roads enthusiasts celebrated the completion of 1,040 miles of paving this year.

For a mile and a half the parade of vehicles dating from the time of the Indian sledge down to the finest of the 1930 automobiles extended.

The parade opened a monstrous celebration for citizens, who invaded Des Moines to participate in a program which will have its climax in a banquet of leaders in the movement to "lift Iowa out of the mud."

JUGO-SLAVIA SETS UP BACHELOR TAX, MEN AND WOMEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Nov. 22.—Jugo-Slavia has adopted the so-called bachelor tax—which is already in force in Italy, Germany and several other countries. Jugo-Slavia, however, follows a more radical method towards forcing the people to get married—because all single persons, male and female, are to pay a special tax. On the other hand, families with nine or more children are exempt from all taxation.

Bandit Suspect Is Seized After Gun Battle; 3 Shot

SIX HOUR DAY IS INDORSED BY RAIL UNION DELEGATES

Fail to Agree on Program to Aid Unemployed.

The six hour day for railroad workers, as a means of alleviating unemployment among them, was indorsed yesterday by 700 delegates, representing the five principal trainmen's unions in the United States and Canada. The unions last night completed a two weeks' session, during which they have considered several programs aiming at legislation to relieve unemployment.

No comprehensive program resulted from the sessions, although the delegates were generally in favor of the six hour day and gave little consideration to the proposal for a 26 day month. Almost unanimously in favor of the shorter day, with no reduction in pay from the present eight hour wage, as a means of reëmploying the 75,000 rail men laid off during the present economic depression, the delegates failed to agree on a plan to bring this about.

One result of the present conference was the realization of the impossibility of transacting business with such a large group, according to the conferees. It was also seen that the depression involves more than the workers.

To Hold Second Conference.

As a result a second conference has been called, to be held in Cleveland on Dec. 4. Seven representatives from each union will meet at that time with heads of the union to further consider the problem. It is hoped that a third conference will follow.

The Cleveland conference will evolve a program, considering both the shorter day and the shorter month proposals, and fix a time for a third meeting. At this meeting railroad operators, private security holders, bus and truck operators, steamship operators and federal officials will meet with the union men.

"Unified Action Necessary."

A. F. Whitney, head of the trainmen, said last night: "We realize that unemployment is a bigger thing than one industry. Only by unified action can we hope to find a solution. The railroads themselves are hard hit financially, and the men realize that anything that aids them most aid the roads."

This statement was in accord with the only resolution adopted by the union representatives during the meeting in which they condemned the federal waterways program.

KING AND QUEEN SEND GREETINGS TO 110 YR. OLD IRISH WOMAN

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A telegram of congratulation from King George and Queen Mary today brought a smile of gratification to the face of a little old lady of Ballymascanlon in County Louth.

She is Katherine Plunkett, who was celebrating her 110th birthday quietly, as has been her wont for many years. For breakfast there was the customary glass of milk, but the dinner table was spread with roast turkey and plum pudding for the guests who came to do her honor.

This remarkable old lady of distinguished lineage is the daughter of the second Baron Plunkett, bishop of Tuam, and her mother was the daughter of John W. Foster, the last speaker of the Irish house.

'DEATH RAY' NEXT WEAPON OF WAR, BRITAIN WARNED

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Nov. 22.—(AP)—The "next world war," the British Association of Chemists was told today, will be a war of chemists and physicians in which a "death ray" will be more than an imagined possibility.

"After the experiences of the world war," said Henry Rhodes, editor of a chemical journal, "nobody can be foolish enough to suppose that full use will not be made in the next war of the latest chemical and physical discoveries.

"Researches are now being conducted with invisible rays of such power that they would be capable of exterminating whole populations. Britain must be chemically prepared, for if the country were threatened and war declared its outcome would be determined by the condition of the dyestuff industries, capable of being transformed in a moment to an industry for the manufacture of lethal gases."

Hundreds Watch Kilauea Shoot Lava 450 Feet in Air

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Nov. 22.—As the activity of Kilauea volcano increases, the islands' residents and visitors are crowding all available transportation to the scene. Eighteen army and three navy planes took off today for the crater. Latest reports say lava is shooting 450 feet into the air. A huge pool of liquid fire has formed in the crater, on the edge of which are hundreds of spectators.

STYLED in the tempo of flight, the new Franklin airplane-type car is a lower appearing, speedy looking, gracefully streamlined creation of the modern age. POWERED with the airplane-type engine, there is more power for size than in any other powerplant. AIRPLANE features such as clear-vision, slanting windshield, air-foil fenders, airplane instrument board, airplane materials and construction, indicate definite achievement far in advance of other cars. SMARTNESS from flashing chromium plated grille, port-type louvers, gently sloping rear and greater length—add to the LUXURY of wider seats, exquisite library upholstery and cushions, spacious floor room and liberal doorways. PERFORMANCE of a smooth, sweet throttling engine, scarcely audible at a lazy, idling gait, and seeming like only 50 miles an hour when you are really doing 80—truly achieves the AIRPLANE FEEL.

DRYS THREATEN TO QUIT HOOVER IF HE LEANS WET

Dr. Clarence True Wilson Talks Third Party.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—A new political party will be formed by the militant drys should President Hoover adopt a moist or wet report from the Wickersham commission, Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals, declared today.

Dr. Wilson asserted that he and his group would quit the Hoover standard just as surely as they went against Alfred E. Smith in 1928 if he fails to continue to carry the dry banner.

Hoping Against Reversal.

"Any one who thinks we wouldn't oppose President Hoover if he reverses his prohibition stand just as quickly as we opposed Mr. Smith in 1928 is badly mistaken," he said, adding, however, that his statement was not an "ultimatum" and that he hoped no such reversal would come about.

"There is no question that there will be a wide open split in the whole political field in 1932 if both major parties become moist or wet," Dr. Wilson continued. "And if the drys are forced to put presidential and vice presidential candidates of their own in the field the dry ticket will win overwhelmingly."

Expect Modification Report.

Dr. Wilson said he did not know what recommendation the Wickersham commission will make, although it is the general opinion now that a majority will ask for some form of modification. The commission will meet again Monday following a ten day adjournment.

LIEUT. VAUPRE WINS MITCHELL FLYING TROPHY

Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Mich., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Lieut. Louis A. Vaupre, attached to the 36th pursuit squadron, captured the Mitchell trophy, a major military flying award, in the annual speed event here today.

Lieut. Veupré's elapsed time was 49 minutes 35.75 seconds, an average of 146.7 miles per hour over the 120 mile triangular course. Nearly 75,000 spectators watched the race. Eighteen army planes were entered.

Flying a Curtiss P-1, standard army pursuit plane, Lieut. Vaupre nosed out Lieut. George F. Smith of the 27th squadron. Lieut. Theodore M. Bolen of the 27th was third. The speed event was marked by three accidents.

BABY BLIMP WRECKED; CREW OF THREE SAVED

Piedmont, Ala., Nov. 22.—(AP)—The baby blimp Vigilante, owned by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company of Akron, O., was wrecked on Smoky mountain three miles east of here today. Her crew of three escaped without injury. Pilot L. W. Crosier declined to discuss the accident.

A short time before the blimp crashed into a tree atop Smoky mountain it had sailed over this town.

Farmers living in the vicinity saw the ship smash. Leonard Gordon, representative of the Goodyear plant in Atlanta, said there was no explosion or fire.

Goodyear officials in Atlanta said the ship cost $60,000.

Lindberghs Fly Home After Welfare Meet in Capital

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh flew home today from the White House conference on child welfare in Mrs. Lindbergh's plane, in two hours and five minutes.

DON'T BE BOUND BY WET VOTE, DRYS URGE LEGISLATORS

The Anti-Saloon league of Illinois issued a statement yesterday contending that the vote in 19 downstate legislative districts that went wet on Nov. 4 was not heavy enough to cause members of the general assembly from those districts to support wet bills.

The argument of the league was based on a comparison of the vote in favor of the repeal of the state search and seizure act with the vote cast for presidential candidates in 1928. It ignored the fact that the wets in the recent referendum carried some of the nineteen districts by better than two to one.

The total vote cast in the state in 1928 was 3,082,958. The vote for repeal on Nov. 4 was 1,047,033, which, with some official figures still missing, was approximately a two to one victory.

Youth, Once Exonerated of Poison Pen Notes, Suicide

Boston, Mass., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Believed to have been brooding over the damage to his reputation caused when he was accused of writing "poison pen" letters to the parents of prominent Boston debutantes, Allen E. Burke, 25, former Charles street antique dealer, Harvard student and well known in Beacon Hill's "bohemia," committed suicide today at his home in Newbury. He was found dead in bed by his father, Frank E. Burke. Although a telegraph company employé asserted last February that Burke was the sender of "poison pen" messages, he was later exonerated.

FOUND GUILTY OF POSSESSING 'GOOD' LIQUOR

U. S. Witness Testifies It Is Imported Stuff.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Frank Shore, local tire repair shop proprietor, was convicted by a jury in the District of Columbia Supreme court today of receiving and concealing "good" imported liquor.

The government was compelled not only to prove that the liquor contained more than one-half of 1 per cent alcohol, but also that its quality was that of imported rather than American bootleg liquor. This unique situation was brought about by the fact that Shore was charged with possessing the imported variety.

Chemist is Witness.

Among the witnesses was Dr. James L. Young, government chemist, who gave a dissertation on how to tell imported liquor from the prohibition brand.

"Now, take scotch," said Dr. Young, "which is made in the hills of Scotland. It can be definitely determined not only by its taste, which has a decided flavor of peat, but its chemical properties can be so separated in the laboratory that there can be no question."

Three Trunks Seized.

Revenue agents traced three trunks full of liquor in January, 1929, to Shore's place and the trunks were seized. It was charged that the liquor was imported from the West Indies. Although he was acquitted on the first count of the indictment which charged that he actually imported liquor he was convicted of receiving and concealing it. The maximum penalty is two years in jail and a fine of not more than $5,000.

RUM RUNNERS LAND CARGO ON ESTATE OF SECRETARY ADAMS

Cohasset, Mass., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Rum runners using the estate of Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams here as a landing base for a liquor cargo were surprised by coast guardsmen early today and fled by land and sea leaving six hundred cases of assorted liquor valued at $150,000 on the shore line.

Chief Boatswain's Mate Benjamin Nelson and two surfmen from the Scituate coast guard station stumbled over the rum runners as they were making a regular patrol of the Cohasset harbor shore road by automobile. The coast guards said about a dozen men apparently had just finished unloading a motor launch in the Cohasset river and were waiting for trucks to transport the liquor to Boston.

Woman Pilot Forced Down on Pittsburgh-Cuba Flight

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 22.—[U. P.]—Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian woman flyer, en route from Pittsburgh to Havana, landed at the naval air station here this afternoon because of head winds and thickening flying conditions. Capt. Lancaster said Mrs. Miller planned to resume her flight tomorrow.

DRYS WILL TAKE INVENTORY OF LOSSES DEC. 9

Many Old Stalwarts to Be Missing at Rally.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—A counting of noses by the organized drys when they rally for their convention in the capital next month apparently is going to disclose wide and serious gaps in the ranks of those who once marched in the vanguard of the prohibition army.

For the first time since Volsteadism went into effect indications are that the professional prohibitionists are alarmed over defections of erstwhile banner bearers who have deserted and gone over to the wets.

The association of organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment, foremost of which is the Anti-Saloon league, will meet in Washington on Dec. 9 and 10.

Mabel Will Be Absent.

Prominent among those missing will be Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, former special assistant attorney general in Chicago of the prohibition enforcement and torchbearer for the cause in the 1928 political organization. Mrs. Willebrandt was more or less formally read out yesterday by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Methodist board of temperance, because she has dedicated her legal talents to the interests of the California grape growers in the campaign to put fermentable grapes concentrate into American homes.

Further names were added to the list of prospective absentees three days ago by Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, when in an appeal for a revival of prohibition support he listed the names of twenty-five business men as having given "official indorsement" to the movement. Within a few hours after the McBride statement was made public, three of the twenty-five had repudiated it.

Sims Disowns Movement.

Admiral William S. Sims, one of the twenty-five, at his home in Boston, flatly denied that he was connected with the movement.

At the same time two more of the twenty-five were throwing down the McBride statement in Baltimore. Dr. Howard A. Kelly, head of the Howard A. Kelly sanitarium and professor emeritus of Johns Hopkins university, and William F. Cochran, capitalist, said they were unaware of it.

HUNT MOTORIST WHO ATTEMPTED TO KIDNAP GIRL

A man, who attempted to kidnap Miss Sylvia Swidler, 19 years old, 5490 University avenue, Friday night, is being sought by the Hyde Park police. The license number of the automobile used by the man was given to the police by a witness.

Miss Swidler was seized at 57th street and Cottage Grove avenue as she was returning home from a theater. The man attempted to force her into his car. The girl struggled furiously and her cries attracted the attention of passing motorists. The man fled as several of the latter came to her assistance.

The girl was unable to give the police an account of her experience for several hours. She was confined to her home yesterday. Police are watching the home of the man to whom the license was issued. His name was withheld.

BLAZE WRECKS BUILDING UNDER RUM PADLOCK

Fire wrecked an unoccupied, prohibition padlocked warehouse in the rear of 3734 Cottage Grove avenue yesterday, spread to the Arcade Storage and Van company in front and a neighboring tenement house, and did damage estimated at approximately $20,000. Leo Corbett, 17 years old, 3825 Ellis avenue, a spectator, was injured by a falling telegraph pole loosened by the blaze.

A 5-11 alarm was sounded by Marshal Michael Corrigan because the district, largely made up of old frame buildings, is considered a fire hazard. The warehouse and property in front of it are owned by Samuel J. Lumbard, attorney with offices at 208 West Washington street. The warehouse was sealed by the government about a year ago, following the discovery of a still.

3 NATIONS VETO PUBLICATION OF COL. HOUSE DATA

Great Britain, France and Italy Object.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Objections by Great Britain, France and Italy has disrupted state department plans to make public the confidential minutes of Col. Edward M. House's conversations with the allied leaders in November and December, 1917.

The state department had planned to include these minutes, in which President Wilson's confidential representative figured, in one of the supplements to the volumes of foreign relations covering the world war period, some of which have been published. Great Britain, however, vetoed the plan when Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, following international custom, asked the interested governments a year ago if they had objections to such publication.

France and Italy replied to Secretary Stimson in the same tenor. Japan said she would not object if the others did not. According to one report, the British replied in a short communication merely stating that publication of the minutes at this time would not "help the comity of nations."

Embarrassment Feared.

The general view here is that Great Britain as well as France and Italy when asked about including the conversations in the foreign relations supplements, felt that their publication even thirteen years afterward, might reopen old sores and perhaps cause embarrassment.

Col. House, accompanied by Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, participated in conversations which dealt with such delicate situations as methods of counteracting the Russian collapse, how to avert an Italian breakdown in the face of the Austrian offensive and the extent of American participation in the world war. The conversations also covered preliminary negotiations for the establishment of the supreme war council in Paris.

House's Record Complete.

The fact that Col. House kept his record in great detail is said to have been a factor in the objections to publication of the conversations. It is reported also that the British veto was prompted by the fact that they went so thoroughly into the ticklish Russian situation.

One report circulated was that Great Britain felt that publication of the minutes might adversely affect her chances of ever collecting the debts owed her by Russia. No confirmation of this point was available at the state department.

52 NATIONS UNITED BY HOOVER TO CONFER ON HELP FOR BLIND

New York, Nov. 22.—(AP)—On the invitation of President Hoover fifty-two nations will participate in a world conference on work for the blind in New York next April, Robert B. Irwin, executive director of the American Foundation for the Blind, announced today. Formal acceptance of the invitation, which was authorized by congress, has been received from 27 countries.

FIRE CAUSES $3,000 DAMAGE.

Fire starting in the chimney of a barbecue stand yesterday caused $3,000 damage to a building at 1707-15 West Lake street.

BANKER AND SON FOUND GUILTY OF ALTERING BOOKS

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 22.—(AP)—F. J. Dorger, former president of the defunct Cosmopolitan Bank and Trust company, and his son, Clarence Dorger, a former director, were convicted late today of making false entries in the bank's books, misapplication of funds and embezzlement.

The bank was closed last summer by state banking examiners after a shortage of nearly $600,000 was found on the books. Later examiners said discrepancies amounted to nearly $2,000,000.

Attorneys for the Dorgers said motions would be filed for a new trial. Both defendants were released on bond.

M'ANDREW TRIAL FOUGHT AGAIN AT GORMAN HEARING

Disbarment of Former Congressman Asked.

Arguments presented in the famous school board trial in which Mayor Thompson made war on King George of England were aired again yesterday in the offices of Master in Chancery Roswell B. Mason. There a hearing was held on charges of unethical conduct brought against former Congressman John J. Gorman by the Chicago Bar association, which seeks his disbarment.

The trial, held in 1927, attracted wide attention. William McAndrew, then superintendent of schools, was accused of trying to influence school children against their own country by having them read "pro-British" history books. McAndrew was found "guilty" and ousted from the superintendency.

Gorman's Rôle Recalled.

Gorman was assigned by Thompson to appear against McAndrew, and he presented excerpts from school histories as evidence of the superintendent's alleged British bias.

John L. Fogle, attorney for the bar association, yesterday outlined the association's charges against Gorman. It is charged that his report to the school board on the books he read was "false and misleading"; that Gorman's retraction of his charges against the books and his later retraction of that retraction showed unethical conduct on his part. Gorman's first retraction was written after David S. Muzzey, author of one of the books, filed a $100,000 suit for libel.

Gorman Makes Denial.

Gorman said at the hearing yesterday: "The letter of retraction was not written by me. It was written by counsel for Muzzey and I felt forced to sign it under the circumstances. I particularly deny as untrue that paragraph of the letter which reads, 'Your extbook contains nothing that I would criticize and I consider it well adapted for use in the public schools.'"

Gorman then started to read an account of the Boston tea party from Muzzey's book on American history. He said the sentence "The Boston tea party was the last straw" and others following it were a direct expression of opinion by the writer.

Master in Chancery Mason interrupted. "I hate to tell you, but you are entirely wrong there," he said to Gorman. "If you can't show anything better than that you are wasting your time."

Gorman—But you said you wanted to hear my theory of the matter.

Mason—Any one who can read English can see there is nothing to it.

TO WED

MISS CAROL BOURNE.
[Underwood & Underwood Photo.]

The engagement of Miss Carol Whiting Bourne to Edward C. Howe Jr., was announced last evening at the family residence, 1247 North State street. The wedding will take place in the early summer.

Miss Bourne's father was the late Ralph H. Bourne of the Whiting corporation, who died in 1927. In 1929 she was bridesmaid at the wedding of her mother to Rudolph E. Prussing.

Mr. Howe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Howe Sr. of Denver. Like Miss Bourne's father and step-father, he is an engineer, a Cornell university alumnus, and a member of Theta Delta Chi. He is now connected with the Western Electric company.

Before her debut Miss Bourne was a student at Rosemary hall, and is now active in the work of the Junior league.

CHICAGO FLYING BROKER BETTER; TALKS OF CRASH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA, C. Z., Nov. 21.—Capt. Roy W. Ammel, Chicago's flying broker, who was injured when his plane crashed taking off on a non-stop flight to the United States, is resting easily at the Gorgas hospital.

The flyer sat up when interviewed this evening. He smoked a cigaret and complained of pains in the spine, neck, and left shoulder, but he seemed most upset over the complete wreck of his plane, the Blue Flash.

"I don't remember a thing from the time the accident took place until I regained consciousness aboard the plane which brought me to the hospital," he said. "I have not lost interest in the flight to Chicago and hope to do it yet. I will begin plans the moment I get out of here. Tell Chicago for me that I will arrive eventually, and not by train or by boat but by airplane."

NEW BRIDGE AT ROOSEVELT ROAD IS DEDICATED

Thompson Leaves Hospital to Attend.

The new $3,000,000 bridge across the straightened channel of the Chicago river at Roosevelt road was dedicated yesterday morning. Mayor Thompson left the Passavant hospital, where he has been a patient following an operation, long enough to attend.

A parade of city officials was formed at Clark street and Wacker drive and proceeded down Clark street to the new Roosevelt road viaduct and bridge. Morris Eller, city collector and 20th ward boss, and Gov. Dillon of New Mexico accompanied Thompson.

Several Hundred Attend.

A crowd of several hundred persons, the most of whom were members of the parade, assembled around the speakers' stand. Thompson remained in the auto and spoke his dedicatory address through a microphone. A raccoon coat shielded him from the November breeze.

In his speech Thompson reviewed the public projects of his administration, called attention to his plans for a new conference here in January on flood control and waterways development, assailed THE TRIBUNE as the city's worst enemy, blamed the federal government and the railroads because it required 12 years to complete the Roosevelt bridge project, and informed the group that he was on his way back to health to work for them in the future as he had in the past.

District Leaders Speak.

Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works, lauded Thompson as responsible for more public improvements during his administrations than all the other mayors of the city had accomplished combined. Other speakers on the program were Tom Chisholm of the West Town chamber of commerce; William A. Dudley, director of the Greater Central District association; William J. Marsh, secretary of the South Central association, and Guy Cramer, president of the West Central association.

Thompson intends to remain at the hospital until Monday, when he plans to attend the council meeting. He will return to the hospital Monday evening and remain until Tuesday, when he is to depart with a group of 100 of his associates for a health resort at Wedon. Ill.

Middletown, Pa., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Miss Ruth Nichols, New York aviatrix, put in here this afternoon on her way to New York after a short flight from Mann's Choice, Bedford county, where she was forced down last Wednesday while en route to Roosevelt field, N. Y., from Cincinnati. She will resume her trip tomorrow if weather conditions are favorable.

OIL REFINERY FIRE BURNS 3; TWO MAY DIE

Three men were burned, two probably fatally, by a puff of fire from a pressure still in the Whiting refinery of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana yesterday.

They are Fred Meier, 5206 South Bishop street, Chicago, and Darrel Bussard, 879 Erie street, and Chester Slawson, 4204 Torrence avenue, both of Hammond. All were taken to St. Catherine's hospital in East Chicago, where slight hope was held for the recovery of Bussard and Slawson.

Bussard and Slawson were cleaning tubes in the still, which was not in operation, and Meier was walking toward them when there was a sudden flash of flame. The clothing of all three caught fire.

Officials of the company are investigating the accident. The cause of the burst of flame was not apparent on first inspection, but was believed due to spontaneous combustion.

PETITIONS NAME EMIL C. WETTEN FOR MAYOR RACE

Nominating petitions bearing the name of Emil C. Wetten for mayor were reporting yesterday to have been in circulation for several days. The group sponsoring the activity is believed to be the same one that recently was unsuccessful in urging Sheldon Clark to become a candidate.

Wetten was for many years a Brundage supporter, but says he is not affiliated with any Republican faction now. He is an attorney and lives at 181 Lake Shore drive. He has not been considered prominent in politics for several years.

Frank C. Corr resigned from Corporation Counsel Ettelson's staff yesterday with an announcement that he will run for alderman against James G. Coyle of the Seventeenth ward. Corr is a Democrat. Coyle is a Thompson Republican.

AUTOCRATIC GOVERNMENT FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

The required reapportionment in the national house of representatives to adjust the membership to the census record of population will shift 27 seats and affect 32 states. Eleven states will gain and twenty-one will lose representation. President Hoover has made public these figures, which will be sent to congress as information upon which the composition of the house must be based. Fortunately the apportionment act of 1929 has an automatic provision. If congress fails to obey the mandate by March 4, when its next session closes, the change becomes effective two years later without legislation.

The act which restores representative government to this extent in the national house of representatives was won after a long fight against obstinate and powerful influences—that of prohibition being the most stubborn—which have sought to restrict and impair it. Unfortunately the remedy is only part of one. It can give to each state the number of representatives to which its population entitles it, but nothing as yet has been found to compel the states to distribute the representation equitably and legally. Illinois is electing congressmen at large who should be elected from Chicago districts. Any state may deprive a metropolitan section of its rights by refusing to redistrict according to the findings of the census and the distribution of seats under the new apportionment act. The injustice as between states will be remedied, but not the injustice within the state.

Illinois is the case example of the retreat from representative government, with the rural population nullifying the constitution and producing a travesty of democracy in order that the metropolitan area may be exploited financially as a section of inferior political rights and superior resources. There are few academic ideas involved in restriction of rights or in disfranchisement. The objects are nearly all material.

The theory of American representative government is nearly if not wholly equitable. It contemplates equality and the only deviation in principle is that which gives the states regardless of population an equal representation in the senate. That was regarded as a necessitous concession to the smaller states when the Union was being formed, and it had a backing in considerations, such as stability, restraint of popular and temporary emotions, and protection of property rights. With the senate now flightier than the house these considerations have less weight, but such inequality as this scheme of representation permits is fixed by usage and tradition. Although not so highly regarded any more in theory it is hardly questioned. All the more reason for guarding every other provision for the equality of citizens in the making of the laws.

The flighty senate itself has been reconstructing the rules of election and admission to its own body. Credentials require the authority of senatorial consent regardless of the legality of elections. With this evolution toward autocracy in the upper chamber the tendency to deny majorities their representation in the house cannot be observed complacently.

All these various departures from the equitable system of representative government have a purpose. They are to support causes and ideas and prevent a free expression of popular will on important questions of public policy and to produce, so far as they can, government without the consent of the governed.

AN ANIMATED MOUSE.

Vox Pop recently has carried several disparaging remarks about the animated cartoon in the movies, setting the mice and cats down with a passing word of contempt. If any such feeling were general it would be, indeed, too bad. The animated comic is the moving picture's distinctive contribution to the generation in a new art of the fantastic. It combines fun and fancy in the best tradition of the humor of English speaking people. It is derived from the nursery and delights appreciative adults, proving that true fancy is universal. Sound has added to its range, and it should be irresistible.

The very necessities of its production invest it with comedy. The animation resulting from the multiplication of drawings is delightful parody of motion. Childhood's fairies seem to touch the animals, flowers and the gnomes and hominiform creatures who awake and ride, dance and disport themselves in this world of fantasy. They are unsentimentalized fairy stories, it is true, and so much the better. The two gun man uses the steer's skeleton as a xylophone and the more tender minded swain the stems of daisies as the strings of a harp. Dance has a new form when animated cannibals come out of the jungle. Horsemanship in escape and pursuit, with elastic and disjointable mounts and riders, gives the plains and the mountains a new mastery of the saddle. It would be a pity if this world of fancy were lost because of the indifference of people who support the movies and in part account for their productions.

A DEMONSTRATIVE NAVY.

While we are waiting to learn what congress decides to do with, for, or to the navy, it may not be altogether a waste of time to recall and reflect upon interesting discussion of American naval planning which appeared in a leading Japanese journal, the Osaka Mainichi, about the time of the fifteen cruiser discussion in 1929.

Admitting, with some flavor of irony, that all navies are now "defensive," the Mainichi notes what it calls the "trumpeting and limelighting" of the American plan for building fifteen cruisers.

"Without doubt," says this journal, "the proposed American program is just as defensive in nature as the German policy or the naval program of any other nation, but judging from the past sporadic nature of the Washington naval policy, with almost no attempt to maintain any strategical balance of the various types of naval craft so as to make the U. S. navy 'well balanced and up to date,' the naval consideration now placed before the senate may be styled as 'demonstrative' as well as defensive.

"This demonstrative nature of the American navy is made more clear by such terms as the 'navy second to none' and 'parity with Great Britain' frequently used to justify the new American naval program. The U. S. naval plan is not the result of scientific calculation like that of Germany. The recent dispatch from Washington reported that the so called big navalists are even willing to suspend the construction which they are demanding in the event an agreement were reached with Great Britain. This attitude definitely expressed through a proposal made in the senate further shows that the American navy is functioning as a demonstrative unit as well as a defensive one."

The Mainichi, in other words, foresaw that we should not build 15 cruisers, and it was its opinion that, as a diplomatic bluff, it had the disadvantage of irritating other governments without producing substantial results in negotiation. How much influence this conclusion had upon the proceedings at London we can only guess, but it seems reasonable to infer that it was not inconsiderable. And it will increase if we continue to follow the course adopted since the Washington conference. The proposal of ambitious or even moderate plans of development, if they are not taken seriously by congress and acted upon, will dispose of any influence our planning might have upon the policies or programs of other naval powers. They will not serve any end which could be profitable to us. As diplomatic weapons they will be without edge in our hands, though they could be used by foreign governments to justify to their own taxpayers any projects these governments may cherish. At London we demanded an agreement for parity with Great Britain, which was theoretically granted and announced at Washington as a diplomatic victory. But it is known and not denied that there is in fact no parity between the British and American navies and will not be unless and until we build up to it. We have, in other words, two navies, a demonstrative navy and a real one, a navy existing only in diplomatic theory and for a diplomatic purpose and a navy which, if it is not built up, deprives our demonstrative, diplomatic navy of any force or reality.

Congress and the government cannot shirk this decision. They should put up or shut up.

THE SENATE CHILD SLEUTH.

Further revelations in the interesting story of the senate office building rum trade indicate that a bright boy, a minor, was put in the building as an under cover agent to get evidence. The child was successful, after considerable stealth, in spotting the Man in the Green Hat with a pint. The arrest was made. Vice President Curtis had this reform among the Conscript Fathers much at heart and hence the energy which sent the child among them to probe into their real devotion to Volstead.

The boy in telling of his experiences says that he was successful in keeping his purpose a secret from his closest friends. Although considerable time was required he finally made his catch. Probably everybody in Washington except this lad knew everything about the pints in the senate office building and it was desirable to make the knowledge universal. When the child discovered it the fact could be accepted as proved and the case closed. Is this another device of the Dry Cheka to keep the wavering in a proper state of pious obedience?

The Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals has indorsed Mr. Curtis' children's crusade against the senators, which would indicate that the Cheka has its proper authority and that now the senate pages may be enrolled, given guns and instructed to shoot on suspicion, in the office building and in the senate chamber.

Editorial of the Day

IT WAS GENUINE.

[Decatur Herald.]

Railroads that have been offering a great reduction in freight rates upon farm commodities, for the benefit of drought sufferers, announce that the low rates must be abandoned at the end of this month because the roads cannot stand the loss of revenue.

This news seems to put a new light upon the contribution of the railroads to drought relief. When the scheme was first announced we applauded politely, as seemed becoming to a gesture of sympathy by some important corporations toward a group of their customers. That the offer actually would amount to anything in hard dollars and cents to the farmers afflicted we hardly expected. So much charitable activity falls into this class, of well meaning gesture.

But if the railroads actually have been losing revenue by reason of their generosity, and must put a limit upon it to keep the drain upon them from going too far, then it appears that some farmers, in some of the drought area, have been receiving a substantial benefit. And so they have, for it is announced that by the end of the month a total of 60,000 cars will have been moved at the greatly reduced rate conceded by the roads.

The amount of the saving realized by any individual farmer cannot have been large, but it was real, in actual dollars and cents that otherwise would have had to be paid on the spot in hard cash. The sacrifice of income made by the railroad companies in order to perform this service was real, too, and in the great welter of political talk about doing something for the drought sufferers, it remains to this day about the only real contribution and real sacrifice anywhere recorded. The fact deserves to be remembered the next time a politician is heard describing himself as the ardent friend, the wicked corporation as the enemy, of the farmer.

AMERICAN HEROES

JOHN STARK

A Brief Review of His Contribution to Our Country.

(The articles of which the following is the twenty-seventh are intended as five minute sketches of early Americans of particular achievement and distinction, each flashed briefly against the background of the times and conditions in which the subject made his contribution to the nation. Their names may be well or may be little known now to the generation which has inherited the benefits of wise, laborious, and in many instances heroic work.)

(Picture in Rotogravure Section.)

WHAT was probably the most colorful expedition in an invasion of English America took to the water on Lake Champlain in June, 1777, and by the middle of the month had ascended as far as Ile aux Noix. The season was at its best and the army, half British, half Brunswickers, was gay with colors and music, confident in its numbers and equipment and in command of Gen. John Burgoyne.

The plan was for a grand smash at the upper colonies. Burgoyne was to lead the main attack in the center, using the historic water route from Montreal to the Hudson. St. Ledger was to lead on the right by landing at Oswego and going down the valley of the Mohawk. Clinton was to ascend the Hudson from New York City and the three armies were to combine at Albany. They would then have cut off upper New York and could cut New England off from the rest of the rebellious colonies. The grand plan has been subjected to the severest military criticism as faulty in its entire structure, but it would seem to have a great deal more military soundness than the aimless wandering of Cornwallis had later in the south.

The region of these projected operations is one of the most beautiful in the country and, as conditions were in revolutionary times, it was one of the most accessible. Its water courses were for the most part navigable and transport from the base of supplies in Canada could be relied upon if things went even fairly well. Nevertheless, beautiful as the theater of war was, it was a wilderness and abounded in unfamiliar dangers to the European troops, particularly to the Brunswickers, who were homesick and strangers even to their British allies.

The first success of the Burgoyne movement against the center was at Ticonderoga. Gen. St. Clair, who had but taken command of the fort, abandoned it without a fight, losing great quantities of stores and falling back to the east of Lake George. The angry protest which this retreat aroused in the American administrative circles was answered in London when the news arrived there with great jubilation. George III. is said to have broken into his wife's chamber with shrill cries of "I have licked them! I have licked all the Americans!"

A part of the Brunswickers were dragoons whose mounts had been left behind. Burgoyne decided to detach 600 of them for a raid into the Hampshire Grants to the east. They were under the command of a capable officer, Lieut. Col. Baum. He was to have in his support, if word came that he required it, another detachment of Brunswickers of about the same number. Baum's expedition, for no apparent fault of his own, immediately became ridiculous. These dismounted troopers were in heavy dragoon boots; the road, such as it was, had become soft after rain, and they, stamping along in their clumsy equipment, were dragging two small cannon. It was in effect a turtle endeavoring a cavalry raid.

The New Hampshire Grants, now Vermont, were at once buzzing with rifle and musket men. John Stark was already the great military hero of this region and most of his reputation was deserved. He had been a lieutenant in Roger's Rangers in the French and Indian war, the most competent body of Indian fighters that New England and New York ever sent into forest warfare. He had been a member of the committee of safety in the approach to the outbreak of the revolution and when the New England troops gathered at Cambridge after Lexington and Concord he was colonel of the New Hampshire militia. At Bunker's Hill his command held the rail fence and enabled the men in the redoubt to make as good a retreat as they did. He had commanded the vanguard at Trenton, when Washington flushed the Hessians after their Christmas celebration, and he was in the subsequent battle of Princeton. In the spring of 1777 he became disgusted because other men had been preferred to him in promotions, resigned his commission, and returned home. He was in command of the New Hampshire militia when Burgoyne's expedition took to the water and naturally had the leadership of the farmers, frontiersmen, and small townsmen collected to fight off the Brunswicker threat.

The Americans were for some time uncertain as to what were the objectives of the raid, as indeed the raiders themselves at first were, but it was evident soon that they were striking for Bennington, where there were collections of stores. Baum, plodding from Battenkill, made twelve miles and arrived at Cambridge on the second day. His Indian scouts had a skirmish with a small body guarding some cattle. By Aug. 15 he had reached a hill on the Hoosick river, or creek, in New York, just west of Bennington. Stark had collected forces to the number of about 1,600 men. His intention was an immediate attack upon the Brunswickers, who had entrenched themselves as well as possible on the slopes, but a terrific downpour of rain changed his purpose. Fearing that his men would get their powder wet, he waited until the 16th, which broke with bright sunlight.

Baum had sent back word that he was in contact with large forces and Col. Breyman was moving to his relief, but coming in the same slow, ponderous fashion that had characterized Baum's march. Stark disposed his militiamen to attack in three divisions encircling the foot of the hill. A famous remark accredited to him is that they would take the enemy or Molly Stark would sleep a widow that night. In spite of the disparity of numbers it was not a badly matched fight. It is to be remembered that the Brunswickers were disciplined soldiers in a position of their own choosing and that the Americans, who could hardly be regarded as more than irregulars, were attacking. Stark's success was complete. Baum was mortally wounded and his command either captured or destroyed. Breyman arrived a few hours too late, although his approach found the little American army dispersed and for a while out of hand. The men were re-collected, however, and drove off the reinforcements.

The threat to the Grants had been warded off and the defeat was a real disaster to the British armies. Bennington, which has given its name to the battle, was full of German prisoners and wounded. St. Leger already had come to grief in the Mohawk valley, having been checked at the battle of Oriskany, deserted by his Indians and Canadians, and left to make his way almost alone back into Canada.

Bennington gave the finishing touch to the impetus of the British drive. Burgoyne put himself on the other side of the Hudson, thereby impeding his retreat when it became necessary. But his resolution began to waver. The weather turned inclement, the countryside was swarming all about him, and Arnold, the real victor at Saratoga, was ready to engage him in action.

If Saratoga is to be regarded as a decisive battle in the world's affairs, the credit for the success in stopping Burgoyne, and consequently winning the French alliance, must begin at these two battles on the wings, one of them won by Stark.

Stark, born in 1728, lived to be seen by young Daniel Webster in favorite taverns in the New Hampshire hills, a hardy old man of more than ninety, taking his grog with his cronies of the neighborhood. He died in 1822.

BIG NAME FOR SMALL THING

K. W. M. writes: Will you explain the meaning of "vasomotor instability"? Will shock, fatigue, or excitement affect this condition? Is it serious or sufficient to warrant watching by a physician?

REPLY.

Of all manifestations of vasomotor instability the easiest to observe is blushing. Next time you, the reader, notice a person blush you are observing a case of vasomotor instability. Not very serious, is it? That is, in any but a social sense.

Another illustration about on the same plane is cold feet. Poor circulation is another. But the term is inclusive. Along with these inconvenient and unpleasant but not dangerous varieties there go Raynaud's disease, Buerger's disease, and some others that are serious enough to satisfy any one.

The vasomotor apparatus is composed of the small muscles in the walls of the blood vessels and of the nervous system which controls these muscles. This nervous system is a part of the great sympathetic nervous system, and this hooks into the brain and cord nervous system at certain relay stations. Besides the muscles located in the vessel walls there is some other apparatus which helps to control the distribution of blood around the system, for that is the work of the vasomotor system.

Sometimes one part of the body requires a great supply of blood temporarily. If so, the vasomotor apparatus widens the small blood vessel of the area and there flows into it some of the blood that otherwise would have gone to some other area. If this shifting of blood from where it is not especially needed to areas where the need for the moment is great is normal and right we say there is vasomotor stability. If it is not we say it is instable.

By perfecting apparatus physiologists are now able to study the small blood vessels in the tissues of the eye and under the nails. To a limited extent physicists have learned to look through a man by means other than X-rays. By looking into the living tissue physiologists are learning something about so prosaic a condition as cold feet. The surgeons have found that by cutting certain nerves they can overcome some kinds of vasomotor instability. And that is almost as far as the art has progressed.

INFLAMMATION OF FEET.

W. B. writes: Would you be kind enough to help me, as I am suffering from an ailment which I can only describe as being scaly and itchy, with inflammation between fingers and toes? Although I have used different salves it does not heal.

REPLY.

My guess is that your physician would find a mold in the inflamed skin. This can be killed by proper antiseptics, if you can call them such. When the mold is killed the eruption heals.

LUMPS IN BREAST.

Miss I. E. K. writes: I am a girl of 22 and for the last few years I have had a large lump in my right breast which is very painful to the touch at times. I have heard that cancer starts that way.

REPLY.

Lumps in the breast are always under suspicion. Get your physician's opinion. A history of having been present for years and painful at times during that period indicates that this one is probably not cancerous.

HINTS DIABETES.

K. D. P. writes: A mother died of diabetes. Is it possible for her son to inherit her trouble? He has frequent boils and he craves sweets.

REPLY.

In a certain sense diabetes is inheritable. Frequent boils and a heavy appetite for sweets raise a suspicion of diabetes. A laboratory test would settle the question.

PROTECT YOUR HANDS.

W. E. McK. writes: I work out of doors. Every winter my hands break or split open. What would you suggest as a remedy?

REPLY.

Wear gloves when that is possible. Protect your hands against chemicals, if you work around them. Grease them well once or twice daily and do not overdo washing. Use any grease you like.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—The alley by a garage on North Clarkson court is in a most deplorable condition. The people have been using the vacant lot as sort of a dumping ground until the rubbish has slid into the alley itself. I have posted "no dumping" signs in this lot to no avail. What can be done about this condition?

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 23, 1914.

ROTTERDAM.—Curious and significant news has been received to the effect that the inhabitants of St. Nicholas, a town of a population of nearly 40,000, and an important railway junction southwest of Antwerp, have been ordered by the German authorities to leave immediately. This peremptory removal of an entire population of a town is unexampled even in the present Belgian campaign. It is stated that this is only the first section of a great scheme for holding and fortifying the coast, and is regarded rather as a preparation of a base for an attack on England than merely as a precautionary measure to cover a possible German retreat.

LONDON.—A correspondent reports the capture of Gumbinnen, in northern East Prussia, by the Russians, after a battle lasting five days. The Cossacks were the heroes of the struggle, capturing the enemy's batteries by daring charges.

CHICAGO.—Miss Martha Marie Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Harris, 4530 Ellis avenue, and Norman L. MacLeod, son of Murdock MacLeod of 5305 Dorchester avenue, were married on Nov. 21 by Bishop W. A. Quayle and Dr. Charles B. Mitchell.

NOVEMBER 23, 1900.

MARSEILLES.—France greeted Paul Kruger, former president of the Transvaal, with a grandiose welcome—the most magnificent ever witnessed in Marseilles. Immense crowds gathered about him as soon as he landed and he responded to the speeches of welcome in a defiant fashion. He denounced English barbarity in South Africa and declared that the Boers would fight to the last man, woman and child. The French emphasized their welcome to the Boer leader by attacks on English visitors in the city. The Horse Guards were called out to protect the British consulate when the angry crowds got beyond control of the police.

CHICAGO.—Andrew Crawford, for many years prominent in the business life of Chicago, dropped dead while discussing business matters with his partner, J. H. Graham. Mr. Crawford was representative here of J. Pierpont Morgan and the Drexels and was a partner in the steamship firm of Graham & Morton. He was born in Ayrshire, Scotland, Dec. 1, 1831, and came to Geneseo, Ill., at the age of 20. He came to Chicago in 1872.

CHICAGO.—The Chicago Civic federation elected these officers: President, La Verne W. Noyes; vice presidents, John W. Ela and E. G. Halle; secretary, W. H. Brown; assistant secretary, Gertrude Beeks, and treasurer, Isaac N. Perry.

LONDON.—Sir Arthur Sullivan, the musical composer who gave to the world "Pinafore," "Pirates of Penzance," "The Mikado," and many other famous comic operas, died at the age of 58. He was knighted in 1883.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 23, 1880.

WASHINGTON.—Gen. Schofield has asked to be relieved of the command of the department of West Point. There is some talk of assigning Gen. Miles there instead of to the signal service.

INDIANAPOLIS.—Lieut. Gov. Isaac P. Gray appeared before the judges of the Supreme court and was sworn in as governor to succeed Gov. James D. Williams, who died on Nov. 20.

PARIS.—The Voltaire publishes a rumor that Gen. Sickles is about to supersede Gov. Noyes as the American minister to France.

CHICAGO.—The freezeup is general. It extends along the entire line from Lake Superior to the Hudson river. At Chicago the lake was sheeted with ice miles out from shore. The temperature yesterday morning was 5 degrees.

PITTSBURGH.—Joe Emmet, or "Fritz" Emmet, as he is better known, began an engagement in the opera house. Strange to say, he appeared perfectly sober. Speaking of his drinking toots, he said: "No, I have not exactly quit drinking, but I have positively quit getting drunk. I have the hardest work to keep sober in Chicago. I don't know whether it's the climate or the whisky." Several small bets were made that Emmet will get drunk before his engagement ends on Saturday night.

THE GERMAN CRISIS.

Munich, Germany, Nov. 4.—Your editorial, "Hindenburg," seemed so excellent that it was given to the Munich Neueste Nachrichten, where it was very warmly received and excerpts appear on the first page of today's paper.

To an American residing in Germany the patience of the German people appears rather remarkable. Living in economic servitude under the Versailles treaty, all classes, rich or poor, go about their daily tasks hoping that justice, which to them would mean the retaining of the rewards of their individual labors and the chance of national expression, will eventually be done.

At the present time it does not seem to be a rash statement to say that the fall of the German republic would not only tear Germany asunder in civil strife, but would seriously rock the economic stability of the world. The day for diplomatic [sic] impasses and political neck saving is past. If our civilization is to continue under the present economic system, Germany must accept her share of the responsibility for its maintenance, and this she cannot do until she is treated as a sister nation and given every opportunity for internal economic and cultural development.

The world war must be considered a ghastly blunder of white civilization and the participants must accept it as such with the saving grace, perhaps, that a future generation was spared from a more terrible catastrophe. The economic cost of that blunder cannot be shouldered by any one people; it must be borne by all and to preserve our present capitalistic system a distribution of that cost based on comparative ability to pay seems at the moment the only possible adjustment. The responsibility for the continuance of capitalism appears to rest mainly with the United States and it should be remembered that, of all peoples, the Germans now, economically, would have little to lose if their future destiny were placed in communistic hands. An assumption that America can enjoy prosperity without regard to the rest of the world is based more on hope than on sound reasoning.

In this world crisis England, France, Germany, and United States must stand together—their peoples are ither now suffering from economic depression or most surely will. A spirit of harmony must prevail and international mutual helpfulness take the place of national greed, mistrust, and jealousy before we can hope for economic stabilization. The overthrow of any one government is not a difficult matter and ordinarily not dangerous when fundamental or constitutional principles are preserved, but constitutional guaranties of freedom are but poor fodder for hungry stomachs when those so cherished guaranties are gone. However, well might the question be asked—what have you?

For Russia—a land whose possibilities had never been developed, whose millions of people had never tasted freedom communism may be a great blessing, but Russia has no counterpart among other nations. Let the blessing of communism evolve itself; it can hardly be such an improvement as to suffer complete annihilation of the existing structure with the untold misery that must follow. If statesmen who now control the destiny of people have that goal in mind it is better that we in America be forewarned.

B. J. SCHWIND.

EXCUSE IT, PLEASE.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, I believe, has actually been a part of my existence since the day I was born. I have been interested in its features, its editorials, its campaign against prohibition and other forms of bigotry and intolerance, and I have also been interested in its cartoons.

I observed this morning that the cartoon you usually carry on the first page of your classified advertising section was omitted. I have been interested in this Sunday feature and have had a good many laughs from it; moreover, it has done more than anything else to acquaint me with your classified advertising section.

For downright humor, as well as serving the purpose for which it is meant, I think this cartoon and its creator are among your best features, and I trust that its omission was merely an oversight and not a permanent decision not to carry it in the future.

Now that I am writing THE TRIBUNE I should like to commend your newspaper for its effort to relieve the present depression and for its many other forms of public service to this metropolis, which is badly in need of it.

GEORGE P. MACKNIGHT.

SOME PREFER MALADJUSTMENT.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Col. Arthur Woods, head of the government's employment relief commission, made a one minute talk over the radio the other evening that brought back vividly to memory the splendid, patriotic service of the one minute men during the world war who put over the Liberty bonds and conserved the supplies of sugar and other necessities. We are today in the midst of another war, a war to the finish against economic maladjustment. Wartime measures should be resorted to.

Let's again organize one minute men speakers all over the country, with a group in each state and city. Let them go into the movie houses and otherwise get close to the masses with the actual facts of today's situation and thus restore the confidence of the nation's purchasers.

It is all right to urge people to buy now as a patriotic duty. Thousands of good Americans will respond and begin their Christmas shopping now. But how much more could be accomplished by clearly explaining to mothers and fathers why it is to their own advantage to buy now? Convince the average women that prices are so low that every $1 she spends today will buy an average of nearly $1.25 worth of necessities for her home and family (according to Prof. Fisher's index numbers) and the traction lines will need to put on extra cars to carry the crowds into the loop and halt the senseless hoarding of money.

SELAH.

Ames, Ia., Nov. 12.—THE TRIBUNE is the "old man of the sea" as far as Republicans are concerned. The Republican party wins when it heeds the voice of decent progressiveness. It loses when it heeds the voice of unprincipled standpatters like the old TRIB. With Raskob making over the Democratic donkey, so he will be wet at one end and very [O very] conservative at the other, THE TRIB might well transfer its support, as it now does its affections, to that party. And when it does that countless Republicans in the middle west will arise and shout hallelujah! Selah.

NEW U. S. ARMY MANUAL ON ART OF WAR ISSUED

Infantry Still Holds Key in Modern Battle.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Fast flying aircraft and the high speed powerfully armed fighting machines developed since the world war have not dethroned the American infantry from its proud rôle of "queen of battles."

This point is emphasized in a new war department provisional manual on the art of modern war recently compiled under the direction of Gen Charles P. Summerall, retired army chief of staff, extracts of which are published herewith for the first time.

This manual, the first of its kind prepared for the American army, marks a serious attempt to include the basic principles of warfare in a single volume and to supply the army with a complete guide for the use of commanders or large units, such as the army or division, on the battlefield.

World War Lessons Applied.

Completed but a few weeks ago and still undergoing critical study by ranking army officers in anticipation of possible further changes, the new manual brings war doctrines up to date by applying lessons learned during the world conflict to American strategy and tactics. The manual deals with the employment of large units in both open and stabilized warfare. It is intended as a guide for commanders and staffs of divisions, corps, armies, and groups of armies. It touches on the employment of forces varying in strength from a single division to the maximum mobilized man power of the nation.

The new manual, which represents months of labor on the part of Gen. Summerall and officers of the general staff, stresses the increased importance in modern warfare of aviation, tanks, armored fighting machines, motorization, and rapid fire weapons like the machine gun and automatic rifle. The view constantly emphasized is that the rôle of all arms is to aid the infantry advance.

Planes Play Big Part.

Aviation is everywhere in the new warfare. Analysis of the verbally pictured battle scenes discloses that aircraft scouts the enemy before battle, clears the air, leads the attack, reports the progress of the various units during battle and in the end either covers the retreat or leads the forces exploiting victory. Tanks and fighting machines precede the infantry in the attack, but artillery still remains one of the principal blasting forces in the fight to break through the enemy lines. The manual provides for use of infantry with twice the fire power of world war units.

While stressing the importance to success in battle of fighting units equipped with a maximum of fire power, the new Summerall manual emphasizes that leadership after all is the most important element in modern warfare. On this point the manual asserts that "command is the most important element of war." The necessity of thoroughly trained leaders of all units, who have confidence of their commands, is stressed.

Amplifying the remarks on leadership in the manual Gen. Summerall in a hitherto unpublished address before the students of the war college, recently asserted that commanders of large units must "have unquestioned command" or nothing. Gen. Summerall emphasized that leaders of units must keep in close touch with their men, visiting the front lines at times.

The leader's personality, Gen. Summerall said, "is his greatest asset." "He," the general continued, "should appear among them [his men] at times and places of danger and should inspire them by his demeanor and courage. This is especially necessary with green and unseasoned troops."

Wide Field Covered.

The new volume on tactics and strategy is entitled "A Manual for Commanders of Large Units." It is divided into nine chapters and an appendix disclosing the composition and approximate aggregate strength of a field army, army corps, infantry division, cavalry corps and cavalry division. Special attention is paid to the army, the corps, the infantry division, the cavalry corps, and special operations.

"The cavalry determines the general outline of the enemy," says the manual. "It seeks its contact far enough to the front to allow the army to deploy properly for battle."

In attacking fortified positions the manual states that the preparation of the attack "requires a mass of powerful, well supplied artillery, which must be placed in position properly and have it fire carefully prepared."

Pursuit Held Important.

Continuing the manual points out that in event of victory "pursuit of the enemy should be uninterrupted, bold and relentless." "The most mobile elements," it continues, "such as cavalry, mechanized, motorized, or animal drawn units, and infantry in condition to execute forced marches, endeavor to cut off the retreat."

Throughout the manual the vital necessity of unquestioned obedience to orders is emphasized. In a vivid piece of descriptive writing the trials and vicissitudes of the officer who commands is related.

"Orders must be carried out," it states. "It is most difficult to get commanders to think beyond their initial objectives. In the midst of a great operation and afterwards a numbness and torpor comes over the participants. The human and material world will conspire against the commander and he will have no ally to sustain his own constancy. Campaigns and battles are inextricably associated with heat and cold, dust, rain, mud, gloom, and discouragement. When a commander has made a decision he must carry it out and allow no difficulty to stop him. He cannot shift responsibility for failure."

JUDGE PONDERS MRS. HANFORD'S DIVORCE PLEA

Circuit Judge Trude yesterday took under advisement the petition of Mrs. Muriel Keane Hanford, former actress, to amend a divorce decree she won ten years ago in order to legalize her second marriage to Arthur S. Hanford, wealthy manufacturer of Sioux City, Ia. Mrs. Hanford's suit for separate maintenance is being contested by Hanford on grounds that they were not legally married.

Mrs. Hanford, known on the stage as Muriel Window, testified that she divorced Robert Emmet Keane, an actor, at a hearing before Judge McGoorty on April 27, 1920. Her attorney, John T. Alexander, said that after hearing the evidence Judge McGoorty instructed him to draw up the decree.

Five days later, Mrs. Hanford said, she married Hanford, although the decree had not yet been signed. Her petition seeks to set back the date of the signature of the decree so that she may oppose her husband's suit for annulment. Judge Trude will make a decision tomorrow. In her separation suit Mrs. Hanford asks for alimony of $2,000 a month.

German Fascists Battle Reds in 2 Towns; 2 Dead

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—[U. P.]—Fighting between communists and Fascists broke out tonight in Dusseldorf, in the Rhineland, and in the upper Silesian town of Hindenberg. One man was shot dead in Dusseldorf, and another was killed in Hindenberg. Several were injured in both cities.

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A group of Fascists tonight invaded a dance hall where members of a workmen's club were frolicking and wounded three persons with pistol shots.

NATIONS SPLIT ON PLAN TO REVEAL WAR MATERIALS

Japan and France Oppose Arms Publicity.

GENEVA, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The preparatory disarmament commission of the league of nations today referred to a subcommittee a Dutch proposal which would guarantee publicity for war preparations and materials. This measure, directed at secret preparations for war, was brought to a vote after considerable debate.

Hugh S. Gibson, the American delegate, supported it, saying full exchange of information regarding war materials was necessary to the success of any disarmament treaty. The Japanese representative, M. Sato, condemned the proposal, saying his country would regard it as giving away secrets essential to national security. Another objector was Rene Massigli of France.

Row Over League Article.

The argument finally developed about interpretation of Article 8 of the league of nations covenant, those in favor of the motion asserting that such an exchange of military information was required under that article.

Massigli declared that the discussion of a covenant article was not appropriate in the presence of representatives from the United States, Turkey and Russia, who are not members of the league, and by general consent the question was referred to a subcommittee.

The members of this group will be delegates from the United States and other great powers, in addition to Belgium, Spain, Norway, Holland and Jugo-Slavia.

Litvinov May Bolt Party.

GENEVA, Nov. 22.—[U. P.]—Maxim Litvinov, soviet delegate to the preparatory disarmament conference, will quit the conference Monday, it was said on high authority tonight. He was reported as being "disgusted with the hypocrisy of the big powers and the temporizing methods of the smaller nations."

Anatole Lunatcharsky will be left in charge of the soviet delegation. During the debates of the conference Litvinov has repeatedly attacked the powers for their failure to make progress toward real disarmament.

He twice informed the preparatory conference that "it is not a disarmament conference." He was expected to go to Berlin and from there make a tour of the soviet embassies in Europe.

MISSING TEACHER BELIEVED SEEN WITH MAN COMPANION

Fort Morgan, Colo., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Police investigating the reputed kidnaping of Miss Enid Marriott, 28 year old Wiggins, Colo., school teacher, late today said that a young woman resembling the teacher had been registered with a man companion at a Sidney, Neb., hotel last Thursday as Mrs. R. W. Allen.

Miss Marriott disappeared last Sunday from a Wiggins railway station. Yesterday officers said a man driving an automobile had been seen at the station at about the time of the disappearance. Two Wiggins residents have testified they heard a shrill scream and a shot.

NAVAL OFFICER HITS AT BUDGET LIMIT ON SHIPS

Would Keep America from Parity, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Adoption of the Geneva plan of limiting armaments by setting a fixed limit on annual appropriations for the maintenance of armies and navies would prevent the United States from achieving tonnage parity with Great Britain under the London treaty, Commander H. H. Frost, one of the navy's younger spokesmen on naval subjects, asserts in this week's issue of the Army and Navy Journal.

Commander Frost calls attention to the Franco-British efforts made at the league of nations' preparatory disarmament commission sessions at Geneva to limits armaments by a system of limiting naval budgets and intimates broadly that Great Britain's motive is to prevent this country from reaching parity. He asserted that because of higher living and building costs in the United States, application of the budget system in a general arms conference pact would greatly decrease the size of the American navy in comparison with the British navy even if the two countries had parity in annual expenditures.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Direct trans-Pacific commercial wireless communication between China and the United States appeared destined tonight to become a reality. The Nationalist government ministry of communications announced its trans-Pacific radio station in Shanghai, which has been under construction for two years, had been completed and would begin operation Dec. 1.

The station has been equipped with powerful American apparatus. It will work coöperatively with the Radio Corporation of America, the latter's station for trans-Pacific communication being in San Francisco.

Automatic operating instruments will provide for the high speed handling of communications. Under the present system a Nationalist government radio station transmits to Manila, and the messages are then relayed to the United States by the Radio corporation.

MATE TIPSY FOR 4 YEARS, WIFE CLAIMS

Mrs. Mary Alice Trumbull, 4056 Lake Park avenue, yesterday won a divorce from George Borden Trumbull, an insurance broker, before Superior Judge Lewis. Mrs. Trumbull charged that her husband had been intoxicated daily from the day of their marriage in 1924 to their separation last February.

She alleged she suffered a nervous breakdown as a result of her husband's abusive treatment and he had her committed to a psychopathic hospital. She was later discharged from the hospital, she said, through the influence of friends.

Trumbull frequently compelled his wife to accompany him to speakeasies, she testified, and drink liquor which made her ill. She alleged Trumbull owns property worth $500,000. Judge Lewis approved a property settlement of $11,000.

COURT TO SIFT TANGLED ESTATE OF HEINEMAN

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Wausau, Wis., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—On Tuesday, Dec. 9, attorneys administering the affairs of the late Walter B. Heineman will go into the old brick courthouse here on a probate action and attempt to settle his tangled estate to the satisfaction of his numerous creditors and his heirs alike.

Much has been learned and more rumored of the dual life of Walter Heineman since the morning last July when he fired a bullet into his brain. It now appears that under settlement of the estate little or nothing will be left the heirs of the man whose father, a pioneer Wisconsin lumberman and capitalist, bequeathed him a fortune above a million dollars.

Dec. 2 Last Day to File Claims.

Developments since his death have disclosed assets of $60,000 and debts which exceed $1,113,000. The period for filing claims expires on Dec. 2, a week before the court hearing, and the attorneys of administration believe most of the claims have now been brought to light.

First published reports on Walter Heineman's death suggested ill health as the motive. Since then the Wausau newspaper has chronicled from day to day the record of the claims against him as they were filed.

Herewith is published for the first time the story of Heineman's career, the friend and adviser of Presidents Coolidge and Harding, dispenser of federal patronage in Wisconsin under their administrations, a reputed multimillionaire and reported to have enjoyed a wider acquaintance among capitalists and politicians within and outside Wisconsin than any man in the state.

Eldest of Three Sons.

Walter B. Heineman, eldest of the three sons of Benjamin Heineman, was born in Wausau March 15, 1879. Benjamin Heineman and his brother, Nathan, Hanoverian Jews, had settled here 75 years ago, peddling sewing machines from house to house until they amassed sufficient capital to open the Heineman Brothers department store, which still remains one of the leading mercantile houses of the city.

It was about 1900 that Benjamin Heineman, casting about for a business his sons might carry on, disposed of his interest in the department store to his brother, purchased the Stewart sawmill properties and organized the B. Heineman Lumber company. It was incorporated in 1905 with Benjamin as president and two of the sons, Walter and Gabriel B. Heineman, as secretary and treasurer.

At the elder Heineman's death in 1922, the company was rated a $1,200,000 corporation, having 1,200 shares of stock of $1,000 par value, all the stock being in the Heineman family. Succeeding his father as president, Walter Heineman started an expansion program and also embarked on the political career which before his death won him regard as one of the leading stalwart Republicans of the state, although he never held public office.

Friend of 2 Presidents.

A follower and close friend of Senator Irvine L. Lenroot he made frequent trips to Washington and there gained the friendship of President Harding. After Harding's death he became equally friendly with Coolidge, knowing him so intimately the Wausau folk say as to address the President as Calvin and Mrs. Coolidge as Grace.

Wausau business men now recall how if they chanced to meet Heineman in Washington he would take them to the White House to meet the President. They say it was Heineman, who, with exSenator Lenroot, chiefly was instrumental in bringing President Coolidge to the Brule river for his vacation in 1928.

On the President's return from the Brule to Washington it was Heineman who persuaded Mr. Coolidge to stop in Wausau to address the state convention of the American Legion, and when the Wausau post was unable to meet entertainment expenses guaranteed the convention bill.

Generous Charity Donor.

Possessing an affable, warm hearted personality he was always among the most generous contributors to charity campaigns. A member of no church, he donated regularly to several. His credit was regarded the soundest and his financial ability the best in Wausau.

As an instance of the trust he inspired, a committee of leading citizens serving as administrators of a trust fund established by a wealthy widow for the Wausau memorial hospital, selected Heineman to manage the fund, although he was not the committee treasurer. Nothing of the fund remains today, and the hospital is among the creditors of the Heineman estate, its $97,000 claim being among the most recent filed.

The news of his death on July 18 shocked many in high places. Gov. Walter G. Kohler issued a statement expressing his personal grief and voicing the sentiment of the citizens of Wisconsin in offering deepest sympathy to his family and associates.

Coolidge Wires Condolence.

Mr. Coolidge, at the solicitation of the Wausau Record-Herald, telegraphed from North Hampton, Mass., that he had learned with extreme regret of the passing of "my old friend, Walter B. Heineman," whose ability, character, and patriotism made him an outstanding figure in his state."

The whole town mourned on the day of his funeral. The Record Herald published a column of tributes from leading citizens. The following by Judge A. H. Reid is typical:

"Walter was a friend and brother to every person who deserved friendship. We will find it difficult to point to a more public spirited citizen. He carried his responsibilities with a smile."

Responsibilities Heavy.

How heavy those responsibilities were a number of bankers of Wausau, Milwaukee, Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, and Fort Smith, Ark., now are beginning to appreciate. The day after the funeral a bankers' committee representing institutions holding $877,800 of Heineman's unsecured notes met secretly in Wausau.

For days there was no announcement from the creditor banks nor the administrators of the estate. Then came the filing of a claim for $877,896 by the B. Heineman Lumber company against the personal estate of the company president. The nature of this claim made plain the method by which Walter Heineman had obtained above a million dollars in loans over a period of years from some of the larger banks in the country with no adequate security.

In each case it developed he had pledged stock of the lumber company as security for the notes given him, but in no case had these notes been included in the company's financial statement.

The last statement as of December, 1929, showed a capitalization of $1,200,000 with a bonded debt of about $300,000 and a cash surplus approximating the same amount. Nowhere in any of the company's statements was there reference to the notes of almost $900,000, some of which had been carried over five years.

List of Bank Creditors.

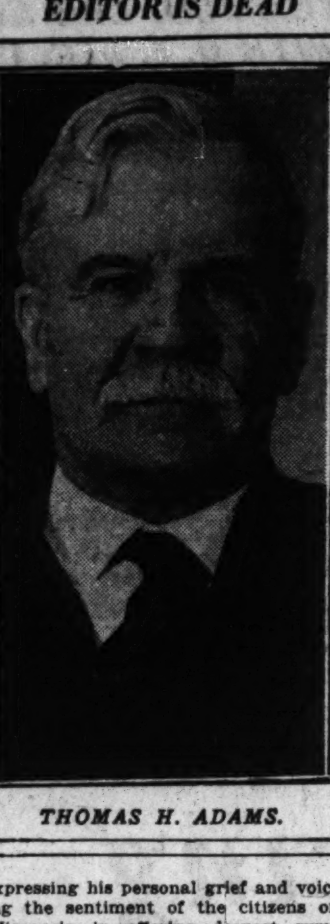
Gabriel B. Heineman and George Sexsmith, other officers of the company, declared they were as ignorant of Walter Heineman's notes as the bankers were. Among the largest bank claims discovered were the following: First National, St. Louis, $25,000; Central Trust of Illinois, Chicago, $99,000; Continental-Illinois Bank and Trust company, Chicago, $180,000; First National, Detroit, $102,000; and First National, Fort Smith, Ark., $25,000.

Plunger in Stock Market.

The evidence indicates that he was a plunger on the stock market and had lavish tastes far beyond his means, the attorney said.

Bills received from Chicago hotels and reports from Washington indicate he was prone to giving extravagant parties for his friends. His brokerage accounts show that during the boom period of the market he was a bear and after the crash became a bull. It was a combination that couldn't fail but ruin him.

EDITOR IS DEAD



THOMAS H. ADAMS.

THOMAS ADAMS, KLAN AND GRAFT FOE, DEAD AT 70

Veteran Indiana Editor Passes in Capital.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Thomas H. Adams, Vincennes newspaper editor who led the fight against the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana in 1925, died at the Methodist hospital here this evening, aged 70. He had been ill only a few days.

When the klan first entered Indiana after the war it sought domination in politics. It reached its climax when D. C. Stephenson, a modern carpetbagger, came northward from the south and in his capacity as grand dragon of the klan became the czar of Indiana politics.

At the height of the klan rule Adams gathered about him a group of Republican editors from all parts of Indiana. He forced the charges of wholesale governmental corruption under the klan régime, which, he said, "would rock the state and shock the nation."

Gathers Editors About Him.

As an indirect result of this effort Stephenson went to the state prison under a life sentence, convicted of the murder of an Indianapolis woman. Gov. Ed Jackson, who was supported by Stephenson, was indicted for attempting to bribe his predecessor, Gov. Warren T. McCray, in an alleged effort to gain appointment as county prosecutor. He was acquitted on a technicality. John Duvall, mayor of Indianapolis, was indicted and convicted of fraud.

A note smuggling to Mr. Adams from the state prison cell of Stephenson had much to do with the investigation. Stephenson urged Mr. Adams to find his black strong boxes, which were alleged to contain proof of political corruption.

Health Is Broken.

Adams' crusade won him national attention, but it broke his health, and he soon turned his paper, the Vincennes Commercial, over to another editor.

Mr. Adams was not satisfied and in 1928 ran for the Republican nomination for governor saying, "There is still big work to do. There is no issue in Indiana except the issue of clean government." He was defeated in the primary by Harry Leslie.

Mr. Adams was born July 19, 1860, at Grand Rapids, O., and was educated at Ohio Wesleyan university and at Lincoln Memorial university.

SIX KILLED AND GREAT HAVOC BY CALIFORNIA GALE

Fruit Damaged by Storm in Citrus Belt.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—A record wind which at places reached a 65 mile an hour velocity, swept all southern California from desert to the sea and left a wake of dead, injured, shipwreck and property damage. Six persons were killed and twenty injured. Three are reported missing at sea.

The gale unroofed homes in Pasadena, Long Beach, Altadena and Alhambra. Hundreds of trees, many of them aged and stately deodars, firs, eucalyptus, acacias and palms, were blown down in Pasadena, Los Angeles and cities of Orange county adjacent to the south. Three oil derricks were blown down in Huntington Beach. A steel reservoir was unroofed in Pasadena. Through the citrus belt orange growers suffered losses in millions. Some trees were totally stripped of fruit just ripening for the holiday markets.

Blows Autos from Highways.

Thousands of local phones in Los Angeles and vicinity were put out, and long distance cables to Salt Lake City and San Diego were ripped out. Several automobiles were blown off the highways and the Los Angeles to San Bernardino foothill highway was closed, with a 50 mile sand storm sweeping its entire length. Interurban railway traffic to Mount Lowe was abandoned.

Mrs. Louise Dewey, 70, was killed when a gust hurled her against a concrete wall in Pasadena. Two men were blown off roofs in different sections and are reported dying. Howard Collins, 11, of Bakersfield was decapitated by a sheet iron roof. Charles Davis, San Bernardino county forest rider, was killed when the gale blew his motorcycle into collision with an automobile.

Three men were believed drowned in a swamped boat off Rondondo Beach codfish banks, after being sought unavailingly since last night. Fishing boats and yachts were crashed on the shore by gigantic combers and all traffic between the mainland and Catalina island was abandoned after one pier and part of the Avalon board walk were ripped out.

At San Pedro 5,000 naval and merchant sailors were marooned ashore unable to get out of their boats because of the complete abandonment of small boat traffic. Airplane traffic into and out of Los Angeles was abandoned at all airports. A sixty thousand dollar Curtiss biplane was tipped over by the wind and wrecked on the ground.

Mountain States' Toll Heavy.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Twelve lives have been claimed and seven persons still were unaccounted for tonight as frigid winter gave way to sunny skies over most of western United States. The five day storm caused deaths in six states, not counting California, where eight were killed. Colorado and New Mexico had three each.

The Death Toll.

The dead are:

Luciano Costillo, Guy Miner, and Moses Salsgrom, who were frozen to death in the mountains of New Mexico.

A. C. Galloway and the infant of Mrs. Charles Moffatt, dead in South Dakota.

R. S. Byers, Nevada's storm victim.

William C. Godfrey, forest ranger in Oregon, first death attributed to the storm.

ELECTRIFICATION OF BERLIN R. R. IS ITS SALVATION

Shows Increased Business Immediately.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—Carrying 15 per cent more passengers—incidentally, better satisfied ones—at 33 per cent less cost at a 25 per cent faster speed, with fully 100 per cent less smoke, soot and grime, seven days a week—it sounds almost like a problem in statistics, or an algebra exercise, but it represents the experience of the Berlin city and interurban railway system in the last four years. And the answer is given quite simply in one word—electrification!

Herr Dr. Karl Remy, managing director of the system, in an exclusive interview to THE TRIBUNE, gave some interesting facts.

"We are more than satisfied with the electrification on the busiest lines of our system," he said, "and we only wait for funds to extend the electrification to all the stretches of track where traffic is heavy."

Give Statistics.

No guesswork estimates came from Dr. Remy. When he made a statement he gave figures fully worked out and supported by the experience of hauling half a billion passengers a year.

He was able to state, for example, that while it costs $1.61 to haul a passenger train one mile when pulled by a steam locomotive, it costs only about $1.08 when the same train is driven by electric power.

Not only that, but the electric train will be able to complete in three minutes a station to station trip that the steam locomotive drawn train would make in four, due to the greater reserve power, and greater acceleration rate of the electric drive.

Putting it concretely, electric driven trains are reaching maximum speeds on all typical "runs" around Berlin. If they go no faster, it is solely because the next station is coming along so soon that it would be speed wasted. Thus on the metropolitan lines they make 34 miles an hour; on the ring [surroundings] stretches, where the stations are farther apart, 40.3 miles an hour, and 46.5 in the interurban stretches, and will probably reach a speed of about 50 soon, according to Dr. Remy.

Nearly Half Electrified.

The systems which operate under the herr doctor's watchful eyes have a total mileage of 323 miles, of which some 148 have been electrified. Thus there still exists the steam hauled traffic to serve as a basis of comparison. It is on this basis that Dr. Remy has been able to state definitely that the added advantages of the electric travel have attracted 15 per cent more passengers to the converted lines than would otherwise have come.

Berlin's "stadtbahn," or town railroad, runs around the inner city, with branches spreading in all directions to the capital's suburbs. For years it had been losing heavily through competition of bus, street car, and subway services. Nobody wanted to ride in old smoke infested coaches. Electrification changed all this.

A Gain in Safety.

The total cost of electrifying the 148 miles of track was slightly less than $21,500,000. At the same time other improvements were made—new rolling stock, fitted with motors to eliminate the need for the electric locomotives; a new station; and so forth. So the total cost was in excess of the quoted figure, though the electrification itself cost no more.

A gain which is hard to measure in dollars and cents is the one which Dr. Remy seems to appreciate the most—safety. On the steam lines there was always the complaint that the low hanging smoke obscured the signals, made the engineers uncertain and unable to tell just how they stood for many anxious moments. That is all a thing of the past, and in addition the electric lines are all fitted with automatic stops which absolutely prevent any train from "running through" a signal.

Less cleaning has to be done in the electric railway stations, now that they are not coated with layer on layer of smoke; the houses along the right of way are kept cleaner—and as for the public's preference, the increase of travel shows its choice.

TEHERAN, Persia, Nov. 22.—Persian trade is being strangled by the government's policy of fixing foreign exchange, merchants here declared today. The current exchange abroad places nearly 900 Persian krans for 100 rupees, the former being unstable and the latter stable. But inside the country the Persian government has fixed the rate at 450 krans per 100 rupees. Dealings at all other rates are forbidden.

The Persian exporter must deliver to the government 90 per cent of the price he gets in foreign currency, the government repaying in krans at the fixed rate of exchange. Thus Persian exporters are losing half of the market value on 90 per cent of all their sales or 45 per cent of the total transaction. This policy is driving foreign merchants from the country and has caused almost complete death to trade.

The government claims it must accumulate a reserve of sound exchange. It has already collected $1,000,000, enough to afford the gold backing proposed for the currency, but the shah is said to be so stubborn that his advisers no longer dare to mention the subject, so the accumulation policy goes on.

U. S. AGREES TO LIMIT HOMAGE AT SOLDIER'S TOMB

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—At the suggestion of Great Britain, the United States has conditionally agreed to discontinue the international custom of having distinguished visitors lay wreaths on tombs of unknown soldiers. Acceptance of the British proposal does not affect the laying of wreaths by Americans on the tomb of the unknown soldier in Arlington, but will eliminate the custom of having all distinguished visitors who come to Washington to make a pilgrimage to the National cemetery. The condition laid down by Secretary Stimson is that other nations circularized by Great Britain concur in his proposal.

Should the British plan win wide approval, distinguished visitors on arriving at a foreign capital would not find it necessary to lay a wreath on the unknown soldier's tomb. This act of homage would not be considered a necessary courtesy on the part of the visitor. Whether this plan is to be followed by any movement to discourage pilgrimages by Americans to the unknown soldier's shrine as a part of a move to forget the war has not been made known.

Vet's Death Is Laid to Beating by Robber Pair

Robey street police last night were investigating the death of Daniel O'Connor, 31 years old, 1809 Patterson avenue, a world war veteran, believed to have been the victim of thugs. He died yesterday at the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital. His widow lives at Biddeford, Me. At the inquest O'Connor's landlady said he had told her that two men attacked him a week ago and after taking $30, knocked him down and kicked him.

DROUGHT REVEALS A RICH COAL MINE ON ILLINOIS FARM

Mount Carmel, Ill., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Weather conditions that dried up crops and cost other farmers thousands of dollars have given C. M. Batson a workable coal mine right on his farm.

The receding water of the Wabash river disclosed on Batson's property south of Mount Carmel an old shaft, where coal was mined from a shallow vein years ago. When the river continued to fall the farmer decided the old mine could be worked again. He built a dam, pumped what water was left around the vein to the regular channel of the river, and started mining operations.

After removing a thin layer of shale Batson has only to drill a hole, plant dynamite, and the coal is his for the blasting. He is selling it to his neighbor farmers.

INDICTED HERE FOR FRAUD; NOW JAILED IN EAST

Frank Gans, alias Frank Knight, indicted in Chicago on Nov. 9 charged with obtaining $60,000 from business men by selling advertising time on a nonexistent radio station, was arraigned yesterday on a similar charge in New York City. The authorities there allege Gans defrauded Harlem merchants of $22,000. Gans was released on bond after his indictment here. His case was set for Nov. 18, but he was arrested in New York on Nov. 14, so his bond here was declared forfeited and a fugitive warrant was issued for him. The case is now complicated by the fact that a Manhattan police magistrate yesterday ordered him held for grand larceny and forgery.

Final Population Count Is Announced.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Final population figures for the United States and its possessions were announced by the census bureau today. The official population of continental United States for 1930 is 122,775,046, and for outlying possession, 2,151,023, a total of 124,926,069.

The final revision showed a gain of 76,856 over the preliminary total of 122,698,190 for continental United States, making the increase since 1920, 17,064,426 or 16.1 per cent.

Figures for the states surrounding Chicago are:

Rank.	State.	1930 Population Final.	1920 Population.	Pct. Inc.
3.	Illinois	7,630,654	6,485,280	17.7
7.	Michigan	4,842,325	3,668,412	32.0
11.	Indiana	3,238,503	2,930,390	10.5
13.	Wisconsin	2,939,006	2,632,067	11.7
19.	Iowa	2,470,939	2,404,021	2.8

These five states, therefore, have gained 3,001,257 in population since the census of 1920, an increase of 16.6 per cent.

In percentage increase California leads the states with 65.7 per cent, Florida is second with 51.6 per cent, and Michigan's 32.0 per cent makes it third. California also led in total gains with an increase of 2,250,390 inhabitants. New York state gained 2,202,839. Michigan, Texas, and Illinois were the only other states to gain more than 1,000,000.

FROM ALAMO, VERA CRUZ, MEXICO.

VIA AIR MAIL
Mr. George S. Salter,

Chicago, Ill
Air Mail
E.U.A.

The recipient writes:

"Your paper a short time ago carried an article about floods in Mexico and mentioned that the town of Alamo, in the state of Vera Cruz, was completely wiped away.

"The inclosed letter is from Alamo. It was sent to Tuxpan and mailed from there. Traveling by air mail, it left Tuxpan at noon, Oct. 30, and was delivered at Chicago at 2 p. m., Nov. 1. It is from my sister-in-law, Mrs. F. D. Salter, who was in the flood. M. brother is an oil well driller, and she lives at the oil camp.

"When the flood came she left the house and waded through water up to her waist. All the Americans in the camp got in one house, which was built five feet above the ground, and the water was so high that they cut holes through the roof, got on top, and then tied ropes to the nearby trees, so that in case the house was washed away they might get into the trees. The crest of the flood came at 1:30 a. m.; by dawn the marooned could get back into the house.

"Nearly all the Mexican homes were destroyed. In the words of my sister-in-law: 'Poor, crying peons—no home, nothing left. We saw a native paw around in the mud and water, pull out a 12 year old boy, dead, put him on his back, and wade away.'"

TWO ARE KILLED AT ST. LOUIS BY MACHINE GUNS

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 22.—[U. P.]—Two gangsters were shot and killed by machine gun fire on a quiet street in the Italian district today.

They were killed because they refused to accept the code of racketeering and share their earnings with their associates, police said.

The victims were Lester Barth, 30, lantern jawed man of reputation as a machine gunner, and Dewey Goebel, 35, known to police as a soft spoken extortionist.

Their slayers, disregarding the dangers of a daylight shooting, opened fire from a big sedan on a small coupe containing Goebel and Barth.

They raked it with bullets for two blocks, until it swerved off the street and came to a stop on a sidewalk.

Barth and Goebel, police said, recently withdrew from the Cuckoo gang after an argument, the cause of which was not known. Detectives believed they were connected with the slaying recently of Peter McTigue and William Boody, still tenders.

McTigue and Boody were murdered and two of their associates wounded by machine gunners in a shack on Calico island, on the Illinois side of the Mississippi river.

Barth and Goebel worked with the Russo gang in a gang war with "the green ones" three years ago, police said. They were said to have been the only cuckoos openly aligned with Willie and Jimmy Russo, brothers.

Barth was at liberty on bond pending a new trial in connection with the robbery of the Hamilton State bank. He was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment, but was given a new trial on the ground the verdict was against the evidence.

Several years ago he was tried and acquitted of the murder of John Chamberlain, jewelry salesman.

WASHINGTON MEN OUTNUMBERED BY THE WEAKER SEX

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Women continue to outnumber men in the nation's capital and the Negro population has been growing faster than the white.

Race, color and sex statistics of the 1930 census announced today by the census bureau for the District of Columbia, showed 1,000 women here to every 909 men, as compared with 848 men to every 1,000 women in 1920.

Negroes showed a 20.1 per cent increase compared with an 8.3 per cent increase in the number of whites. There now are 132,068 Negroes as compared with 109,966 ten years ago. They comprise 27.1 per cent of the total population as compared with 25.1 per cent ten years ago.

The white population numbers 353,914, an increase of 27,054 in the ten years as compared with a 22,102 increase in the number of Negroes.

BIGGER AND BETTER

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX HAS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

CHEVROLET

The introduction of the new Chevrolet Six marks the most impressive forward step in Chevrolet's twenty-year record of constant progress and improvement. For this Bigger and Better Six offers new beauty, new luxury, new completeness and new quality—yet it sells at lower prices!

Your first glimpse of the new Chevrolet Six tells you that it is a car of appealing smartness and refinement. In every curve and sweep of its modern lines—in every detail of its new Fisher bodies, you will see the fine hand of the master designer and the skillful craftsman. And the more closely you inspect it, the more deeply impressed you will be.

The improvements in the new Chevrolet Six begin at the smart new chrome-plated headlamps and extend throughout the entire car. The radiator is deeper and unusually efficient. Due to the increased wheelbase, the lines are longer and lower, giving an air of exceptional fleetness and grace. And the new Fisher bodies combine with this more attractive exterior appearance a new degree of interior luxury.

The upholstery is of fine quality mohair or broadcloth, carefully tailored and fitted. The number of individual springs in the rear seat cushions has been increased by 25%. The windshield and windows have been redesigned to provide wider vision. All interior fittings—as well as the instrument panel—have been made more pleasing to the eye. A large three-spoke steering wheel adds to the ease of driving. And in the coach, both front seats are of the one-piece type, deeply upholstered for restful comfort.

The chassis of the new Chevrolet Six has also been refined and advanced in a number of different ways. The frame is heavier, deeper and stronger than before. There is a smoother operating, long lived clutch; a sturdier front axle; an entirely new steering mechanism of the worm and sector type; an easier shifting transmission. In fact, every vital feature of the new car has been made better and more satisfactory to the owner.

Obviously, these many improvements are responsible for a higher standard of quality than before. And they become doubly significant when you consider that they are offered in a car which provides the smooth, quiet, flexible performance of a 50-horsepower, six-cylinder motor—the comfort of four long semi-elliptic springs and four hydraulic shock absorbers—the safety of a gasoline tank at the rear of the car—and an economy of operation not surpassed by any automobile.

» » » AT NEW LOW PRICES « « «

Fine as it is, the new Chevrolet Six now sells at lower prices—making the economy and satisfaction of Chevrolet ownership even more outstanding. We urge you to come in and see the Bigger and Better Chevrolet. Its modern design reflects the spirit of the times—and it represents a value which will command the interest of every buyer in the low-price field.

PRINCES OF INDIA ANNOUNCE TERMS FOR FEDERATION

Attach Strings as Price for Joining Up.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The net result of the first week's talk at the Indian round table conference is that all parties in British politics are convinced that India can no longer be denied a large measure of that freedom which she demands, even if certain reservations and safeguards must be imposed temporarily.

The British people are surprised at the unanimity of the Indians in their demand for complete dominion status and for the establishment of a United States of India. The British expected that the Indian princes would refuse to enter into any federation.

The princes, however, have been just as insistent for the freedom of India as the British Indians have been, and they have, without any exception, declared their willingness to enter into a federation.

Princes Outline Demands.

The princes, following a conference today, announced that they will not place any detailed plan before the federal relations committee of the conference, but will refuse to join British India in a federation unless the following demands are conceded:

1. That the crown shall remain.
2. That the army and foreign affairs shall be left in the hands of "paramount powers."
3. That the different states shall be given equal representation with British India.
4. That their rights shall be clearly defined before a federation takes place.
5. That a federal court shall be set up which will decide all judicial disputes.

In addition the princes apparently do not intend to tolerate any interference by federal authorities when disputes arise between themselves and their subjects. The right of intervention would still be left in the hands of a paramount power.

May Finish by Christmas.

It is now hoped that it may be possible to finish the work of this conference before Christmas. This does not mean, of course, that India will take its place as a dominion next January. All this conference expects to do is to be able to draft the outline of a new constitution, which must then be filled in.

This filling in, it is expected, will take at least a year or more, and will probably take place in India. When the details are agreed upon, the constitution must be cast in the form of a parliamentary bill for passage by the British parliament.

Many of the Indian delegates are anxious to get home as soon as possible, and many of the business and professional men are losing money by their stay in London.

May Meet in India.

It is even suggested that when the round table conference convenes again it should be held in India in the winter months, which is the best time of the year for Europeans to brave the Indian climate.

A striking detail of the situation is the suppression of the bitter enmity between the Hindus and the Moslems, which was looked upon by the British as one of the greatest difficulties in the establishment of a united India.

The leaders of the extremist factions Dr. B. S. Moonje for the Hindus, and Moulana Mahomed Ali for the Moslems, were expected to stage a series of battles before the conference. Instead, they have been meeting outside and talking over their difficulties an have presented a united front at the conference.

Battle Over Religion.

This does not mean that all their differences have been settled, but it does mean that they are trying the method of holding discussions rather than one of fighting.

The great problem is that of religious observance in places where religions are of fairly equal strength. To the Hindus the slaughtering of cows is a deadly sin, while Moslem observances require the sacrifice of cattle. The Moslems require silence and reverence in their mosques, while the religion of the Hindus calls for noisy street processions with music, and singing in the vicinity of the mosques. These two factors are usually the cause of bloody communal riots, which must be put down by police.

BOY AT PLAY TRAMPLED BY HORSE.

Exposition Will Open Here Next Saturday.

Thousands of agricultural communities in the United States and in Canada and other foreign countries will be represented in the 31st annual International Live Stock show, which is scheduled to open in Chicago's Union stockyards next Saturday.

More than 13,000 outstanding farm animals, picked to compete for prizes and ribbons, will be on exhibition, the largest number of entries ever reported for an agrarian exposition, according to B. H. Heide, manager of the show.

"We not only have record breaking numbers of entries in all departments of the exposition, which now requires twelve buildings and covers several acres of ground," said Mr. Heide, "but the quality of the stock to be shown will surpass any previous International. The judges will find more difficult than ever the task of determining winners."

Large Attendance Predicted.

Officials indicated yesterday that reduced fares on railroads, coupled with the wide interest in the competing and educational features of the exposition, are likely to bring an unusually large attendance from outside Chicago. In addition Chicagoans are expected to avail themselves of the show's proximity and outstanding interests as never before, it was said. Many special trains will bring delegations of farmers and their families, as well as boy and girl 4-H club members.

Canada is to be more liberally represented at the exposition this year than ever before, reports indicate. More than 500 head of outstanding animals in several types of live stock are to be exhibited by dominion breeders and the entries from across the border in the International Hay and Grain show, a division of the stock show, exceed any previous registrations. More than 5,000 entries will be judged in this branch of the show alone.

Choice Meat for Holidays.

Chicago and other communities get their choicest cuts of holiday beef, pork, and mutton from the International exposition each year, and 1930 will be no exception, Manager Heide declared. More than half of the animals shown are auctioned and later slaughtered, some of the beef bringing record prices, such as the $3.25 a pound paid last year for the grand champion steer of the show.

Elliott Brown, farm boy of Rose Hill, Ia., whose Angus calf won this recognition last year, is to return again this year with 21 head of Aberdeen-Angus "black faced" cattle entered in the competition.

Special exhibits will be made by state agricultural colleges, the United States department of agriculture, and other educational agencies. Students from 23 colleges are entered for the amateur stock judging contest. Purdue university, possessor of last year's trophy, awarded by Sir Thomas Lipton, British sportsman, is defending its title in this event.

47 Judges to Place Ribbons.

Forty-seven veteran judges of farm animals and plant life will place the ribbons during the week of the show, which will end on Dec. 6. Women are expected to be especially interested in a large display of meats prepared to the latest dictates, to be shown in huge glassed-in refrigerators.

Each evening during the exposition a horse show will be held. Indoor polo games, parades of premium winning live stock, and other features are to be regular nightly events.

FARMERS URGE ROAD BUILDING IN 42 STATES

Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, issued an appeal yesterday to the state farm bureaus of 42 states where legislatures are meeting during the next few months, urging support of legislation to extend road construction at once.

The letter declared that construction can be done now at reduced costs, and that it would be an effective means of checking unemployment. He particularly urged the building of farm-to-market roads.

The stand of the federation in encouraging road building now was said by Mr. Thompson to be in accord with its program of economy in government and the general public interest in the extension of farm-to-market roads.

TERRY DRUGGAN BUYS A BULL AT LIVESTOCK SHOW

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Terry Druggan, Chicago beer boss, or his agents today gave a thrill to the American Royal Live Stock show by buying a Guernsey bull. The animal was sold for $200 by Joe Simmons, superintendent of the Glen Cliff farms of Independence, Kas., an exhibitor, to four men, one of whom flashed a large roll of $100 notes. Whether Druggan was among them could not be learned. The bull, a fourth place winner, was ordered shipped to "T. J. Druggan, Prairie View, Ill.' Druggan has an estate at Lake Zurich, near there.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Two years from now will he say "Mother, what's the matter with your teeth?"

OF COURSE HE LOVES THE SPARKLE OF YOUR TEETH!

Boys are just like men. They notice everything about you. And they never fail to notice the gleam of sound, white teeth. But will the men of your family admire YOUR teeth two years from now? Consider what goes on inside your mouth, day by day. You eat soft foods. Your gums get little stimulation. They grow more and more lazy. Until "pink tooth brush" appears as the tiny cells almost cease to function.

THE DAY YOU DISCOVER "PINK TOOTH BRUSH"

Sooner or later you will discover "pink tooth brush". Your gums bleed. And that means WATCH OUT! Watch out, now, for trench mouth, for gingivitis, for pyorrhea. Watch out for increasing dullness of your teeth. And, most serious of all, watch out that you don't lose some of those teeth that are so white and sound and healthy today. For you may find some of them becoming infected at the roots!

TWO YEARS FROM NOW, YOUR SON WILL STILL BE PROUD OF YOUR GOOD-LOOKING TEETH—IF . .

Don't wait until you discover "pink tooth brush". TODAY get a tube of Ipana Tooth Paste. Clean your teeth with it. But, in addition, lightly massage your gums with Ipana on the brush whenever you clean your teeth. For Ipana contains ziratol, a preparation well known and long used by the profession for its efficiency in toning and invigorating tender gum tissue. And Ipana plus massage will keep your gums firmly healthy, and insure you sparkling, sound, white teeth two, five, ten years from now!

BALLET BECOMES PART OF OPERA; IS GIVEN PRAISE

"L'Amour Sorcier" Has Haunting Music.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Ballet became a part of the Civic Opera répertoire yesterday afternoon with so encouraging a beginning that it deserves to take a more important part hereafter.

The curtain fell on a superb performance of "L'Amore dei Tre Re," sung by Claudia Muzio, Rene Maison, Cesare Formichi, Virgilio Lazzari, and the rest, to rise a few moments later on love of a different guise. This was the ballet, "L'Amour Sorcier," Manuel de Falla's music to the book of G. Martinez Sierra, or, as it was called before it was exported from Spain, "L'Amor Brujo."

Gypsy Fight to Death.

It is a fantastic tale of the Spanish gypsies telling of a fight to the death between two of their number, the survivor and his sweetheart being haunted by the ghost of the loser. The witch of the tribe orders the ritual dance of fire to exorcise the curse of blood, the spirit of fire appears, and she and the specter of the slain man disappear in each others arms, leaving the two living lovers free from ghostly interference.

To this piece De Falla has written twelve numbers of about as haunting music as can be found in any of the greater ballets. Founded upon Spanish rhythms, it develops into a good deal more than the plink-a-plunk of the conventional Spanish dance, into color and excitement and dramatic meaning, above all into melody as impressive as that of his opera, "La Vida Breve."

Dance Scene Is Good.

And to the music Laurent Novikoff, ballet master of the opera, has constructed a scene of dance and pantomime that looks good for the future. It is not quite perfect choreography; the fantastic and the stylized in manner are in too close touch always to avoid clashing. But some of the purely fantastic scenes were excellently done, not only on the stage but by ingenious use of shadows on the back drop.

As technicians the members of the ballet are greatly improved since Mr. Novikoff took charge a year ago. Harriet Lundgren as the gypsy girl did some beautiful dancing, as did Julia Barashkova as the spirit of the flame. Pedro, who lost his life in the duel, had two actors: Bentley Stone as the living character and Sven Larsen as his specter. Edward Caton and Michael Arshansky completed the cast, and there was a large ensemble.

It is necessary to add that the music was conducted with the utmost charm and brilliancy by Frank St. Leger, the opera orchestra playing and the voice of Jenny Tourel being added as an extra orchestra feature.

Public's Heroizing of Criminal Called One Reason for Crime

The $13,000,000,000 annual crime bill in the United States is an outgrowth of slow and clumsy laws, public sentiment, poverty and unemployment, Joshua L. Johns of Appleton, Wis., member of the board of trustees of Kiwanis International, told the trustees yesterday in their annual conference at the Drake hotel.

Mr. Johns blamed public opinion as the leading cause for the growth of organized crime, assailing the attitude which, he said, tends to make heroes of daring criminals and which discourages the prosecution of the lawless.

"Decent Citizens" Under Fire.

"Ours is the only civilized nation that allows such wholesale lawlessness to go unpunished," Mr. Johns said, "and one of the saddest things in our civic life is to find men, looked upon as decent, law abiding citizens, permitting bribery and corruption, and even going so far as to criticize the prosecution of wrongdoers."

The "clumsy, technical and slow procedure" required by the administration of present laws contributes much to benefit the criminal, Mr. Johns said, deploring the antiquated American legal system as compared with Canada's.

Unemployment a Factor.

Poverty and lack of employment are the other principal causes of organized crime, Mr. Johns declared, calling attention to the growth in lawlessness during the existence of periods of industrial inactivity and hard times. He said there had been 26 bank robberies in Wisconsin so far this year.

In combating crime, he said, Kiwanis could play an important part in its field of citizenship activities and vocational guidance of the nation's youth.

SPANISH RIOTING SUBSIDES; NATION BACK TO NORMAL

MADRID, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Labor disorders which followed last week's general strike had subsided throughout the kingdom today and the country appeared to have returned to normal.

Workers were back at their jobs in virtually every center to which the strike extended. At Barcelona, where the disorders reached their peak, transportation had been restored, the stores were doing a normal business and the situation seemed to have cleared.

Nevertheless, the government had not relaxed its vigilance, and police remained ready for any emergency.

HUNGARIAN HEAD DENIES RETURN OF OTTO IMPENDS

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Premier Bethlen of Hungary today said that all rumors of an impending return by Archduke Otto, pretender to the Hungarian throne, were without foundation.

"Even Hungarian legitimists," he said, "have acknowledged that the monarchial question can be settled only by parliament and the parliament is fully aware of the international and domestic complications which would result from raising this issue now or in the immediate future."

3,000 CONTEST IN FIGHT TO RAISE CHILD'S STATUS

Give Hoover Pledge to Carry Out Program.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—President Hoover's White House conference on child health and protection, which opened three days ago with his plea for harmony, closed this morning with a unanimous pledge of harmony to him.

In between had been three turbulent days of controversy between two of the four main sections of the conference. The public health service and administration division had insistently recommended that all child health, infancy and maternity work be transferred from the children's bureau to the public health service, and the section on the handicapped had maintained that the work ought to be kept where it now is.

In the fight Chicago delegates took an active part in supporting the position of Miss Grace Abbott, a former Chicagoan, and head of the children's bureau. Indeed, it was largely through their efforts that this morning's final report removed the question, as being too contentious, from the list of conference recommendations and handed it on to a continuing committee to be appointed by the President.

Miss Abbott Leads Pledge.

As further evidence of harmony, it was Miss Abbott herself who made this speech to Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, chairman of the conference:

"I move you that you convey to the President a pledge—which I hope this conference will take—that from this day forward all of us will work harder than ever for the welfare of the children of America."

Turning to the 3,000 delegates and associates: "Will all of you who will take this pledge please stand."

The 3,000 stood, and the conference closed with a surface harmony that seemed sincere.

O, yes. There was the old time row between the psychologists and the psychiatrists as to which should psych the other. But they're pretty philosophic about that.

Wilbur Speaks for Hoover.

Then Secretary Wilbur gave the administration's appreciation in these words:

"I have just received a message from the President. He sends his heartfelt gratitude for your voluntary attendance at this conference, so near to his heart."

And the child experts of the nation left Constitution hall to carry back to the cities and the cross roads a proposal for universal county health organization, coöperating with state programs, and served by a national scientific statistical body.

The immediate step recommended is a state conference, called by the governor of every state, to bring nearer at hand these minimum standards to which the conference feels every child in America is entitled.

Program Is Outlined.

Briefly compacted, these minimum standards are:

The right to be understood, the right to be well born, with the mother receiving adequate prenatal care; periodic health examinations, dental examinations and care, protection from communicable disease and from impure milk and food, proper sleeping rooms and diet, proper school rooms, vocational guidance, some form of religious, moral, and character training, time to play, supervised recreation, protection from child labor, special training for the handicapped, support for the waif and orphan, personalized community welfare work, extended work for the rural child, and special attention to the subnormal.

ORDER VOIDING KEGEL DIVORCE PUT IN RECORD

Finis was written yesterday to the divorce case of Health Commissioner and Mrs. Arnold H. Kegel when Circuit Judge Craig A. Hood in Chicago Heights, who last week signed an order setting the decree aside, had the order entered in the official record. It was made retroactive to Oct. 1.

Charging cruelty, Mrs. Kegel on Sept. 25 was granted the divorce, the news of which was suppressed. However, she and Dr. Kegel were almost immediately reconciled. Through an oversight by Mrs. Kegel's attorney the petition to have the decree set aside was not presented until last week.

ASHEVILLE, N.C. GOES BROKE IN BANKING CRISIS

$8,000,000 of Its Funds Tied Up.

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 22.—(AP)—With more than eight million dollars of public funds tied up through the closing of three banks, the city of Asheville and Buncombe county today cast about for means of relieving a strained financial situation.

The county, faced with greater difficulties, suspended all payments from its treasury until next week, while "strictest economy" was the word passed down the line to city employés. The county today had in banks open and operating, $483,000, while its deposits in three banks which closed were $3,404,203.

In the Central Bank and Trust company, largest bank in this section, the county had $3,007,000 when it closed Thursday. Thirteen other banks suspended operation following its closing.

Faces Interest Payment.

In the American National bank and the Biltmore-Oteen bank, two of them, the county had $263,203 and $134,000, respectively.

Among the problems the county faces is meeting one interest payment of $102,000 on Dec. 1 and another of $86,000 on Jan. 1.

Although the city had $4,653,112.42 in the Central Bank and Trust company, its financial future appeared brighter than that of the county.

"Every dollar that the city had in the Central bank is secured by collateral," said Mayor Gallatin Roberts.

Cashier Is Arrested.

Gastonia, N. C., Nov. 22.—(AP)—T. P. Rankin, cashier of the Bank of Lowell, which closed Thursday, was charged with embezzlement of $24,000 of the bank's funds in a warrant sworn out here today. He was bound over to Superior court under $15,000 bond.

Bank Will Reopen.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Percy H. Johnston, president of the Chemical Bank and Trust company, New York, and associates have taken over the Security bank, which was closed here this week, and the bank will be reopened for business Monday, Charles H. Bohmer, chairman of the Security board, and George Gutig, president, announced today.

Tennessee Bank Closes.

Newport, Tenn., Nov. 22.—(AP)—The First National bank, capitalized at $50,000, closed today. J. A. Fisher, president, said the closing was decided upon because of "steady and heavy withdrawals the last few days." This brought to eight the total number of banks in Tennessee that have closed this month.

Two More in Missouri.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Closing of two more Missouri state banks was announced today at the state finance department. One in southeast Missouri, the Doniphan State bank at Doniphan, which had $361,700 total resources, was closed temporarily, while the other, the Pike County bank at Bowling Green, in northeast Missouri, had $222,300 resources. No reason was given for its closing by its officers.

PETERSON TO GO ABROAD.

Charles S. Peterson, vice president of the 1933 World's Fair, will sail for Europe next Tuesday on the Mauretania from New York. The purpose of his trip is to visit ten continental cities by airplane, starting at Paris, to explain progress on fair plans and plead for co-operation on the part of foreign countries.

7-Day 'VITALEX' Wonder Test Amazes Chicago Doctor

Eminent Physician Declares No Other Medicine Brings About Improvement in Health and Appearance Like Vitalex

WILLIAM T. WELCH, M. D., 2953 W. 55th St., Chicago, a very prominent physician for sixteen years, enthusiastically recommends Vitalex. He tells us: "My faith in the health-giving power of Vitalex is based on the results it has brought to myself and to the number of run-down, tired, worn-out patients to whom I have recommended it.

"There is not one man or woman in a thousand who can truthfully say that he or she wakes up every morning fully refreshed, happy, ready for a full day of ambitious endeavor, whether business or social. If YOU happen to be that one person in a thousand who does make such a claim you do not need Vitalex. But if you wake up almost as tired as when you went to bed, your legs ache, you are troubled with headaches, gas, indigestion, no appetite, bad breath, sallow complexion, or a host of other ailments, then I sincerely recommend an immediate trial of Vitalex.

"Vitalex will give you a richer, deeper sleep than you have experienced in a long time without the use of harmful, drastic drugs. It will relieve constipation naturally, and with it will go a multitude of ailments.

"I do not say that Vitalex is any miracle medicine. Results show only after a fair trial, but I can most truthfully say that it is a rare combination of herbal juices for elimination of poisons, for the proper toning up of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and that the vitamins contained therein bring about a rebuilding and revitalizing of the body that makes you feel and look like a new person."

Dr. William T. Welch, M. D.

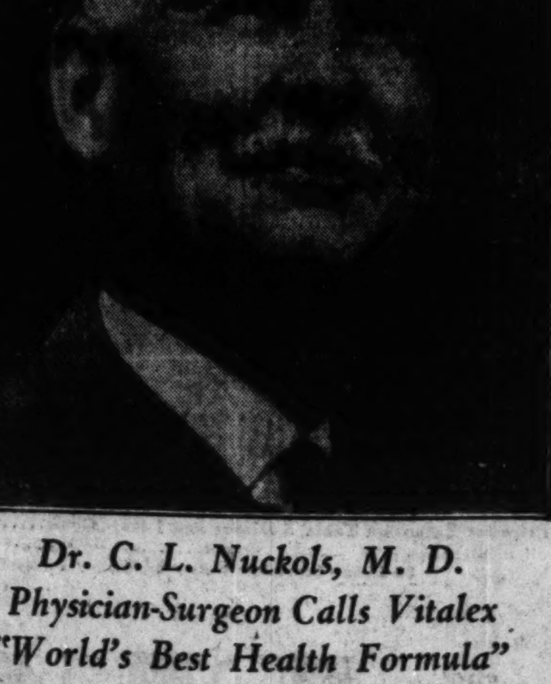
Vim, Vigor and Vitality Through Metabolic Action on System

The three "V's," Vim, Vigor and Vitality can be found in the sparkling eyes, winning poise, carriage, courage, ambition and achievement of those persons who see to it that their bodies are enriched by the other three "V's," the three Vitamins, B, C and D.

Just how Vitamins work is not easily understood by lay folk—the doctors, the hospitals, the clinics, the specialists, these men have found after thousands of tests that Vitamins are those elements stored in fresh fruits, in certain oils, mute fresh vegetables and other foods which are life-sustaining and positive essentials in building health as nature intended. Vitamins supply life in concentrated form, palatable, ready to take and assimilate with ordinary meals. Vitalex, the New Day Tonic and Food Supplement, contains Vitamins B, C and D.



Dr. C. L. Nuckols, M. D. Physician-Surgeon Calls Vitalex "World's Best Health Formula"

Dr. Nuckols of Baltimore, Md., has carefully tested Vitalex in many cases and advises every run-down, tired out, constipated person to try Vitalex and see how quickly their outlook on life changes.

Dr. Nuckols tells us, "You must be aware that the herbs in your preparation bring about a natural elimination of body poisons. I find that constipation vanishes when Vitalex is used, that the bile flow is increased and that the sluggish liver and congested kidneys get back to normal functioning. With the elimination of these poisons go the pains and gas on the stomach, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, muddy complexion, foul breath and loss of ambition."

Headaches, Sleeplessness, Gas Vanish as Vitalex Puts Badly Run-Down Woman on Her Feet Again

Never had any faith in drastic patent medicines that never gave more than a temporary relief. Herbal and Vitamin content of Vitalex appealed to her. Felt better from the beginning and has not had a bad day since.

"I've been in a rundown, debilitated condition for some time but it seemed that nothing helped me. My friends advised me to try the new Vitamized Vitalex which is helping so many others and I certainly am glad I did," are the words of Miss Sophie Collier, 1801 Wisconsin Ave., Milwaukee.

"During the last year I had such pains in my legs and body I felt like I had been severely beaten. I also had cramping pains in my stomach. I slept poorly because my nerves were on edge and my bowels were constipated. I lost my appetite and went down to where I only weighed 86 pounds.

"I've never seen medicine help anyone as Vitalex has me. I now sleep well, have a good appetite, the pains in my stomach are gone and the constipation has passed off. I have already gained several pounds and know I will soon weigh exactly what I should."

Health Leader Acclaims Vitaminized Vitalex Discoverers

"His Safe Formula Fills Needs of Millions," They Say. Run-Down, Tired Out, Weak, Ailing People Show Prompt Improvement.

Dr. Johnson, who formulated the original medicine, had in mind a prescription which would prevent constipation and its attendant loss of sleep and nerve force. He sought a perfect formula which would aid those whose appetites were poor, who had body poison in their systems which prevent proper nutritive values being absorbed by the body. As the physician practiced and experimented he created a formula which was found in thousands of trials to be efficacious in some of the most stubborn and chronic cases of rheumatism, kidney and liver complaints, stomach trouble, loss of appetite, loss of sleep and disorders resulting from a poisoned "jangled" nervous system.

Was Extremely Nervous—Had Bad Spells of Indigestion and Backache. Well and Happy Now.

Mrs. Carpenter Gives Full Credit to Vitalex for Making Life Worth While After Years of Suffering.

"Things certainly have brightened up and life now seems worth while, thanks to Vitalex," says Mrs. Gladys Carpenter.

"For years I was extremely nervous and irritable, so that everything worried me and it was impossible to enjoy anything. To add to this discomfort I had frequent bad spells of indigestion and backache. You can imagine my condition and appreciate how miserable I was. I tried many medicines without any benefit, but noticed your Vitalex advertisement and I can truthfully say I noticed an improvement almost from the start. I am very calm and can enjoy everything now. The indigestion and backache have entirely disappeared."

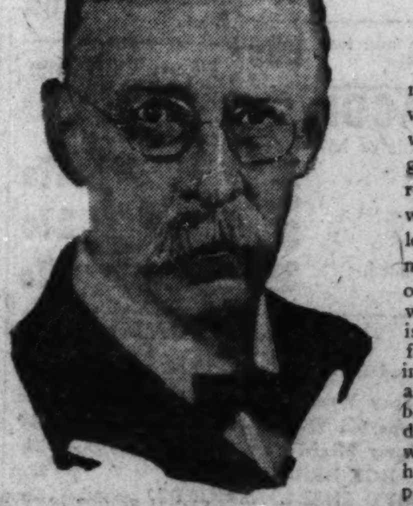
are just what you need to carry in your pocket or purse, so as to have Vitalex whenever you want it. The true value of liquid Vitalex concentrated in a small "easy to take" tablet.

Dr. F. W. Hartley-Hellyer, Nationally Recognized for Medical Ability, Endorses Vitalex



Vitalex contains vitamins. Science tells you vitamins build health, vigor and beauty. What goes on inside of you is reflected in every outward appearance. Your looks, your ambition, your mentality. There is only one way in which to feel well and look well—that is to bring about a perfect co-ordination of every internal organ—the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. When that condition comes about you will marvel at your own health, strength and appearance.

90% of Adults Guilty of Constipation!

Doctors who have conducted research tests in hospitals, clinics and in private practice say that 90% of the people walking the streets are constipated. What causes it? Wrong food, neglect of regular excretory time habits, lack of exercise, too slow, overworked or sluggish liver. And YOU! Are you guilty of the neglect of a simple, natural act which may poison you—even kill you? Try Vitalex.

Drive Dark Rings From Under Eyes Gain Strength

Dark tell-tale rings under the eyes were not there when you were a child. Why are they there now? Do you eat too much, wrong kind of foods, worry and work? Nature has a way of chasing the "blue rings" away when health returns. Even worries do not come so frequently or press so hard on the shoulders of those in good health. Vitalex is the way to be happy and carefree once more through health.

U. S. ANOTHER MILLION OUT ON YUKON RAILWAY

Famous White Elephant True to Form.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Losses continue to pile up for the government in the operation of the Alaska railroad, according to the annual report of the governor of the territory, George A. Parks, to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, made public today.

The operating deficit for the 500 miles of railroad, in which the government has sunk upwards of $70,000,000 in capital investment and losses, was $1,231,998 in the fiscal year 1930, an increase of $281,287, or 30 per cent, over the deficit of $950,711 in the fiscal year 1929.

There was a decrease of 0.4 per cent in freight revenues, 6.7 per cent in passenger revenues, and 73.5 per cent in revenue from the sale of power. The decrease in freight revenues and about one-third of the decrease in passenger business was due to less traffic on the Yukon river, one of the consequences of scarcity of fur bearers in the lower Yukon country.

Slump Reaches to Yukon.

The remainder of the decrease in passenger receipts was ascribed partly to cancellation of tourist reservations last summer, as a result of bad business conditions prevailing in the United States.

In spite of the original contention of those who induced congress during the Wilson administration to approve a government railroad in Alaska that it would result in a rapid development of the territory and that it would soon be a paying investment it has always been operated at a loss. Back in 1923 the operating deficit was $1,800,000. It fell below $1,000,000 for the first time in 1927, amounting to a little more than $800,000. It was some greater in 1928 and 1929, and in 1930 has gone considerably above the $1,000,000 mark. Altogether the government has spent about $55,000,000 in capital investment in the railroad and operating losses have amounted to $13,500,000.

Population Increasing.

Gov. Parks notes with approval an increase of 4,200, or 7 per cent, in the population of Alaska in the recent census over 1920.

There was an increase of more than $2,000,000 in the mineral production of the territory, a balance of trade in favor of Alaska of $36,914,722, and a decrease of $3,749,769, or 6.8 per cent, in the products of fisheries in the calendar year 1929.

RAIL WORKER DIES OF INJURIES.

Centralia, Ill., Nov. 22.—(AP)—W. Moreland, employed by the Illinois Central railroad here as a switchman, died in St. Mary's hospital today from injuries received yesterday when he stepped between two railroad cars and was run over. His right leg was severed above the knee.

GIRL EX-JUSTICE CONVICTED IN EXTORTION PLOT

Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Miss Helen Carr of Chicago, Knox county's first woman justice of the peace, and her uncle, David Farrell, 49, were found guilty of extortion by threats by a jury in Circuit court this afternoon.

Sentence was deferred by Judge George G. Hillyer pending arguments on a motion for a new trial. The verdict carries a penalty of from one to twenty years in the penitentiary.

Charges He Was "Framed."

The complaining witness in the case was Dennis E. Sullivan, 70. He charged that Miss Carr and Farrell, his neighbors, "framed" him when he answered the girl's request that he come to her home at midnight in order to discuss arrangements for her to enter some line of business that would take her out of town and away from Farrell, who, she told Sullivan, had abused her.

He said the girl left him sitting in the living room and returned in a few minutes clad only in a kimono. Then Farrell rushed in, armed with a knife, and announced that "you'll pay for this, or you won't get out of the house alive," according to Sullivan's testimony. The two forced him to sign a note for $25,000 and to write on a piece of paper that it was given without coercion or threats, he declared.

Note Put in Judgment.

The note, which was made on demand to Miss Carr, was put in judgment in Chicago in January, 1929. It was accepted in evidence. Sullivan said that the next day Farrell told him the note had been destroyed and Miss Carr, he said, also gave him to so understand, and he believed that such was the case until he learned that it had been entered in judgment.

Farrell testified he had no knowledge of the charges made by Sullivan, and Miss Carr declared Sullivan had given her the note in her office here, of his own free will, after telling her she should get into some other work.

Gave Her $1,500 Draft.

It was brought out in evidence that Sullivan had given the woman a cashier's draft for $1,500 shortly after the note was drawn. Miss Carr claimed that this was to enable her to buy an interest in a chain of stores in Chicago and that it was part payment on the note. Sullivan called the $1,500 gift a "gesture to get the woman out of town so she would stop bothering me."

Miss Carr resigned her justice position here after her business dwindled when she married George Lewis, who was haled into her court one night on a charge of bootlegging. She claimed that she never lived with him, and they were later divorced.

FIND COW MOOSE SHOT IN MICHIGAN.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Conservation officers today found a dying cow moose weighing 800 pounds lying in the woods near Strongs, Mich., where it had been shot by a misguided deer hunter. This is the second time this fall that moose have been shot in this area, where until recent years the huge animals have been extinct.

REPLICA OF FLAG AT VALLEY FORGE UNFURLED THERE

Valley Forge, Pa., Nov. 22.—(AP)—A duplicate of Gen. George Washington's headquarters' flag, designed after years of historical research, was unfurled at Washington's headquarters in Valley Forge park today. The flag is made of standard navy blue bunting, six feet by six and one-half feet, on which are sewed thirteen white stars of six points each. The stars are arranged in a circle almost equal in diameter to the width of the flag.

INDIANA HARBOR BRIDGE FINISHED; DETOUR ENDED

One of the most bothersome detours in the Chicago district has been eliminated with the completion of a bridge over the ship canal at Indiana Harbor. This detour on U. S. highways 12 and 20 compelled motorists traveling around the south end of the lake toward Gary and the Indiana dunes to go about a mile out of the way along narrow thoroughfares, with consequent severe traffic congestion on Sundays and holidays. The detour has been in effect since last spring.

MICHIGAN SHARES TITLE; WHIPS CHICAGO, 16-0

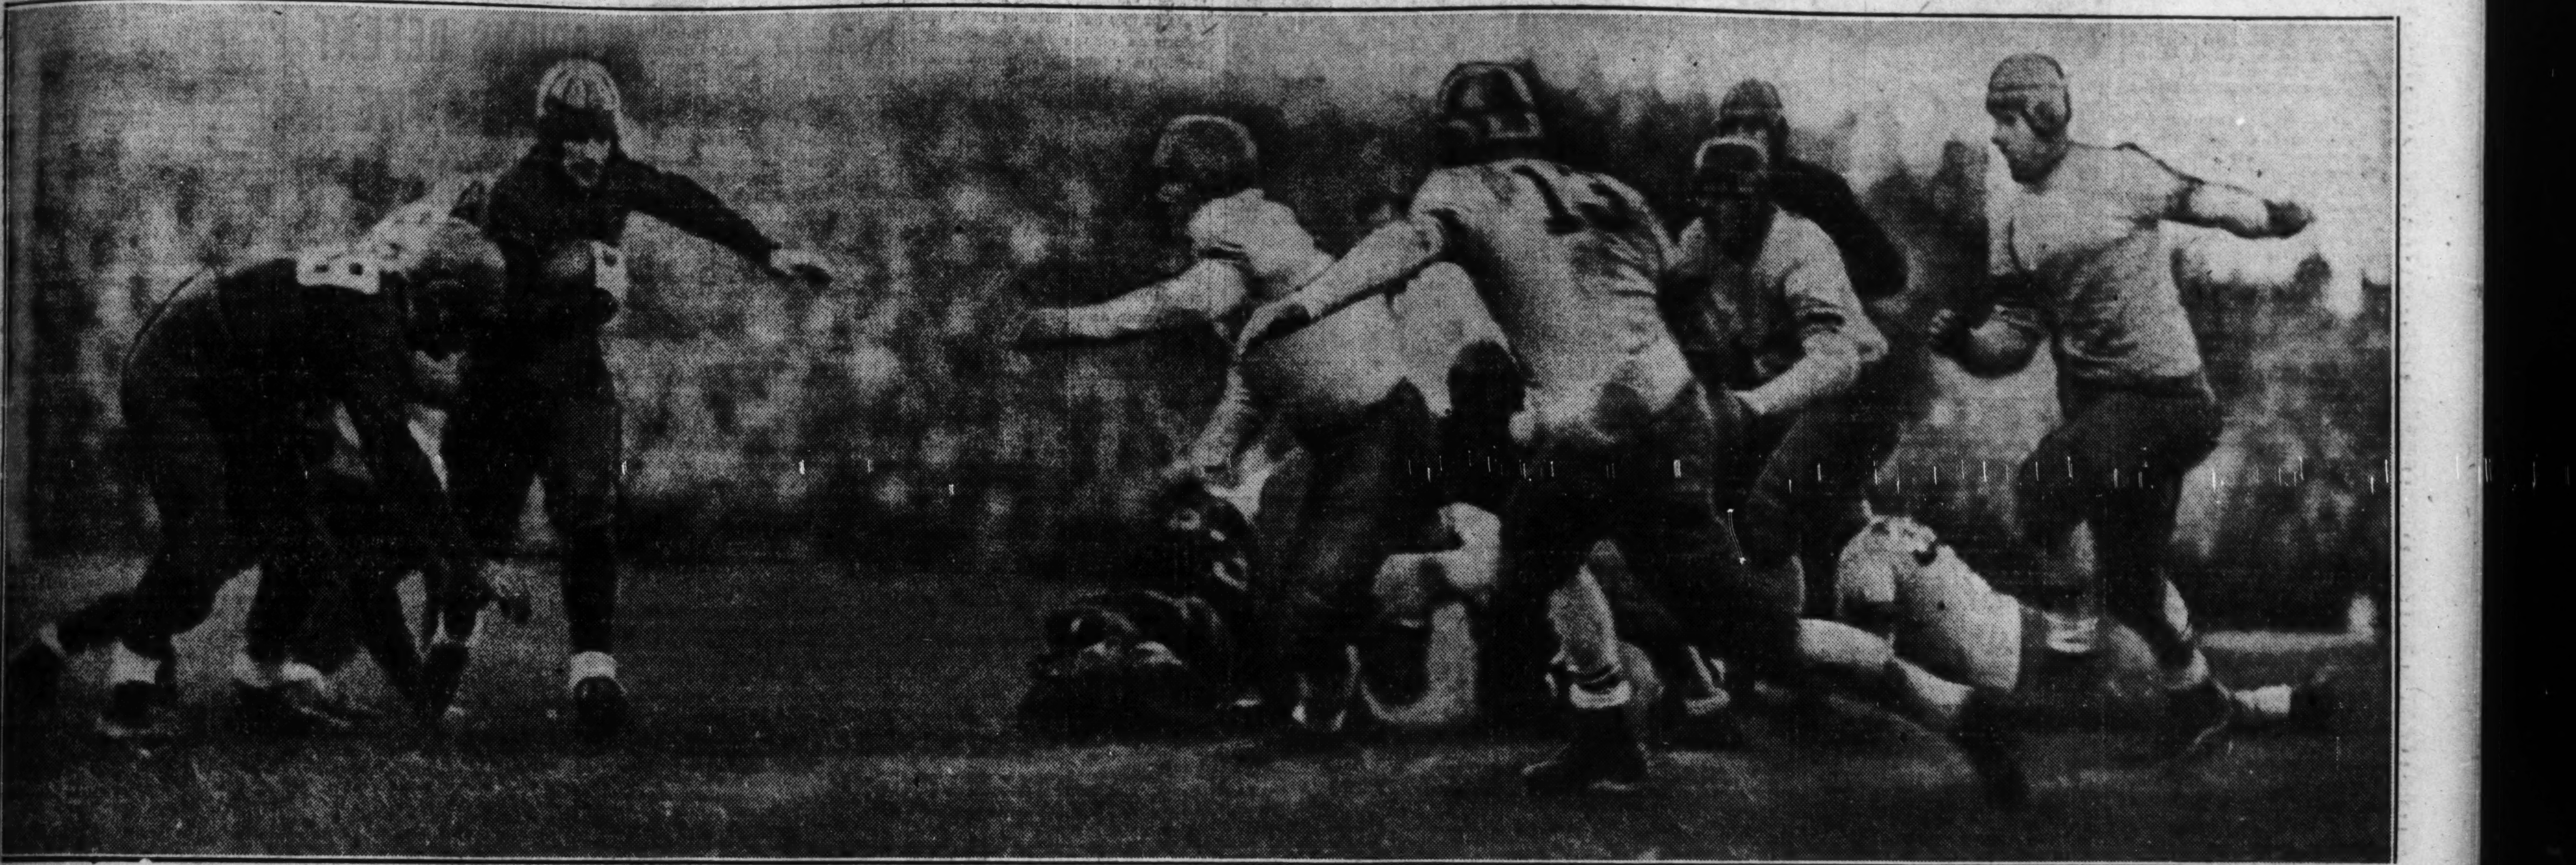
WHEN NOTRE DAME BACKS STARTED GOALWARD DRIVE



Marchmont Schwartz paves the way for Notre Dame's eighth straight victory of the season. With the ball on Northwestern's 27 yard line in the fourth quarter, the elusive Irish half back streaked through the line between tackle and end, raced across the field almost to the sidelines and scampered over the goal line. That play, which had failed earlier, meant defeat to the Purple, who resorted to passes in their own territory, with the result that the Irish passed and pounded their way over for a second score. The crowd of 48,000 was served a thrilling battle, a contest which shattered Northwestern's seven game winning streak. Player No. 13 is Capt. Hank Bruder of Northwestern.

20,000 WATCH SOUTH SIDERS TAKE CROWN

Pilney and Mellies Lead to Victory.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Another great Lindblom football team made good where last year's eleven failed by coming from behind yesterday to defeat a fighting Harrison team, 13 to 6, for the championship of the City league at Soldiers' field. The South Siders vindicated themselves for their surprising defeat in the 1929 final before a crowd estimated at 20,000. Proceeds of the game were turned over to the Children's Aid society to be used in purchasing shoes and clothing for the destitute children of the public schools.

It was the fourth city title in five championship appearances for Lindblom, which is a comparatively young school in City league competition, having entered in 1920. The powerful running attack which had produced nine straight victories prior to yesterday's battle didn't begin to click until the second quarter, but from there on it was not to be halted.

Harrison's Strength Surprises.

For a team that hadn't been in the championship limelight for eight years Harrison gave the stronger south side team a more difficult afternoon's work than it had anticipated. It also gave the Lindblom supporters a scare by pushing over a touchdown early in the second quarter.

The individual heroes of the game were Andy Pilney of Harrison and Elmer Mellies of Lindblom. It was Pilney who broke away for a 45 yard run near the end of the first period and placed the ball on Lindblom's four yard line, whence a series of plunges culminated with Capt. Steve Kubic taking the ball over. Lindblom had been warned of Pilney's running ability and he lived up to advance reports, although the south siders organized parties of four and five tacklers to stop him after that one long dash. He was injured shortly before the half ended, but returned in the third period.

Mellies stood out even in a back field that had three other stars in Ralph Mack, Frank Chorvat and Chuck Ziman. The redheaded Elmer tied the score on a plunge in the second quarter, broke away for a number of good gains in the last half and intercepted two passes.

Pilney Gets Good Support.

Pilney was given ample support in the Harrison back field by Capt. Kubic, George Baxa and Frank Leonetti. In the line Frank Kopczak, Jim Horvath, Morris Klein and Abe Shper featured for Harrison, while Dan Lazarevich, Capt. Bob Finlay, Ed. Wolfenson and Bob Keenan stood out for the winners.

After Lindblom had kicked off Harrison failed to gain and Kopczak punted. Mellies hammered the Harrison line for a first down on the initial play but fumbled on the next and the West Siders recovered. Har-

Joe Savoldi Signs to Play with Bears

Joe Savoldi, who last week withdrew from Notre Dame to avoid expulsion, last night signed a contract to play professional football with the Chicago Bears.

Savoldi, who has been regarded as the outstanding full back of 1930 football, will be with the Bears when they play an exhibition game at Cincinnati, O., today against the Ironton team, coached by Greasy Neal. He is not expected to get into the game, however, as Managers Halas and Sternaman want him to spend a day looking over the pro style of play. He will make his first appearance against the Cardinals Thanksgiving day.

Savoldi had planned to join the Green Bay Packers next season. Both Joe and the Green Bay officials were under the impression that he was ineligible for competition this year. There is a rule in the National Professional league which bars teams from signing college players until their class has been graduated.

Halas and Sternaman contend that as long as Savoldi, in effect, was expelled from Notre Dame he no longer is a member of the 1931 graduating class.

Savoldi wants to play football. That is why he switched his allegiance from the Packers to the Bears. He is under contract to the Bears for next season also.

COCHRAN BEATS HOPPE, 3,600-2,815, FOR CUE CROWN

New York, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Welker Cochran of Hollywood, dethroned Willie Hoppe as world's 18.1 balkline billiards champion, in their championship match completed tonight, 3,600 to 2,815.

Hoppe had the satisfaction of winning the last block, scoring 448 points while Cochran was making the 300 he needed to win the title and the diamond medal that goes with it.

Cochran really clinched the title in the first seven blocks, all of which he won. In these blocks he piled up a lead of more than 1,000 points and Hoppe's closing rally failed to overcome the deficit. Of the 12 blocks, Cochran won nine and Hoppe three.

The new champion scored his 3,600 points in 107 innings, for an average of 33 69-107, a new record in competitive 18.1 balkline play. The old record of 31 was set by Hoppe in 1910 in a 500 point match. Hoppe himself compiled the excellent average of 26 33-107.

The feature of the final block was Hoppe's string of 149 in the sixth inning. For the second block in the even dozen played, Cochran failed to collect a run of 100 or better.

Southern Methodist Rolls Over Rice Institute, 32-0

Houston, Tex., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Southern Methodist university smothered Rice institute here today, 32 to 0, alternating their famous aerial attack with other standard varieties. The young Rice team held its more experienced rivals during the first quarter, and in the last few minutes of play uncorked a desperate attempt to score, featured by a 50 yard pass.

WHAT ROCKNE TOLD IRISH—AT HALF AND FINISH

Squad Takes Victory Without Uproar.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There are times when the playing of a winning rôle doesn't bring on the unbounded display of enthusiasm you'd expect. It was that way with Notre Dame's football players when they trooped into their quarters under Dyche stadium after yesterday's tussle. Sharing the atmosphere with the pungent odor of liniments was a heavy silence. The boys were so glad to be relieved unblemished from a herculean task that they couldn't yell.

They didn't gather 'round in story book fashion to give the old college yell. They probably couldn't even remember how it went, but they did remember what had been told to them between halves.

Their coach, Knute Rockne, the master psychologist, had told them in sharp language that they were playing the cream of the Big Ten and couldn't win unless they began to show something. They went out and showed it. Then when it was over Rockne himself lapsed into a mellow mood from which emerged none of the crisp wise cracks for which he is famous.

What Rockne Said to Team.

How Rockne started his between halves address was to mention that Notre Dame was playing rotten football.

"You are up against the Big Ten champions and you are being heavily whipped. You'll never beat them playing as you played thus far. Your blocking is bad. Your tackling is ragged. It's four years since we've played a conference champion. It will be more than four years before we beat another champion unless you change.

"I'm not questioning your guts," he yelled. "You have that. But you've got some class hidden somewhere and you haven't shown it. Go back there and show that the absence of Joe Savoldi can't keep you on the ropes."

Gives Individual Tips.

Rockne then told different men among his regulars just what the Purple was doing to them. Some were being outcharged. Others weren't going in low enough. The interference wasn't clicking as it had been all fall for the Irish running game. He wound up by asking that the passing game be turned loose. He had wanted to save that for the emergencies which may arise again in the Army and Southern California games.

There were no words of censure for those who had committed fumbles which came dangerously close to being fatal.

"Those are part of the game," he shouted. "Don't be depressed because you made them. Forget it and try not to let it happen again."

After the game, Rockne, instead of Capt. Tom Conley of Notre Dame missed two passes which might have become touchdowns, but he didn't let this throw escape him late in the final quarter. He is halted after grabbing the ball on Northwestern's one yard line. Dan Hanley, substitute full back, plunged over for the second touchdown on the next play.

Notre Dame Play Puts Star Eastern Elevens in Shade

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

The cause of law and order, which has stood in some need of assistance in this quarter, received a slight boost yesterday afternoon when Notre Dame and Northwestern played their game at Dyche stadium in Evanston, a cramped arena holding about 50,000 people, instead of moving the show down to the big plant on the Chicago lake front, which holds twice as many.

The Western conference, of which Northwestern is a member, declined to sanction the removal of the game to the big arena on the ground that to do so would be to violate a rule. Consequently, the ticket scalpers got the excess revenue and the destitute, who might have received some relief in their present jobless desperation, got nothing more satisfying than a fine example in the strict observance of the rules.

It is probable that Northwestern university will advance a fund of $100,000 for the unemployed, but if there had been more of pity and less fastidious respect for the rules, the fund probably would have amounted to nearly twice as much.

Irish Outshine Eastern Teams.

The Notre Dame team, which beat Northwestern by two touchdowns with the attending extra points for the goals, played a game of football such as no eastern team has been able to play this year and, although there will be no chance for a direct comparison, it seems quite unlikely that the great Yale line would be able to impede Notre Dame appreciably. Albie Booth has not been as dangerous as his reputation this year, and it would not be fair to attempt to visualize him in a game against Notre Dame to his detriment, because he wouldn't have a comparable team. The Dartmouth team, some of whom watched yesterday's game while stopping over in Chicago on their way to California, probably would have been no better than Yale if they had been on the ground themselves.

The direct test will come next Saturday when the Army, undefeated and a team which exemplifies the best there is in eastern football this year, plays Notre Dame at Soldiers' field. The Army has been playing fancy football this year, using a style of attack which necessitates elaborate bowing, pirouetting, passing, and faking, and the intricacies of their work have only recently been reduced to habit.

Ohio's Early Attack Beats Illinois, 12-9

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 22. — Illinois' three year supremacy over Ohio State ended this afternoon, for the Buckeyes, who hadn't crossed an Illini goal line since 1926, twice forward passed to touchdowns in the first quarter and then repelled the fighting Illini to win their sixth battle in the thirty years, 12 to 9. Twenty thousand watched the struggle.

No title was at stake. The victor only could win a place among the first five conference teams. But no such incentive was needed. Rather it was the season's annual climax, a day set apart by Buckeye and Illini and for which each long has summoned its greatest brilliance in ancient battle.

Ohio Takes Early Lead.

Ohio State, conqueror of Pittsburgh and the Navy, led by the mighty Fesler, a worthy leader, played with precision in the first quarter. Ohio seized its openings, scoring on passes when failure meant loss of the ball. In less than 15 minutes the Scarlet and Gray piled up its advantage and seemed able to continue at the pace it had set.

But Illinois came back. Defeat has been the Illini portion more times than not this year. Its errors often have brought about those losses. Indeed, a fumble this afternoon created the first Ohio touchdown. But Illinois came back and only the fortunes of gridiron combat, over which no team has control, prevented those Illini from taking the lead in the second period.

50,000 ATTEND FIRST BIG TEN CHARITY GAME

Maroons Helpless to Stop Wolverines.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 22.—The University of Michigan football team shares the Big Ten championship with Northwestern. The Wolverines raced into a tie for the title when they beat the Maroons from the University of Chicago before a charity day crowd of about 50,000 here this afternoon, 16 to 0.

It was the fifth straight Western conference victory the Michigan team has rolled up. The Maroons were crushed beneath the same brilliant drive that previously had overthrown Purdue, Ohio State, Illinois, and Minnesota.

The Wolverines conquered the Maroons and drove through to their half of the Big Ten championship in true Michigan style. They took an early lead in the second quarter when Hozer sent them to the front with a place kick from the 20 yard line. They added a touchdown in the third period, and they were content to protect their advantage from then until near the finish, when another touchdown was registered.

Maroons Threaten Once.

The Maroons, playing a spectacular defensive game, were helpless when they went on the offensive. Only once were they in a scoring position. That was at the beginning of the first quarter, when Harry Newman fumbled on the opening kickoff and Wallace recovered the ball on Michigan's 20 yard line.

The Maroons made six yards on the next three plays. Then they lost the ball and the only chance they ever had of crossing the Michigan goal line went glimmering.

This was the first charity game ever played in the Western conference. Less than 50,000 watched it, although it was a typical cold, crisp football day with plenty of sunshine. But the charity game tickets have been on sale throughout the state of Michigan. It is believed that 65,000 or perhaps 70,000 of them have been sold. It will provide a charity fund of some $120,000. Michigan charities will get about $80,000, Chicago charity will get about half that amount, if this estimate of ticket sales is correct. It may be a week before the final checkup on the charity game ticket sales is made.

The Wolverines clearly outplayed the Maroons. They made 14 first downs to Chicago's four. Chicago's punts off the toes of Knudson and Kanne averaged 46 yards, while the punts of Simrall for Michigan averaged 35 yards.

Michigan completed five of 12 passes

HANLEY TEARFUL, PLAYERS CALM AFTER DOWNFALL

Coach Has No Criticism for Purple Team.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The big tears in Coach Hanley's eyes after yesterday's game belied his pre-game statement that the Notre Dame-Northwestern clash was "just another ball game." Dick was brokenhearted, for he thought his outfit was entitled to win on their work in the first 53 minutes of the 60 minutes of play.

"I'll have to admit that we tossed one out of the window after showing the way until the last stages of the game," Dick said. "And I'll have to admit the outcome has sort of bowled me over.

"The seniors who played their last game today came to Northwestern when I did, four years ago. They have been my boys since they arrived as green freshies in 1927. I suppose this state of affairs gave me a sentimental interest which added to my desire to see the fellows bow out of college competition with a victory over another great team.

"The fellows played their hearts out all the way and for more than five-sixths of the game they were superior to Notre Dame in every department of play, except forward passing. Our line outcharged Notre Dame's, our running attack was superb and while there were two fumbles inside the five yard line they afforded nothing to moan about, for the ball was in proximity to our goal on those occasions because of breaks against Notre Dame that made the misfortune a standoff."

Coach Hanley would not praise any of his players above the others and he flatly refused to discuss the penalty which many observers considered the break of the game—the fifteen yard penalty which immediately preceded Notre Dame's first touchdown of the game, deep in the last quarter.

Coaches sometimes are bitter in their criticism of a player who causes his team to be penalized because of loss of temper, but Coach Hanley spoke no words of bitterness to the overeager lad who cuffed an adversary and caused the tragic setback when Notre Dame had fourth down and 15 yards to go.

"The penalty was unfortunate, but I'll never put it on a basis of personal criticism," Dick said.

Not Outclassed, He Says.

"I don't think there were many unbiased spectators who will say that there was 14 points difference in the teams as they played today. I think they were two great teams and I'll take issue with any one who says the best team won. We were not outclassed and a scoreless tie would have been a perfect expression of the relative strength of the two teams.

"After that rather sudden first touchdown there was naturally something of a panic on the part of our team. The second touchdown didn't hurt at all, for we were willing to risk everything in the desperate hope that we might get away with something that would tie up the game.

"I'm sick about the result and I didn't think I would be, even when I contemplated the possibility of defeat. But I will say that our sphere is the Big Ten and my praise goes to our team for winning the Western conference championship."

Coach Hanley said that his one consolation in yesterday's setback was the thought that observers of collegiate athletics soon will forget yesterday's game, but that reference to the 1930 Big Ten championship will continue throughout the years.

Won't Discuss Title.

When asked about Michigan's claim for a share of the championship, Coach Hanley said he was in no mood to launch a controversy with any other university in the conference.

"We won all of our Big Ten games and so did Michigan. Northwestern and Michigan did not play each other, but we had overlapping schedules. This can be made the basis of comparison between the two teams but it is no concern of mine."

The scene in the Wildcat dressing room after the game was quiet, but the players were unusually complacent. A few of the boys showed a tendency to share some of their coach's moroseness, but Capt. Hank Bruder was in a cheerful and philosophical mood and sought to kid the sad players out of their dejection.

"It was a great game," Hank said with a healthy grin. "Too bad we didn't win. But we didn't and that's that."

The officials, Col. H. B. Hackett, the referee; John Schommer, umpire; Fred Young, field judge, and Joe Lipp, head linesman, joined in saying it was one of the finest games between strong, evenly matched rivals that they ever had officiated.

"The game required only two hours and five minutes, one of the fastest games I ever worked," Col. Hackett commented. "This unusually fast time was made possible by the condition of the players, their fine preparation for the task at hand, and fine conduct considering the great rivalry between the two teams."

Indiana Students Celebrate Victory Over Old Rivals

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—More than 3,000 Indiana university students and hundreds of townspeople participated in a wild demonstration here this evening when word was received that the Indiana football team had defeated Purdue, Big Ten champions.

Bonfires were lighted on all corners of the public square and one block in each direction from the square. Co-eds assisted in directing yells and singing college songs. The fires flared up so high that Bloomington firemen had two trucks circling the business district and a near riot was precipitated when members of the student group attempted to wrest the hose from firemen trying to quench one of the fires. Attempts to rush moving picture houses were frustrated by the promise of the managers to put on free shows with pictures of today's game Tuesday.

Irish Play Tops That of East's Leading Teams

to be faltering in their offensive assignments while trying to recall their routine. They are big, strong football players and well conditioned, and the Army teams always approach Notre Dame games with an idea that if Notre Dame is to be licked they probably are the people to attend to it.

Still, the Army has no such certainty and precision as the Notre Dame outfit, which includes several players who are competent to take jobs as coaches right now and doubtless will take coaching jobs next season. Notre Dame is so thoroughly coached and the endurance of the men is so long that they should win and thus add further confirmation to their unspoken but thoroughly understood claim to the national football championship.

Savoldi's Absence Makes Difference.

Certainly Notre Dame missed Joe Savoldi, the full back who was so tactless as to wed himself a wife some time ago and consequently involve himself in some difficulty with the clergy at his school. Moon Mullins, who played full back in his place, was no such shocking agent on the attack, and young Dan Hanley, who relieved him, was unable to supply the lack, either.

Marty Brill was an elusive raider in the first few minutes of the game when Notre Dame seemed to get the jump on Northwestern and ran the ball to Northwestern's 15 yard line, recouping a 15 yard penalty on the way, but he couldn't maintain his dash. Consequently, Marchie Schwartz assumed most of the burden and Frank Carideo's deft soft punts close to the Northwestern goal were good for many yards of gains that the backs couldn't pick up in direct assaults.

Dartmouth started out this year as though the boys were destined to win unofficial recognition as the best team in the east, but in the Yale game they showed a lack that Knute Rockne's players seldom are guilty of. They didn't know how to block, and their attack was being broken down throughout the game when effective interference should have won for them. Rockne's players are swift, but always unhurried, and they play to get there with a coördination as close to the ideal as any football team can hope to approach, due largely to efficient teaching. Rockne as coach might have produced a champion football team at Dartmouth this year.

Irish Compared to Harry Greb.

Yesterday's fight was so hard that the Northwestern line seemed to sag in the latter stages of the game, but Notre Dame still had the stamina to keep going, like Harry Greb, the marvel of his time in the ring, who could start a fight at amazing speed and step up his gait round by round for 15 rounds. The Army seems unlikely to match this quality, which was the winning resource yesterday. Yale's line, which held the Army to an even fight, wilted abruptly in the final quarter of the game with a Princeton team which was playing way over its head.

Too often credit for brave, victorious football is given to the coaches and withheld from the players themselves, but in the case of Notre Dame the team obviously has the advantage of the best coaching the game has yet produced. Rockne's players know how, and more than teaching them the mechanics of their jobs, he seems to impart a calm presence of mind to athletes who might otherwise suffer moments of confusion and panic.

Even without Savoldi Notre Dame was legitimately two touchdowns better than a team which would have been likely to come through an eastern season without defeat.

being the stern taskmaster, was the solicitous guardian.

"How's your bad side?" he asked of Metzger, the tiny 154 pound guard.

"It's sore, but I'm all right," replied the dwarf linesman, attendants meanwhile cutting off his uniform to hurry the task of getting down to the spot where a fresh taping was necessary.

"How's your knee, Kassis?" spoke Rock to his swarthy Assyrian guard.

"Pretty bad," was the answer. Kassis was satisfied, however, that he had been able to stay through the full 60 minutes of bruising.

Brill, the dashing half back, who played almost to the end although weak through loss of ten pounds in a week, a nerve injury being the cause, still was carrying his usual smile when Rock got around to him.

"I was all right until you took me out," said Brill. "Somebody got me in the side of the chest and I couldn't take a deep breath. Probably a tear along the ribs."

An attendant promptly began to mummify the millionaire's son in yards of adhesive tape.

These Three Worried Rockne.

Metzger, Kassis and Brill are the three men Rockne had in mind during the week when in the course of his gloom talks he mentioned three cripples. It was the condition of these fellows that made him doubtful about how much the Irish would show against the Purple.

Metzger, before the game, went to Rockne and said there was only one request he wanted to make. That was that he be permitted to play 60 minutes, or at least as long as he was on his feet. He got the 60 minutes he sought and one look at him afterward was proof that he hadn't been idle. Despite his bum side and his lack of weight the big Purple men never plunged through the spot he was guarding. Frequently he would sneak through and nail from behind a Purple back who was heading for the open spaces out around the ends. He again proved that speed in a guard can be more important than beef.

"The kid's a brick," was Rockne's terse comment.

Hanley Gets His Chance.

The lad who derived the biggest kick from the entire affair was Dan Hanley, the 190 pound full back who until a week ago yesterday was just a fourth string scrub, developed for use in future years. He got his first chance in the Drake game last Saturday when Joe Savoldi was kept on the bench pending the school authorities' decision in his marital affairs.

Being green, Hanley wouldn't have been summoned yesterday if it hadn't become obvious that a plunger was badly needed. Rockne decided to give him some work right after the first touchdown had been scored by Schwartz. Hanley immediately began to warm himself up by carrying for several yards the numerous Purple tacklers who tried to bring down his 190 pounds. Then when a yard was needed for the second touchdown, it was Dan who went headlong over the center of the line.

You'll Hear More of Him.

Today Dan is going to celebrate by clipping Northwestern-Notre Dame football stories from the papers and mailing them back to Butte, Mont., so that the town folks will know that a home boy went a long way to make good. Before he finishes he probably will do some more clipping. He's the kind who is bound to be heard from more than occasionally.

One Notre Dame regular who was sound as a dollar before the game but not so sound afterward was Kurth, the sophomore tackle from Madison, Wis. In the hustle and bustle of footballing Kurth was thumped somewhat roughly by Engebritsen, the Purple tackle. The penalty for this was the stepping stone to Notre Dame's first touchdown. Kurth was still a bit groggy after he had removed his uniform, but he wasn't complaining.

Gary, Ind., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Emerson High school of Gary this afternoon won the northern Indiana high school football championship by defeating Mishawaka, 7 to 0, in the final minutes of the game on a 20 yard forward pass, Thompson to Vowell. As a result of Emerson's victory Emerson will meet Logansport in the Thanksgiving day battle for the state prep school title.

DRIVE IN FINAL QUARTER WINS FOR NOTRE DAME

line. Those were the breaks for Northwestern which they failed to capitalize.

So two great elevens went to their dressing rooms for the fifteen minute rest period with no score. Northwestern had outplayed Notre Dame on offense in this half, because it had held possession of the ball most of the time. Only four times in the second period did Notre Dame secure the oval. Twice Carideo punted out of danger; once a pass was intercepted and once Notre Dame fumbled.

Irish More Menacing.

Yet with the ground gaining advantage with Northwestern, Notre Dame's attack, a flash of which appeared in the first period, looked the more menacing. The Purple had gained principally by Russell's rushes, varied with occasional off tackle plays by Bruder or Hanley. They were short gains. Notre Dame often failed to gain, but when it did those gains were touchdown possibilities. That always has been Notre Dame strategy in its running attack.

Soon after the second half opened, advantage shifted to Notre Dame. Several short passes figured in a march from Notre Dame's 33 yard line to Northwestern's 30 yard line, where the advance was halted. Then Carideo, field general, elected to use his remarkable ability to place his kicks and wait for the breaks. As the visitors' attack was stopped time and again by Northwestern's hard charging forwards, Carideo in succession booted the oval out of bounds at Northwestern's 2 yard line, to the 10 yard line, and to the 11 yard line. Against such accuracy and on the defensive, Northwestern could not get started.

Break Which Decided Battle.

Then came the break which may have decided the entire day's struggle. On Northwestern's 43 yard line, after a return punt, Carideo punted on fourth down with five yards to go. The ball rolled outside at the Purple one foot line. The play was called back, however, because officials had detected a Purple player overzealous in use of the heel of his hand. They said Engebritsen was the culprit. Fifteen yards were awarded for roughness, and it was Notre Dame's ball on the Purple 25 yard line. After Mullins had lost two yards, Schwartz ran for the first touchdown, which really decided the contest.

Looking at the game in retrospect, the two lines were about equal. Russell showed more power than any Notre Dame back, but the Irish ball carriers were more dangerous. Carideo was superior in punting and gave his ends plenty of time to get down to prevent Lee Hanley from running back the kicks as he did against Wisconsin. Notre Dame missed Savoldi for power and Northwestern missed Rentner for passing.

In such an analysis, Northwestern's fumbles and Conley's failure to hold two long distance aerials after getting away from the Purple secondary and having a clear field are not considered.

Purple Halts Drive.

Notre Dame won the toss and chose the south goal. It was a fast gridiron under sunshine, and the wind was from the west, blowing across the gridiron, minimizing that advantage. Carideo kicked off to Bruder, who returned 20 yards to the Purple 28 yard line. Russell and Bruder gained 5 yards in two line plunges. Then Bruder punted to Carideo, who was downed by Hanley at Notre Dame's 45 yard line. Schwartz started around his right end and cut back through tackle to Northwestern's 37 yard line. Notre Dame then was penalized 15 yards for holding. Schwartz picked up five, and on a lateral, Brill to Schwartz to Mullins, the latter left one yard to go for first down. Schwartz struck through guard to the Purple 20 yard line. Schwartz added four at tackle, but lost five on an attempted end run to Baker's side. Brill fumbled and recovered for a loss of two yards. Then Hanley knocked down a pass in the end zone, and it was Northwestern's ball on its 20 yard line.

Schwartz Intercepts Pass.

After extinguishing this threat, Northwestern launched an attack with Russell, Bruder and Hanley carrying which went to the Irish 42 yard line, where Schwartz intercepted a pass on his own 33 yard line.

Just after the second period opened Clark intercepted a Notre Dame pass, and Northwestern had the ball at Notre Dame's 40 yard line. Russell and Hanley gained 9 yards in three attempts. Then Notre Dame was offside, and it was first down on the Irish 26 yard line. Bruder on a long end run added two and Russell in three line thrusts gained a first down at the 15 yard line. He added eight more in three line plunges, but fumbled on fourth down, Carideo recovering on the 2 yard line.

Carideo punted on first down to Hanley at Notre Dame's 38 yard line. On fourth down, Bruder punted and Riley downed the oval at Notre Dame's 8 yard line. Two attempts gained only a yard, and Carideo dropped back for a punt. Instead he started to run out and fumbled when tackled, Northwestern recovering on the 4 yard line.

Bruder Loses Ball.

Russell gained a yard in each of two attempts but Bruder fumbled on the next play, Metzger recovering on the 1 yard line. Carideo punted out of bounds at Notre Dame's 35 yard line. Hanley and Russell made first down on the 24 yard line. Russell gained five yards in two plunges when the gun barked, ending the half.

Marvil opened the second half by kicking off to Mullins on the goal line, who returned 18 yards. Notre Dame, unable to gain, Carideo punted on the fourth down, Hanley returning 10 yards to Notre Dame's 47 yard line. Russell gained three yards and Bruder started around his right end and cut back for first down at Notre Dame's 33 yard line. Russell and Bruder each added three. Then Russell was stopped. Notre Dame took the ball on downs when Hanley's pass to Bruder was incomplete.

Irish Passes Successful.

Northwestern was offside for 5 yards and Schwartz tossed a short pass to Kosky for first down at the Irish 48 yard line. Another pass from Schwartz to Brill was the final play for first down at the Purple 46 yard mark. Brill added nine on a spinner, and Mullins bucked for four. Unable to gain, Carideo placed a beautiful punt out of bounds on the Purple 2 yard line.

On second down thereafter, Bruder punted out of bounds at Northwestern's 30 yard line. Brill slipped through a hole opened by Culver for 11 yards. Then a recovered fumble cost 4 yards. On fourth down Bruder intercepted a pass at his goal line, and seemed on a journey but stumbled and fell after 10 yards' progress. After Hanley broke through his left tackle for six, Woodworth punted out of bounds at Northwestern's 48 yard line. Schwartz struck through tackle for 6 yards as the third quarter ended. On fourth down Carideo punted to Hanley who signaled for a fair catch at Northwestern's 10 yard line. On third down, Woodworth got away a beautiful punt to Carideo, who returned 15 to the Purple 48 yard line. Carideo punted on fourth down to Northwestern's 11 yard line. Woodworth returned at once to the Purple 43 yard line.

Conley Misses Toss.

Schwartz tossed a long pass which escaped Conley with an open field in front of him. Brill lost 5. Schwartz then passed over the line of scrimmage to O'Brien, but Notre Dame still had 5 yards to go on fourth down, so Carideo punted. It was on this play Northwestern was penalized 15 yards for unnecessary roughness.

That penalty gave Notre Dame first down on the Purple 25 yard line. Notre Dame's Hanley, who had succeeded Mullins, lost two. On the next play Schwartz slipped between his right tackle and end, evaded the Northwestern secondary and continued on a touchdown. He was close to the side lines, but the official nearest ruled he had not stepped out of bounds. Carideo place kicked the extra point.

Hanley returned the next kickoff 25 yards to the Purple 25 yard mark. After Bruder failed to gain and a pass, Bruder to Hanley, was incomplete, Dan Hanley intercepted for Notre Dame at the Purple 25 yard line. Notre Dame failed to gain and Carideo punted out of bounds at Northwestern's 2 yard line. After an exchange of kicks Notre Dame intercepted a lateral pass at the Purple 28 yard line. O'Connor registered first down on the Purple 13 yard line.

Northwestern's offside cost 5 yards. Schwartz passed to Carideo, who was run out of bounds at the 1 yard line. On the next play, Dan Hanley crashed through for the second touchdown, from which Carideo place kicked goal. The game ended shortly afterward with the ball in Notre Dame's possession on the Purple 35 yard line.

IRISH THANKED FOR EFFORTS TO HELP CHARITY

The Notre Dame team dined last night at the Brevoort hotel and their efforts in the N. U. game were lauded by several civic leaders not only for winning but because of the aid they have given toward the charity game to be played with the Purple Oct. 10, 1931, which will yield $100,000 to Gov. Emmerson's unemployment commission.

Among the speakers was City Attorney William D. Saltiel, who represented Mayor Thompson. A letter from the mayor to E. N. Matthews, president of the hotel, was read in which Thompson thanked the team for their efforts toward relieving unemployment and regretted that he could not be present. Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin represented the governor's commission and extended thanks and similar expressions from Anton J. Cermak, president of the Cook county board, and S. J. T. Straus of S. W. Straus & Co.

ENGLAND HEARS YALE BROADCAST; THAT'S ABOUT ALL

LONDON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—A torrent of words describing the Yale-Harvard football game came tumbling over the Atlantic tonight from New Haven, but not in a fashion likely to add to Britain's expert knowledge of the American college game.

Local American fans had the big thrill of hearing the Yale bowl go wild when Harvard scored her second touchdown and ran the score to 13 to 0. But to the English listeners the technical description was like so much Sanskrit.

One of the most amusing comments on the broadcast came from Jack Slee, sports editor of the Reuters News agency.

"The first attempt to broadcast American football to England," he wrote, "was highly successful from the standpoint of noise, but not as a missionary effort to convert Britain from her own Rugby game to the American gridiron game.

"There was one moment when no announcer was needed as the tumult sounded across the Atlantic. Just how the score was made no English listener could hazard, but all the world's akin when a goal, touchdown, or whatever you call it, is made.

"It was an exciting moment. The rustics choked over their Saturday night half pints and paunchy ex-rugby stars stirred in easy chairs at their clubs and said, one to another: 'I say, old chap, what is all this bally row?'"

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—The old oaken bucket, symbolical of football rivalry between Purdue and Indiana, traveled down the Monon to Bloomington tonight for the first time in four years. All because the Crimson here today staged the biggest upset of the 1930 season by nosing out the Boilermakers, 7 to 6.

Indiana's touchdown and the winning point which followed came in the fourth quarter, following a march from the center of the field. A pass, Opasik to Dauer, produced the touchdown. Hughes' place kick went squarely between the posts.

Purdue's six points came shortly after the game opened when Pope passed over the Indiana line to Purvis. Van Bibber's place kick was wide.

Second Time for Purdue.

It was the second time this year the Boilermakers have tasted defeat by one point, having dropped their Big Ten opener to Michigan by a similar margin. Purdue lacked the fire and dash of early season games and sorely missed the services of the brilliant Risk, who sat on the side lines injured.

The Boilermakers kept the ball constantly in Indiana territory during the first half, but lacked punch on three different occasions in the second quarter. As the third period progressed, Indiana's resistance began to stiffen and showed a flash of offensive power after recovering a Purdue fumble. The Boilermakers held, however, and a punting duel between Moss and Dauer left the ball near the Purdue 40 yard line in Indiana's possession.

Dauer Scores on Pass.

Here Indiana unleashed a savage line attack which carried it to the Purdue 10 yard line. Purdue braced, but Indiana took to the air and Dauer was over the line when he caught Opasik's heave.

Horstman provided most of Purdue's offensive thrills, assisted by Kissel and Pope. For Indiana Dauer was the spear point of the drive which produced one of the biggest upsets in the Big Ten this season.

Brilliant line play of Buttner of Purdue was matched by that of Jasper and Dickey of Indiana. The victory was Indiana's first Big Ten win after three conference defeats.

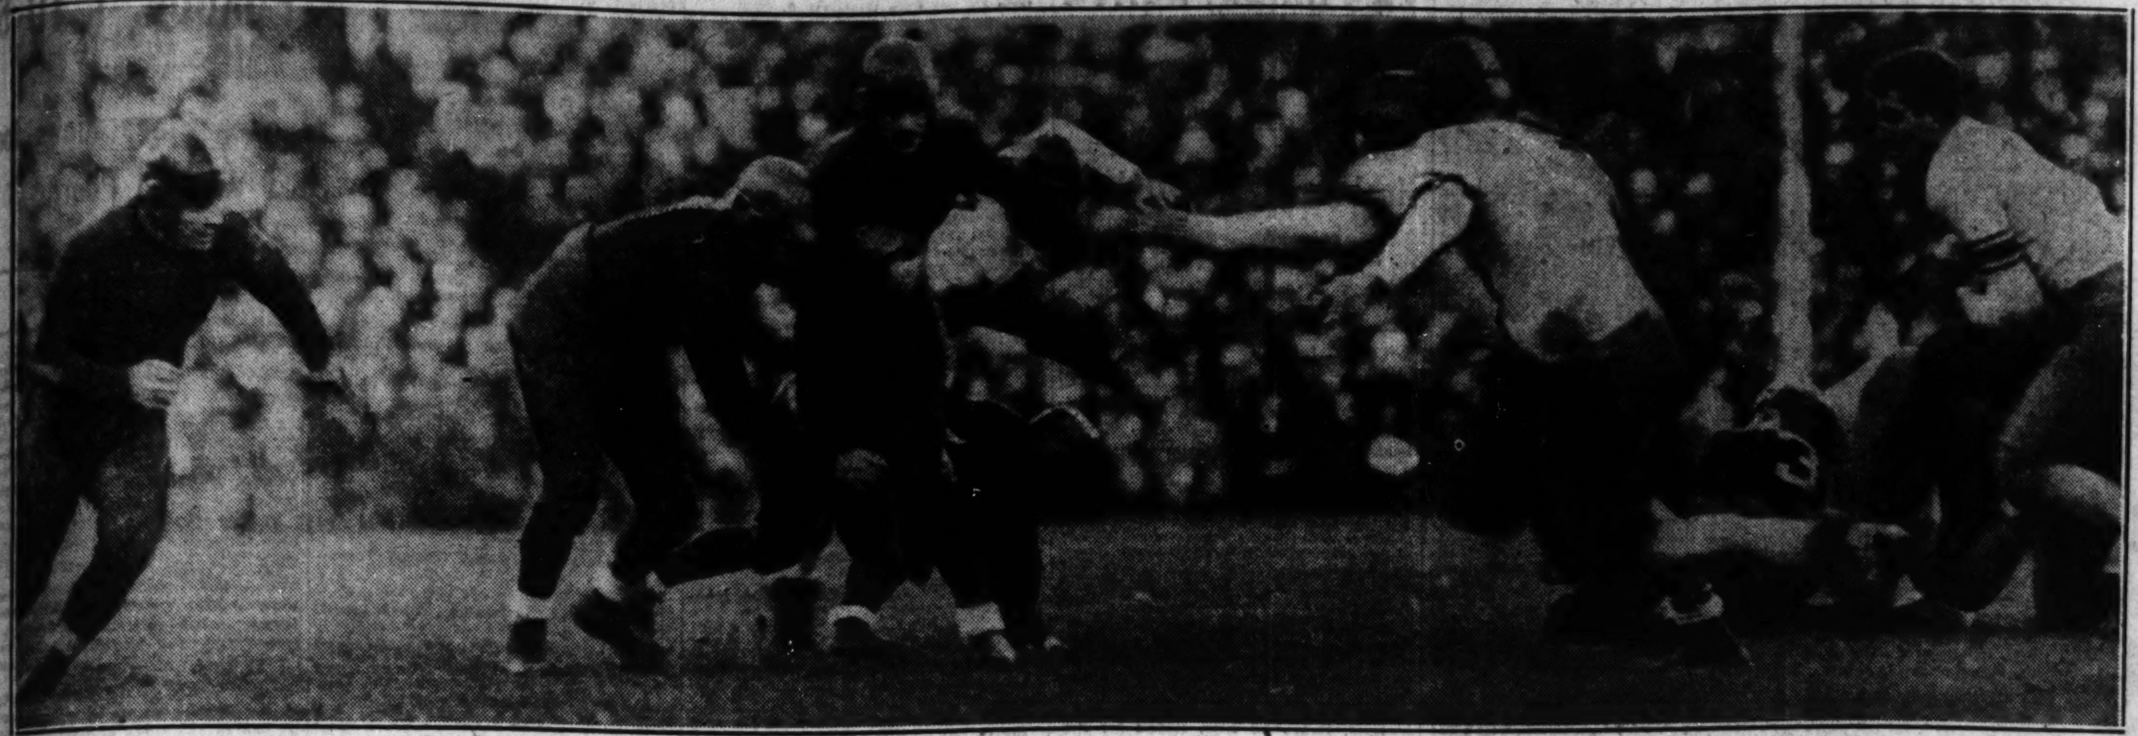
Notre Dame's Fourth Quarter Drive Defeats Northwestern, 14-0, in Thrilling Battle



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

VICIOUS TACKLING AND HARD RUNNING MARK GAME AS NOTRE DAME FIGHTS ITS WAY TO VICTORY OVER NORTHWESTERN. Larry Mullins appears to have an opening for a long dash, but the Wildcats are closing in to hold the Irish full back to a short gain. The interference is being spilled and the men to the right are sweeping over to bar the way, as the Purple tacklers did for three quarters before they permitted Marchy Schwartz to break away midway in the final period, when one touchdown led to another because Northwestern discarded caution in a vain attempt to score.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 22.—Two perfectly executed passes, one going for a touchdown and the other putting the ball on the one yard line, gave Wisconsin a 14 to 0 victory today over its ancient rival, Minnesota. Thirty-two thousand gathered at Camp Randall stadium to witness the Big Ten's oldest traditional battle. It was the fortieth meeting between the two universities.

For the greater part of the engagement the teams struggled back and forth between the two 25 yard lines, neither showing any sustained running attack. But there were two big moments which decided everything, and tonight Madison is celebrating, because no matter what may have gone before, a Badger season is a success when Minnesota is beaten.

Pass to Gantenbein Scores.

The first of these critical instants came early in the second quarter. Wisconsin had taken a punt on its own 40 yard line and Schneller ripped through for a first down in midfield. Then Lusby took the ball and dropped far back. The Minnesota forwards came storming in upon him, but he surveyed the field coolly and held the oval until his eye picked out Capt Gantenbein sprinting madly down the side lines. Then Lusby threw.

Two Gophers sized up the play just too late and Gantenbein plucked the ball from the hands that reached out to bat it down. Then he shook himself into the clear and raced the remaining 20 yards for a touchdown. While the Badger stands went wild Lusby kicked goal.

The next score came late in the third quarter and the way was opened by a Gopher blunder. Minnesota had the ball on its own 35 yard line when Brockmeyer attempted a pass. The Badgers sliced in to hurry him, and as he was tackled he hurled the ball blindly over his head into the arms of Swiderski, a Wisconsin guard. Swiderski was downed on the 30 yard line. Then the Badgers seized their opportunity. Lusby swung around end for ten yards. The march was halted momentarily when two plunges failed, and then Lusby whipped a pass to Behr, who was forced out of bounds on the one yard line. Two smashes by Schneller put it over, and again Lusby kicked goal.

Badger Line Halts Gophers.

The Gophers came back gamely and some hard plunging by Manders and Riebeth carried the ball within striking distance several times, but on each occasion a hard charging Badger line stopped the assault before it became too threatening.

It was that Wisconsin line which was largely responsible for today's victory. Time and again these forwards knifed through to break up plays in the making. At one point in the game Minnesota lost 25 yards on two consecutive plays, due to the alertness and power of the Wisconsin linesmen, who smeared Brockmeyer as he tried two passes. And it was that same line which held long enough for Lusby to get off his long throws.

Firecracker Ends Game.

Late in the game the Badgers made another threat to score after Lubratovich had intercepted a lateral pass on the Gopher 30 yard line. Rebholz hotfooted around end for 20 yards and Behr plunged to the six yard line. Then a report sounded, the teams raced from the field, and the crowd came swarming down from the stands.

It was said then that a spectator, celebrating the Badgers' victory a few seconds too soon, had exploded a giant firecracker, making the noise that sent the players scurrying off. The field was cleared of spectators after some heroic work by the ushers, and the teams came straggling back, player by player. But after a consultation it was decided that the game was officially over.

Wisconsin showed a clean cut advantage in first downs, making 14 to Minnesota's 8.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Crimson flares lit the gray twilight of the Yale bowl tonight, throwing a weird, ruddy glare over a crazy snake dance of Harvard students who at last had something to cheer for. The Harvard varsity had come back from a month of defeat, and its captain, Ben Ticknor, rode out of the bowl on the shoulders of his classmates after his team had beaten Yale, 13 to 0, to crown with glory a Harvard season that had been studded with defeats.

On the rapier thrusts of Barry Wood's forward passes, delivered straight down the middle like the long point of a bayonet, Harvard rode to glory today.

In the first period Wood, from close to midfield, flashed the ball down the center aisle to Art Huguley twice in a row for the first Harvard score. The same pair scored again in the third period after a fumble had given them a chance in Yale's territory.

Harvard Seizes on Two Breaks.

Those two places were the only real scoring chances that popped out in a game notable mainly for the fierce, stubborn defense of both sides, and Harvard used them both. Wood drop kicked the extra point after the first score and missed the second.

This Harvard team was primed for the game of its life. Forgotten were the defeats at the hands of Army Michigan, Dartmouth and Holy Cross. The Harvard players had forgotten them by the time they entered the bowl. The 79,000 who filled the concrete saucer of the stands forgot about those games, too, after the Crimson team had been in action for a few minutes. But it was on defense that Harvard won its greatest triumph.

Yale Stars Held in Check.

Yale, starting Booth and countering afterward with the flashy Heim, was unable to shake either loose for more than one real run, and Yale, turning finally to the air, was unable to complete a pass until the third period was well under way. Booth never got away for anything like a real run. Heim once stabbed through the tackle for about 35 yards.

The third period saw the victory for the Crimson finally clinched, and it came because Harvard was ready and able to take advantage of the most important break of the game. were a fine pair of linemen.

Charley Heim had relieved Booth toward the end of the second period and had stayed in at the start of the second half, though Sullivan called the signals. And Heim played smart, fine football. But he was to be picked out by the breaks of the game to contribute to Harvard's second score.

White Recovers Heim's Fumble.

On his own 27 yard line Heim took a back field pass and juggled it. He seemed to have it safe for a moment, only to lose his hold and have the ball come popping out in the open where White, who had come charging through from Harvard's backfield, fell on it to give the Crimson the ball on Yale's 26 yard line.

White was sent into the line and stopped with nothing much of a gain. Then Wood dropped back to about Yale's 35 yard line and again Huguley came darting through to go racing down the middle of the field. It was another long pass. It traveled to Yale's 2 yard line and two Yale men struck Huguley almost as soon as the Crimson back gathered the ball to his chest. But he hung on to it and staggered over the line in two strides to add the final touch to Harvard's great comeback.

Ticknor Stars at Center.

There have been few men anywhere in the history of football to play the center that Ticknor turned in today. One or two of his passes were a little wild, but not much, and there was the only place where a criticism of his play could be made. And he had magnificent support from his guards, John Trainer and Henry Myerson, who were a fine pair of linemen today To the entire Harvard line must go a great share of the credit, as the credit always should go in a winning football game.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

FOOTBALL FORECASTING.

BACK in 1923 The Wake started the present custom of attempting to forecast football results in figures. So far as we know. it was the first time a large newspaper had done anything of the kind Only a few attempted a systematic picking of winners even without the figures.

We assure you we did not wish this idea on ourself. As we have told several times before, it was suggested, or rather ordered, by the then boss. To our protest against being kidded and ridiculed at times, he replied "That's fine. The more they laugh the better. People will read it just the same." He was right both about the reading and the laughs.

But it was a good idea, except perhaps for the forecaster. It has been adopted, in part, all over the country. Predictions find a place in nearly every sporting page Saturday morning. Many newspapers give scores as does The Wake. Others have utilized the idea for guessing contests and let their readers do the guessing as a circulation stimulant. Football guessing has become a popular pastime.

That many persons take their football scores seriously, or seriously financially, was brought home to us last week when we received three long distance phone calls, in each of which the toll would be $1 or more, asking our opinion on some game. We suppose that was on the same theory that at a race track one asks every one "Whadda ya like?" and then finally reaches a choice.

Speculation on football is increasing in number of persons participating, but has decreased in volume of money within the last decade. This speculation centers more largely in sweepstakes pools or hat pools, often with scores the determining factor. There is, of course, betting on game results, but that is sporadic rather than concerted.

Most of us can remember when wagering on one's eleven was considered a test of college loyalty; when fraternities or other groups wired to the corresponding group of a rival college before a big game the amount to be wagered and it usually was accepted; when undergraduate bodies of a defeated college were broke for some time after their most important contest.

These conditions no longer prevail. George Huff, athletic director at Illinois, was one of the first to crusade against this form of supposed loyalty. He made a personal appeal to the Illini not to bet on football. When Huff makes a personal appeal to Illinois students, it carries weight. Other colleges waged the same campaign. There is and always will be some individual wagering on football. There is more off the campus than on the campus these days.

Now these sweepstakes or pools are similar, in some respects, to the baseball pools over which baseball officials once professed concern, except that they are amateur and not run by gamblers except in rare instances.

We never shared the fear of those baseball pools. The "percentage" of profit to the promoters was too great, but otherwise they were not a menace directly, because they did not center on any one or more particular performances. Danger of corruption lies in large amounts of money that a particular thing will or will not happen. Sweepstakes or pools hardly come in that category.

So whether or not one cares to wager on football, we see no harm, perhaps a little fun, in football sweepstakes. The Wake NEVER wagers on results of football games. This is not because of any scruple against wagering, but because we report football games. We derive just as much pleasure from a contest without financial interest. It relieves us, moreover, from any charges of prejudice on that count.

And They Say Figures Don't Lie.

Wake: Wave high those dear old orange and blue banners. In defeating Chicago, 28 to 0, the Illini proved they are superior to Notre Dame. Here's my proof:

Illinois beat Chicago, 28 to 0. Purdue beat Chicago, 26 to 7. Therefore Illinois is 9 points better than Purdue.

Purdue beat Iowa, 20 to 0. Marquette beat Iowa, 7 to 0. Therefore Purdue is 13 points better than Marquette. So Illinois is 22 points better than Marquette. Marquette beat Drake, 12 to 0. So Illinois is 34 points better than Drake.

Notre Dame beat Drake, 28 to 7, or 21 points. But Illinois is 34 points better than Drake. Therefore Illinois is 13 points better than Notre Dame. Q. E. D.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Coming from behind in the second quarter, Iowa downed a stubborn University of Nebraska eleven, 12 to 7, here this afternoon.

As Iowa brought its 1930 gridiron craft into port after a rough voyage on nonconference seas the chunky figure of a brilliant half back, Randahl Hickman, from Chariton, Ia., was at the helm.

Hickman, piling up a total of 162 yards to beat out Leo Jensvold for Hawkeye ground gaining honors, carried the ball 26 times and advanced an average of more than six yards on each attempt. He made possible Iowa's two touchdowns, which were scored in the second period by Kriz, sophomore back, and by Leo Jensvold, a senior veteran.

Huskers Score Easily.

Gloom settled over the 20,000 Old Gold fans when the Cornhuskers, using a deceptive running and passing attack, scored a touchdown and place kicked the extra point in the first few minutes of play. Sansen's fumble on the Iowa 23 yard line, which was recovered by Nebraska, and a 16 yard pass, Long to Hokuf, put the ball on Iowa's five yard line. Long then circled end for a touchdown and Frahm added the extra point.

A 30 yard run by Hickman and a subsequent 24 yard touchdown dash by Kriz at the opening of the second quarter dispensed this gloom. This was followed by a touchdown drive from the 48 yard line, which ended when Leo Jensvold circled Nebraska's right end for five yards.

The opening of the third quarter saw Iowa fight stubbornly to maintain its lead. The Hawkeyes were gradually forced back to their ten yard line, and it was first down for the visitors Two line attempts, an end run, and an attempted pass netted the Cornhuskers only eight of the necessary ten yards.

Long Is Nebraska Ace.

Long stood out among the visiting athletes. He twisted and smashed for a total of 77 yards in 18 attempts, threw the passes, and helped to maintain an average of 38 yards on punts as compared with the Hawkeye average of 31 yards.

With Hickman accounting for exactly two-thirds of them, the Old Gold eleven compiled a total of 246 yards from scrimmage, as compared with 111 for Nebraska. The Huskers partly made up for this with 92 yards gained on four attempted passes. The Iowans made only one aerial venture and it was incomplete.

It was the first meeting of the two neighboring states since 1919, when the Old Gold triumphed, 18 to 0.

STANFORD ROLLS UP 41-0 SCORE ON CALIFORNIA

Perfect Pass Attack Brings Record Victory.

Berkley, Cal., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Behind a perfect aerial barrage and smashing ground attack that proved irresistible, Stanford's Cardinals smashed their way to a 41 to 0 victory over California's Bears today, the most decisive triumph ever chalked up in the 38 year gridiron rivalry between these teams.

Eighty thousand fans thrilled to the new found power of Stanford, a power that developed in the second half and steam rolled the game. A 38 to 0 victory by California in 1920 was the former most decisive score since the two teams first clashed in 1892.

Score 35 Points in Last Half.

Held to a 6 to 0 lead at half time, Stanford turned up with a crashing attack in the third and fourth periods that gained five touchdowns and a safety. The Cardinals were not only unstoppable on offensive but their defense was impenetrable.

The Cardinals started in whirlwind fashion, scoring a touchdown within the first five minutes of play, Hillman carrying the ball over. Moffatt's try for point failed.

The Bears began to fight and for the rest of the period the Cards were on the defensive most of the time. California threatened to score once, smashing to Stanford's 34 yard line.

Stanford's big drive came in the third quarter, netting three touchdowns and a safety.

In the last period Stanford crossed the California line twice. The lineups:

with a 46 yard run on a forward pass from Gil Berry. Yanuskus had added the seventh point of the Illinois total when the break occurred. And Johnny Ovelmen, who today ended three years of play for the Orange and Blue, failed in the hero's role. He failed not through his error, but because he performed too perfectly.

Ovelman broke through Ohio's line to block Fesler's kick as the Buckeye captain stood in his own end zone. They believed—indeed, the scoreboard recorded the play as a touchdown—that Illinois had taken a point lead.

If the ball had bounded sidewards from Ovelmen's charge and he had recovered in the end zone tonight Illinois might have finished its season with victory.

Buckeyes Turn Back Threat.

Illinois did not cease its attack. Once more in the second period it advanced to Ohio's 13 yard line before Lew Hinchman intercepted a forward pass. And again in the third quarter Illinois waged the struggle in Buckeye territory. But the Bucks turned back the supreme drive when it had advanced within two yards of victory. Then, when its best had not been sufficient, and facing the wind, which swept down field from the south, Illinois subsided. Ohio played cautiously, protecting its three point lead. Its caution was rewarded.

The strong southern wind was a factor in Ohio's first quarter attack, just as it was an Illinois ally in the second period. Fesler's kicking set the Illini back on their goal line. Stanley Bodman's kick was partly blocked and recovered by Ehrnsberger of Ohio on Illinois' 28 yard line, but Illinois rallied in the final ten yards and took the ball on downs. Then Hunter Russel' fumbled and Ehrnsberger again recovered, this time only eight yards from the goal. Three plays netted Ohio a yard, but on the final attempt Fesler passed wide to Bob Grady and he stepped over the line for the touchdown. Ehrnsberger's try for the point fell away to the left.

Varner Scores Second Touchdown.

Again an exchange of kicks gave Ohio the ball on Illinois' 28 yard line. Although penalized five yards for delay, Ohio pressed onward. Two forward passes, the last on fourth down, Fesler to Horn, put the ball one yard from the goal. Varner's second plunge into center scored. Cas Bennett blocked Ehrnsberger's place kick and Ohio led, 12 to 0.

Shortly afterward the period ended. Now Illinois, with Stan Bodman getting away long spirals, forced the Bucks to retreat. Ohio lost 15 yards for holding, and Fesler kicked against the wind from behind the goal line. The ball bounced backward and Illinois drove on from the Ohio 19 yard line. But Hinchman intercepted Berry's second down pass and Fesler kicked to midfield. One play. Then Berry shot a pass to Yanusqus running outside Ohio's left end. Yanuskus took the ball in stride and continued to the goal line, a 46 yard gain. Yanuskus place kicked the point.

Again Bodman sent the ball deep into Ohio territory. Holcomb lost five yards and Fesler stood behind the goal line to kick. Then came Ovelmen's charge, the blocked ball, and the safety. Ohio led, 12 to 9.

Illini Start Twice.

Twice the Illinois attack started in the third quarter only to falter after gains of 20 yards or more. For a third time Illinois mustered its strength on Ohio's 40 yard line. With Berry and Yanuskus around the ends and with Schultz hitting the center, Illinois marched onward. Berry passed to Yanuskus on Ohio's 11 yard line. Berry circled Larkin at end and stepped out of bounds on the 5 yard strip. Two smashes by Schultz added three yards. A last effort was directed at Fesler's end of the line. Fesler piled up the interference and Varner tackled Yanuskus for a 3 yard loss.

That was the high tide of the Illinois bid for victory. The quarter ended and with the wind advantage Fesler kept his foes in midfield.

Illinois made nine first downs, while Ohio accomplished four. Each team made three by its running attack. Ohio attempted 18 forward passes, completing six for a total of 65 yards. One pass was intercepted. Illinois tried 20 passes, one was completed by penalty, six were caught for a gain of 109 yards, and four were intercepted. Three of these goal line attempts were intercepted by the alert Hinchman.

Everett had scored in the third period. With the score tied at 6-6 Marack went back and kicked a pretty placement for the winning point.

MICHIGAN STATE, DETROIT PLAY SCORELESS TIE

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 22.—(AP)—The ninth gridiron contest between Michigan State college and University of Detroit ended in a scoreless tie today after State outplayed the Titans before a capacity crowd of 19,000. State made 11 first downs to 2 for Detroit and gained 227 yards to the Titans' 69. Two attempts at field goals by Monett of State failed. The punting of O'Neill for Detroit and Grove for State featured.

MARION BEATS HARRISBURG.

Harrisburg, Ill., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Marion High school defeated Harrisburg, 7 to 2, here this afternoon in a Big Seven conference game.

MICHIGAN BEATS CHICAGO, 16 TO 0, TO SHARE TITLE

It was a case of a champion pushing over a lowly tailend team all the way. Not much hard football was played except when the Wolverines made the charge which brought them the victory.

Pay Tribute to Stagg.

Few championship games played anywhere this year have offered a more brilliant spectacle. Michigan paid a tribute to A. A. Stagg, the grand old man of the Midway, who was rounding out his 39th year as Chicago's coach when its band marched in formation and spelled out the name "Stagg" between halves. Every Michigan and Chicago rooter stood with heads bared and cheered for Mr. Stagg.

The Maroons stunned the Michigan rooters by outplaying the Wolverines in the first quarter, but the second period was under way only a few minutes when Michigan drove far down into the Maroon's territory and was halted by a desperate defensive stand by the Maroons only 10 yards from a touchdown. On the fourth down Hudson dropped back to the 20 yard line and place kicked for three points which put Michigan into a lead which was never threatened.

In the third quarter, with Newman, Hudson and Wheeler carrying the ball, Michigan tore down to the Chicago 30 yard line. On the next play Wheeler carried the ball to the Chicago 19 yard line where the ball was lost on downs. Chicago could not gain and kicked to Newman on Michigan's 45 yard line. Two Michigan plays failed to bring much of a gain. Then Simrall, on a fake punt formation, passed to Hudson and Hudson ran 35 yards for a touchdown. Hozer failed to kick the goal.

Michigan was now playing championship football. The Maroons were helpless but they turned back the Wolverines until soon after the last quarter had started. Then came another Wolverine drive toward the Maroon goal.

Tessmer, who had substituted for Newman at quarter back, intercepted a Maroon pass on his own 48 yard line. Wheeler broke loose and carried the ball to Chicago's 25 yard line. Then Wheeler tore off tackle for 10 more yards and Hudson went through the Chicago first line of defense for six more. A second later Hudson went through the same hole at Chicago's left tackle for nine more yards and a touchdown, ending a Michigan 3 minute march which netted more than 50 yards. Hozer's place kick was good and Michigan had conquered the Maroons, 16 to 0. The Michigan band led the parade down into Ann Arbor.

De Paul university's unbeaten football team will battle the University of San Francisco this afternoon at Soldiers' field. It will be the Blue Demons' first big intersectional clash and their outstanding game of the season. The kickoff is set for two o'clock.

For the first time this year Coach Eddie Anderson will command the full physical strength of the De Paul squad. Ernie Butcher, star half back; Emmett Cowhey and Everett McLean, guards, and Jim O'Connor and Heine Coan, ends, all have recovered from injuries which kept them on the bench last week.

Red Harrington, fleet back who ran back a kick 90 yards to De Paul's touchdown against the Illini reserves, will not appear in the starting lineup, but Coach Anderson plans to rush him into action at the first strategic opportunity.

McGivern Replaces Stafford.

Frank Hartman, the hard blocking back, will be at quarter; Mat Steffen and Butcher at the halves, and Art McGivern at full back. This will be the first game of the season in which McGivern has started in Eddie Stafford's place.

Among the teams which the Blue Demon's have beaten are Louisville, Loyola, and St. Mary's of Winona, Minn. The record of the San Francisco squad is more impressive. Prominent victims of the coast eleven were Tom Lieb's Loyola team, 14-0; Nevada, 20-13, and Gonzaga, 13-12. San Francisco outplayed the strong St. Mary's eleven, conqueror of Fordham, but lost 13-0 on two passes.

Kleckner Is Coast Star.

Outstanding in the San Francisco lineup are Big Bob Kleckner, right half back and one of the greatest passers on the coast; Lyn Warford, who has scored in every game; Alec Thomas, plunging full back, and Frank Horgan.

Not a single touchdown has been put over through the veteran 200 pound line of the coast team. Roy Huntley, end; Chile Chilberg, center, and Capt. Red Parina, tackle, are the star forwards.

Although Coach Anderson fears Kleckner's passing, he will be prepared for aerial combat. Steffen, the most versatile performer in the De Paul back field, will do the tossing. Hartman, Lyons and Coan are the best receivers. Steffen and Butcher are De Paul's hopes at running attack.

Firecracker Sends Badgers, Gophers to Showers Early

Madison, Wis., Nov. 22.—[U. P.]—A gleeful celebrant with a giant firecracker caused pandemonium today when his fireworks exploded while the timekeeper was fingering the trigger of his gun to end the Wisconsin-Minnesota game.

One of the Minnesota players grabbed the ball and ran for the dressing room when the report sounded. His teammates followed. Spectators overran the field. Police and ushers frantically tried to get them off when they learned that there was still almost a minute left to play. By the time the field was cleared sufficiently, officials had decided to award the decision to Wisconsin by virtue of its 14 to 0 score.

GRANGE'S LONG RUNS WIN FOR CHICAGO BEARS

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Red Grange galloped at the expense of the Frankford Yellow Jackets this afternoon, when the Chicago Bears won a National Professional league game at the Frankford stadium. The final score was Chicago, 13; Frankford, 6.

Grange ran wild during the first half and scored 12 of Chicago's 13 points. The Grange family produced all 13 of the points when Garland Grange booted the 1 extra point.

Red ran the Yellow Jackets ragged on two wonderful sprints which wound up in touchdowns. The first chase was for 51 yards in the first period when he broke away and went around left end to the goal line. His brother then kicked the extra point.

Grange's second touchdown run was a dash of 75 yards diagonally across the field in the second quarter. He showed remarkable speed in this run, leaving Frankford pursuers far out of reach.

The Jackets came strong at the start of the third period, scoring a touchdown in the first five minutes. After an exchange of punts Frankford worked the ball to the 10 yard line from where Nydahl went around left end for the Jackets' lone touchdown. Lineup:

New "COLD-TREATMENT" process

PRESERVES "PEAK OF FRESHNESS" FLAVOR IN CIGARS . !

Philadelphia hails "Cold-Treated" Cigars

Here are the comments of some of a great number of Philadelphia men who were invited to try the "Cold-Treated" cigars. They speak for themselves.

FELLOW CIGAR SMOKERS, if you've ever smoked a really fresh cigar, right after it's been made—you know that no other smoke hits the spot as that one did.

It lingers in your memory the way the taste of a fresh peach would linger with a man who'd always eaten dried ones.

How to bring you that "Peak of Freshness" flavor has long puzzled cigar manufacturers. But now Dutch Masters has achieved it—with the revolutionary NEW "Cold-Treatment" process!

This amazing process takes each Dutch Masters cigar just as it comes from the machine—just at the precise moment when the fine tobaccos are at their freshest, blandest, most fragrant perfection.

And then by this exclusive and secret process of "Cold-Treatment," seals in the cigar that new-made flavor and aroma . . seals it in so that it remains in the cigar until your match releases it for your pleasure—in long, cool puffs of "fresh flavor" smoke!

Try a Dutch Masters "Cold-Treated" cigar today! And enjoy that greatest of smoke-thrills—a cigar as fresh as if it had just been made.

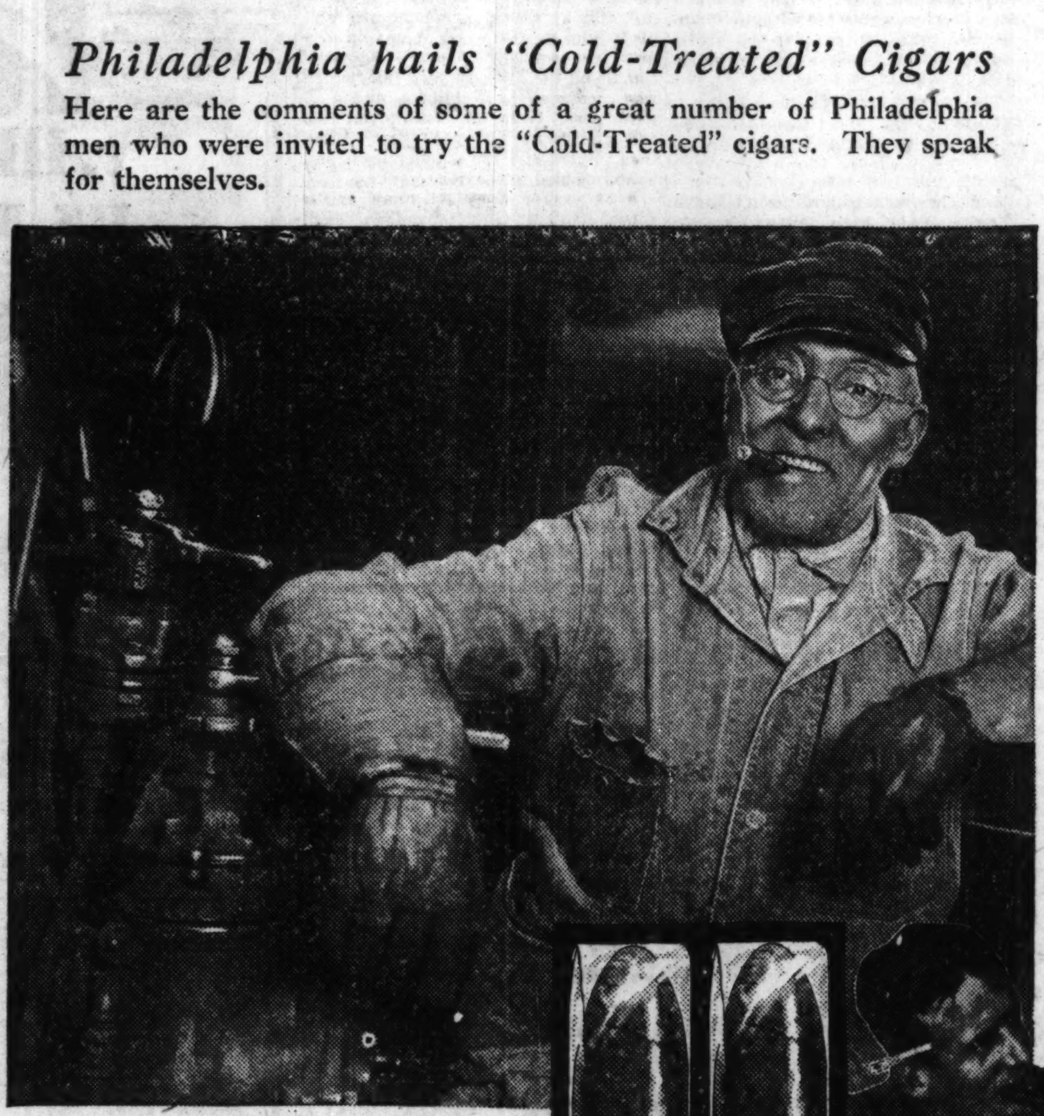
9023 Baltimore Ave., Chicago



"After the run there's nothing like a fresh Dutch Masters for relaxation," says Mr. John Gould, Morrisville, Pa.

Says Mr. Jack Kepsen, "Dutch Masters is a great smoke. It's so fresh."

Says Mr. Bissell, "I've smoked Dutch Masters before. This new cold-treatment seems to make it fresher and more fragrant than ever."

"So this is one of those new cold-treated cigars. Well, you can say for me that it's a great smoke," says Mr. Ollie Davis, Ludington Flying Service, Inc.

SPEED TO DECIDE HAWK-CANADIEN CLASH TONIGHT

Morenz Leads Fast Skating Montreal Sextet.

Les Canadiens of Montreal, who are leading the National Hockey league in scoring, will play the Blackhawks tonight at the Stadium. This formidable sextet is headed by Howie Morenz, who has been termed by hockey experts and fans as the greatest player the game has known.

For seven years Howie has been reinforced by Aurel Joliat, the elusive 136 pound midget of the game. The third member of this attacking trio is Wildore Larochelle.

A former Chicago Hawk, Nick Wasnie, is teamed up on a second string, with Al Mondou and "Pit" Lupine, who broke into hockey's record books last season when he scored six goals in one game.

Burke Seems Out of Place.

In front of the veteran, George Hainsworth, who will guard the nets, Les Canadiens have three defense men, Battleship Leduc, Silvio Mantha, and Marty Burke, whose name seems out of place in the French sounding lineup.

The feature of tonight's tussle will be the flashing speed of the team, both of which have two sets of fast forward combinations.

Penalties probably will be plentiful as the Frenchmen have the most temperamental puck chasers in the league. Aurel Joliat and Johnny Gagnon are almost alike when it comes to fiery outbursts. The "Mighty Mite," as Joliat is known, always carries a chip on his shoulder.

Undefeated in League.

Manager Bill Tobin of the Hawks announced yesterday that the Earl Miller-Tommy Cook-Stew Adams forward line combinations will replace Desjardins, Romnes, and Ingram in tonight's tilt.

The Hawks have not lost a year game, their record showing a tie with the New York Rangers and a victory over the Boston Bruins, two of the strongest teams of the league. Lineup:

MAROONS WIN, 4-3

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Stung by four straight defeats, the Montreal Maroons tonight shed their inability to score and defeated the New York Americans, 4 to 3, in a National Hockey league match here.

The local heavy scorers of former years found their shooting eyes tonight, Stewart, Siebert, Trottier, and Ward each netting while the Americans retaliated with goals by Burch, Neville, and Patterson.

The game was far more wide open than the two teams usually play and both goalies were hard put to keep the scores from reaching double figures. The Americans had previously been scored on only once since the season started, while the Maroons had only scored one goal in their first four starts. The lineup:

St. Rita, Loyola Meet for Catholic Prep Crown Today

Loyola of the north section and St. Rita of the south will battle for the championship of the Catholic league at Loyola stadium today. The game will start at 2:15 o'clock.

Loyola has the stronger record of the two, but the south side eleven has always been a jinx to the academy team. They met for the league championship in 1923, with St. Rita the victor. In three intersectional games since then Loyola has been unable to score on the south siders.

Shamrocks Beat Millers in Overtime, 3-2

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—The Chicago Shamrocks, by an overtime goal scored by Bobby Burns, flashed to its first American Hockey league victory here tonight when it repulsed Minneapolis, 3 to 2. Both teams flashed a brand of hockey surprisingly good for so early in the season.

The Millers took a 1 to 0 lead 14 minutes after the first period opened on Lessard's goal. But the Cardinals came back to score twice in the second period, on goals which found Headley and Burns combining on the first and Gordy Brudson doing the job single handedly on the second.

But that lead, too, was dissipated as the Millers did their business. Only seconds after Brydson had sent the Chicagoans into the lead, Fred Gordon sent a long shot past Sam Timmins and the score again was knotted. pace in the overtime. For six min-

SHAMROCKS' HOMECOMING

Thanksgiving evening at 8:30 o'clock the Shamrocks will make their Chicago debut at the Stadium. Their opponents will be the Tulsa Oilers, runners-up last year in the American Hockey league play-offs.

On the same night the American league play will get into full swing. While the Shamrocks battle the Oilers, the Minneapolis Millers will be fighting off the Hornets at Duluth, and the St. Louis Fliers, collectors of the most goals in the American race last year, will be testing their 1931 offense against the champion Kansas City Pla-Mors at Kansas City.

The Shamrocks are young and fast. They promise to be in the running at the play-offs. But their inauguration is going to be far from a social event once they hit the ice with the Tulsa Oilers.

Baylor Sweeps Through Texas Christian, 35 to 14

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Texas Christian university's reign over Southwest conference football circles was brought to an abrupt and definite close here today, when Baylor swept them aside on a wind swept gridiron, 35 to 14.

Given less than an even chance of holding their own against the 1929 champions, the Golden Bears from Waco played heads up football and took advantage of the breaks to rout their opponents almost completely for the first three periods and then stave off a last quarter rally.

Greencastle, Ind., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Coming from behind in the last few minutes of play De Pauw university defeated Wabash college in their thirty-sixth annual football game here this afternoon, 7 to 6. Thus the season, despite a defeat by Illinois Wesleyan, is rated by De Pauw as a very successful year. Wabash had lost previously to Butler, Manchester, Ball State Teachers, and Centre.

Valparaiso Upsets Wheaton in Free Scoring Battle

Valparaiso, Ind., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Wheaton college was upset by Valparaiso university this afternoon, 19 to 14. The punting and open field running of Tillman of Wheaton was outstanding. Carey, half back, and Kawalski, full back, starred for Valparaiso.

Lindblom Wins Over Harrison, 13-6, for Title

rison's passing attack failed and Kopczak punted over the Lindblom goal. Mellies delivered another first down in two plays, and then Harrison stopped him. Mack punted to midfield, and on the first play Pilney swept around right end to the four yard line before he was forced out of bounds. Baxa and Kubic then hit the line, the latter finally going over. His kick for the extra point was blocked.

Then it was that Lindblom began to get under way. With Chorvat, Ziman and Mellies pounding the Harrison line on straight plays, the south siders pushed the ball into position for a plunge by Mellies and he delivered. The extra point was disallowed because of illegal use of hands by a Lindblom player.

In the middle of the third period, after neither team had made any progress, Pilney fumbled and Mellies recovered for Lindblom on Harrison's 30 yard line. The Mellies-Ziman-Chorvat combination pushed through again, with Ziman going over. Mack then plunged for the extra point.

Harrison took to the air after this, only to see two passes from Pilney to Klein miss completion by inches. Lindblom apparently was on the verge of another score in the fourth quarter, but Harrison stopped the south side attack on its 20 yard line.

BLUE BLOOD AND BLUE RIBBONS AT 1,000 DOG SHOW

Coliseum Exhibit Will Continue Today.

Despite a plebeian din of yelps, barks, growls, snarls, and howls, the aristocracy of the dog kingdom managed to get a smart array of blue ribbons pinned on its blue blooded constituency yesterday at the Coliseum. It was the opening of the annual two day show of the Western Specialty Clubs association, and close to 1,000 animals of various clans went on parade.

All afternoon and evening dog fanciers as well as plain laymen who don't mind very much whether a dog is a blue blood or not as long as he is good to look at and friendly milled around the large exhibition hall. Many persons were seen pausing before an exhibit of china dogs, the decorative kind a dog enthusiast might place upon his mantelpiece.

Few Lap Poodles Displayed.

There was a marked absence of lap poodles and pekingese, and a multitudinous supply of Great Danes, some of them weighing 150 pounds and when standing on their hind feet close to six feet tall. Values on some of these were placed as high as $1,000.

There was an abundance of bulldogs, cocker spaniels and the various branches of the terrier and setter families. But the Great Danes and the Irish terriers especially seemed to delight the small boy visitors.

Winners of blue ribbons in yesterday's contests were:

Mickey Walker, marking time for his heavyweight bout with K. O. Christner at the Coliseum Friday, is a born fighter. He probably is the only man in the profession today who really loves to fight.

"Mike the Giant Killer," as he has been called since the time he whipped Johnny Risko, is a throwback from the old time breed of game, fighting Irish who fought for hours and days and weeks with anything at hand merely to see which was the better man.

Walker, of course, gets paid for fighting, always has been paid since he became a professional, but to this day the old Irish battle glint is observed in his eye once a contest starts. And he has been known to show signs of keen regret when the last bell rang in a fight which did not go to a decisive conclusion.

28 Years a Fighter.

Mickey, born in a colony of fighting Irish in the town of Elizabeth, N. J., 29 years ago, was slinging his fists at neighborhood rivals as soon as he was able to toddle. It has been said of him by relatives that he aimed a right hand at an older brother before he got out of the cradle.

Little Mike was a giant killer when in grammar school in Elizabeth. He soon became champion of the school. There was a high school next door and one day the bully of the high school beat the daylights out of one of the grammar school kids.

When Mickey heard that he jumped the fence and fought the high school bully to a finish with the lads of both schools forming a circle around them. It was a desperate rough and tumble struggle, but Mickey won it. Ever since he has liked to fight bigger boys and bigger men. The world knows he still is at it because he intends to be heavyweight champion, even if he does weigh under 170 in his best battling trim.

Confident He'll Beat Schmeling.

Walker always has fought among the best, right from the start. He has been welterweight champion of the world, he is middleweight champion, and he will go to the mat with any man who tries to tell him he will not be heavyweight champion before the leaves start tumbling from the trees next October.

It was only natural that Mickey, chased out of three schools for fighting, would take to the mitt game for a livelihood. He was started as a professional fighter by Jack Bulger, a Jersey pal of his boyhood days, and together they went on their way to the welterweight crown.

When Mickey was boss of the 147 pounders, Jack Kearns paid $50,000 to become Walker's manager.

Walker started fighting around Elizabeth in 1919 and three years later was welterweight champion of the world. That's how fast he traveled. By a series of sensational victories he boxed his way into prominence and in 1922 he stood out as the only legitimate challenger of Jack Britton for the welterweight bauble.

Beats Britton for Title.

Britton was a great fighter with more experience. But the Jersey Toy Bulldog proved too much for him in a bitter 15 round fight in New York and walked out of the ring with the crown.

Walker made a bid for the middleweight crown when he had no welterweights to fight. He fought Harry Greb 15 rounds in the Polo grounds in New York when Manager Jack Kearns was barred out of the park by the boxing commission. Walker made a splendid effort, but without Kearns to judge pace for him, Mickey was outscored in enough rounds to lose the decision.

Shade Puts Up a Battle.

Later Walker and Dave Shade fought 15 rounds for the welterweight championship in Yankee stadium in New York. That was a fight. It had the thousands in the ball park wild. At the end of the fourteenth round the verdict was much in doubt.

The fifteenth won the fight for Walker. Kearns sent him out of his corner like a bulldog and he pounded Shade into a state of coma in those three minutes. Dave was out on the ropes, though on his feet, at the bell.

Tiger Flowers was beaten by Mickey at the Coliseum for the middleweight championship that Mickey has held ever since. The Flowers fight took place in 1926.

In invasions of the light heavyweight class he has stopped Armand Emanuel and Mike McTigue, whipped Paul Berlenbach, but lost a decision to Tommy Loughran, then 175 pound king in a fight which opened the Chicago Stadium.

CONQUERORS OF GREEN BAY MEET ON SOX GRIDIRON

The Memphis Tigers professional football team, the only eleven to defeat Green Bay in three years until the Cardinals upset the Packers last Sunday, meet these same Chicago Cardinals at Comiskey park this afternoon.

Memphis, which is not a member of the National Professional league, boasts a team of southern and far western stars, many of whom were selected as all-Americans in their college days. Perhaps their most outstanding performer is Tony Holm of Alabama, who starred in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena last year. California critics hailed him as a second Nevers after his demonstration of running and passing.

Pitted Against Nevers.

This afternoon he will be pitted against Ernie Nevers himself, and Chicago fans will have a chance to judge for themselves if he is as great as the blonde giant who has been playing brilliantly all fall for the Cardinals.

The Memphis Tigers are both the lightest and the fastest team the Cardinals have met this season. The squad of 26 averages 187 pounds, much heavier than a college outfit, but 5 pounds lighter per man than the Cardinals. But their speed and passing accounted for a 20 to 7 victory over Green Bay last year as well as a triumph over the Chicago Bears.

Rely on Strong Line.

However, the fine blocking of the Cardinal line last Sunday and the form shown by Gene Rose, Bun Belden and Bill Boyd has convinced Dr. Jones that his Cards can outscore the southerners. Despite the presence of Larry Bettencourt and George Ackerman, at center and tackle, the Cardinal line which held Green Bay for three periods and then pushed them all around the field in the final period, is expected to function with the same effectiveness.

2 BARTENDERS, BOTH IRISH, WIN IN SWEEPSTAKE

Share $500,000 Prize in Manchester Handicap.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Glorious Devon, a chestnut filly, showed her heels to the field in the Manchester handicap today and two Belfast bartenders hung up their aprons to become gentlemen of leisure. They and a clerk in the Ulster department of agriculture split half a million dollars three ways, for they had drawn the horse in the Dublin Hospital sweepstakes on the race.

Widow Wins $200,000.

A little widow in Workshop, a village on the edge of Sherwood forest in England, spent the day in a daze, for she had won $200,000 because Nestorian, a 100 to 1 shot, had been in the money. Men and women on both sides of the ocean—all holders of sweepstake tickets—were richer by sums which ran from $400,000 to ,000.

Frank Ward, who has tended bar for years in a May street pub, and John Torney, a friend in the same profession, let Matt Prescott, who works in the office of the Ulster minister of agriculture, buy a share in their ticket.

Then the three, seeing a chance to pick up some sure money, sold a half interest in the total to Ladbroke & Co., a firm of London accountants. If they had held on they would have shared a million dollars.

Holds $400,000 Ticket.

As it is, none of them will collect as much as A. P. Dawes of Vancouver, British Columbia, who held a $400,000 ticket on Coligny II., which finished second, three lengths behind the winner.

There was a lot of buying and selling before the race was run, however, and it was reported Mrs. Selina Thompson, the widow of Workshop, had sold an interest in her ticket. Some of the other big winners also are believed to have shared their prospects for immediate cash.

Americans, Canadians Win.

Eleven Americans and Canadians were among the winners. A. B. Harris and John Tanagana of New York held tickets on starters, worth nearly $10,000 each, and the same was drawn by U. De Toh of Manila, P. I. Every horse which started paid the same amount to the ticket holder, for only twenty-eight entries ran and $245,715 was divided among the ticket holders.

Even those whose horses were scratched won about $2,670 each, and these included Mordick Toirer, Boston, Mass.; Margaret Cohalan, New York; B. Bailey, Peterborough, Ont.; A. Cowie of Uno, Man., and E. C. Wilson of Mattawa, Ont.

E. Billington of Lockport, Man., drew "the field," but the sweep authorities had made no announcement of what his ticket would mean in cash.

Bartender Does Jig.

Most of the big winners who could be reached today appeared to take their good fortune in their stride, but Ward was another matter.

He whooped as some one brought him the news, tore off his apron and broke into a jig while the customers cheered. Then he reached for his hat.

"And where do you think you're going?" the barmaid demanded.

"I'm off to better myself," said Ward, and he lunged out of the door.

Sun Beau Is Victorious in Bowie Stake

Bowie, Md., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau easily won the $41,000 Southern Maryland handicap here today and pushed his earnings for the year past $100,000. The victor's share was $34,000. Moreover, the five year old son of Sun Briar and Beautiful Lady is now among the half dozen greatest money winning horses in the world, as his total is reasonably close to the $300,000 mark.

May Rush Fox.

Since he won today in smashing fashion and appears to be at top form there is reason to believe that he will go on and may even threaten the record figures of Gallant Fox.

Even under the top weight of 127 pounds Sun Beau was decisively the best of the nine which ran. There was some surprise when the two fillies in the race, Valenciennes and Lady Broadcast, finished two and three back of Sun Beau and ahead of such smart campaigners as Spinach, Mokatam, Dr. Freeland, Ned O., Jock, and Phalanx.

Phalanx Runs Last.

Phalanx, a first time starter at this meeting and a royally bred son of Phalaria, was heavily backed to be second choice in the betting. He ran like a good colt, setting the pace in the early stages, but broke down and finished last.

The Commodores presented a second string appearance when they took the field. Twice within early minutes of play Poly drove to within scoring distance, only to lose the ball on downs.

An Auburn fumble paved the way to the second touchdown on the third quarter, Vanderbilt recovering on the 30 yard line. Thomas rammed it over after a 28 yard run by Fortune, Commodore full back. A forward pass converted the extra point.

In the final quarter the Commodores opened an aerial attack which in one play gained 35 yards to the scoring zone, Thomas again bucking over. The point was converted.

Millikin Beats Bradley, 12-6; Shares Title

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Millikin university defeated Bradley Tech of Peoria, 12 to 6, and thereby laid claim to a share of the Little Nineteen championship here today. Corbett of Millikin and McClarence of Bradley were outstanding stars of the game, with active lines making breaks for all scoring.

All scoring was in the first half. Millikin was stopped twice inside the 10 yard line in the fourth quarter, and the game ended with Bradley seriously threatening with passes. Bradley scored in the first two minutes of the opening quarter when Corbett fumbled going around end and Wolf caught the ball in the air and went 35 yards for a touchdown.

Bradley threatened again in the same quarter when a pass from center went over Corbett's head on the fourth down. Millikin took the lead in the second quarter on touchdowns by Corbett and Neff. The first followed a march from the 17 yard line after a short punt. A blocked punt, which Neff recovered and ran 10 yards, produced the second. Lineups:

Honkers Ready to Fly Within Hunters' Range

BY BOB BECKER.

"The geese are flying."

This is the message which was flashed to the goose hunters a few days ago from the Mississippi river bottoms. The big honkers came down from the northland quite early this year, but as is usually the case each fall the birds stick pretty close to the sandbars in the river for the first week or two.

Then they gradually reach out to the rye fields in the farming country nearby. When they start their daily program of flights from sandbars to the fields the goose hunters can make their plans to crawl into a blind for some shooting.

Hunting the Canadian honker in the central states is a sport that thousands of sportsmen look forward to each fall. Up and down the Mississippi the sand bars are dug up like a prairie dog town on the western prairie in preparation for the decoying of the geese within gun range. Pits are excavated and both live and silhouette decoys are placed on the bars in the hope that the geese will be fooled into playing around such a layout. This sandbar method of goose shooting extends up and down the Mississipi for hundreds of miles.

Howeved, within recent years the field system of goose shooting practically has taken the place of the old time stunt of reclining in a trench on a sandbar around Cairo, Ill. This famous goose and duck country now has thousands of acres of rye fields dotted with underground dugouts for the patient gunners. They are the last word in comfort.

Many are equipped with oil stoves for the bitter cold days of December. Needless to say the hunters have not been backward about forsaking the cold, exposed blinds on sandbars for these comfortable field blinds.

With the Horseshoe lake game refuge, near Cairo, dried up this fall by the 1930 drought, hunters are wondering what effect the lack of water will have on the thousands of geese that used to rest on this lake and fly from it to the rye fields to feed. The refuge in former years always has been the lure that kept many flocks of honkers in the Cairo country. Thousands of the birds even stay all winter because there always was a safe stretch of water for them as well as plenty of feed.

Now it is a question whether the crafty honkers will not check out for the south as soon as the bombardment gets lively

Manhattan, Kas., Nov. 22.—(AP)—The Kansas Aggies started a second team today against Centre college, and the Kansans, eventually aided by regulars, defeated the Kentuckians, 27 to 0.

The reserves staged two long drives in the first quarter, only to lose the ball on downs. A third march again carried the ball deep in Centre territory and Glen Harsh, midget back, squirmed through for a touchdown.

Centre played the Kansans on even terms in the second period, but proved no match for fresh backs, who, aided by a strong forward wall, tore the Praying Colonels' line to shreds in the last half.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Gene Sarazen, New York professional, came from behind today and stroked his way to leadership in the 1930 Oregon open golf tournament. Sarazen completed 18 holes on the Columbia Country club course today in 71, one under par. He shot 70 in the opening round Friday for a total of 141.

Craig Wood, New Jersey pro who led the first day's play with 69, counted 73 today to place second with 142. Tied with him were Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, and Frank Walsh, Chicago. Diegel posted 70 today but shot even par 72 in the opening round.

Walsh stole the show today, equalling Wood's spectacular 69 Friday. The first day he shot 73, giving him a total score of 142. He went out in 37 and came home in 32, the best score for nine holes in the tournament so far.

Sarazen, western open champion and former national titleholder, went out in 37 today and came in with 34. He faces 36 holes tomorrow to hold his one stroke margin.

Sun Beau Is Victorious in Bowie Stake

Bowie, Md., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau easily won the $41,000 Southern Maryland handicap here today and pushed his earnings for the year past $100,000. The victor's share was $34,000. Moreover, the five year old son of Sun Briar and Beautiful Lady is now among the half dozen greatest money winning horses in the world, as his total is reasonably close to the $300,000 mark.

May Rush Fox.

Since he won today in smashing fashion and appears to be at top form there is reason to believe that he will go on and may even threaten the record figures of Gallant Fox.

Even under the top weight of 127 pounds Sun Beau was decisively the best of the nine which ran. There was some surprise when the two fillies in the race, Valenciennes and Lady Broadcast, finished two and three back of Sun Beau and ahead of such smart campaigners as Spinach, Mokatam, Dr. Freeland, Ned O., Jock, and Phalanx.

Phalanx Runs Last.

Phalanx, a first time starter at this meeting and a royally bred son of Phalaria, was heavily backed to be second choice in the betting. He ran like a good colt, setting the pace in the early stages, but broke down and finished last.

Millikin Beats Bradley, 12-6; Shares Title

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Millikin university defeated Bradley Tech of Peoria, 12 to 6, and thereby laid claim to a share of the Little Nineteen championship here today. Corbett of Millikin and McClarence of Bradley were outstanding stars of the game, with active lines making breaks for all scoring.

All scoring was in the first half. Millikin was stopped twice inside the 10 yard line in the fourth quarter, and the game ended with Bradley seriously threatening with passes. Bradley scored in the first two minutes of the opening quarter when Corbett fumbled going around end and Wolf caught the ball in the air and went 35 yards for a touchdown.

Bradley threatened again in the same quarter when a pass from center went over Corbett's head on the fourth down. Millikin took the lead in the second quarter on touchdowns by Corbett and Neff. The first followed a march from the 17 yard line after a short punt. A blocked punt, which Neff recovered and ran 10 yards, produced the second. Lineups:

Oklahoma Aggies Score 7-0 Victory Over Oklahoma

Lewis Field, Stillwater, Okla., Nov. 22.—[U. P.]—Before the greatest crowd in the history of their annual football game, the Oklahoma Aggies scored a 7 to 0 victory over the University of Oklahoma here today. Early in the first quarter Trigg smashed through the center of the Sooner line for 21 yards and the only touchdown of the day. Capt. Baker kicked goal. A homecoming crowd of 18,000 saw the game.

Honkers Ready to Fly Within Hunters' Range

BY BOB BECKER.

"The geese are flying."

This is the message which was flashed to the goose hunters a few days ago from the Mississippi river bottoms. The big honkers came down from the northland quite early this year, but as is usually the case each fall the birds stick pretty close to the sandbars in the river for the first week or two.

Then they gradually reach out to the rye fields in the farming country nearby. When they start their daily program of flights from sandbars to the fields the goose hunters can make their plans to crawl into a blind for some shooting.

Hunting the Canadian honker in the central states is a sport that thousands of sportsmen look forward to each fall. Up and down the Mississippi the sand bars are dug up like a prairie dog town on the western prairie in preparation for the decoying of the geese within gun range. Pits are excavated and both live and silhouette decoys are placed on the bars in the hope that the geese will be fooled into playing around such a layout. This sandbar method of goose shooting extends up and down the Missisipi for hundreds of miles.

Howeved, within recent years the field system of goose shooting practically has taken the place of the old time stunt of reclining in a trench on a sandbar around Cairo, Ill. This famous goose and duck country now has thousands of acres of rye fields dotted with underground dugouts for the patient gunners. They are the last word in comfort.

Many are equipped with oil stoves for the bitter cold days of December. Needless to say the hunters have not been backward about forsaking the cold, exposed blinds on sandbars for these comfortable field blinds.

With the Horseshoe lake game refuge, near Cairo, dried up this fall by the 1930 drought, hunters are wondering what effect the lack of water will have on the thousands of geese that used to rest on this lake and fly from it to the rye fields to feed. The refuge in former years always has been the lure that kept many flocks of honkers in the Cairo country. Thousands of the birds even stay all winter because there always was a safe stretch of water for them as well as plenty of feed.

Now it is a question whether the crafty honkers will not check out for the south as soon as the bombardment gets lively

Manhattan, Kas., Nov. 22.—(AP)—The Kansas Aggies started a second team today against Centre college, and the Kansans, eventually aided by regulars, defeated the Kentuckians, 27 to 0.

The reserves staged two long drives in the first quarter, only to lose the ball on downs. A third march again carried the ball deep in Centre territory and Glen Harsh, midget back, squirmed through for a touchdown.

Centre played the Kansans on even terms in the second period, but proved no match for fresh backs, who, aided by a strong forward wall, tore the Praying Colonels' line to shreds in the last half.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Gene Sarazen, New York professional, came from behind today and stroked his way to leadership in the 1930 Oregon open golf tournament. Sarazen completed 18 holes on the Columbia Country club course today in 71, one under par. He shot 70 in the opening round Friday for a total of 141.

Craig Wood, New Jersey pro who led the first day's play with 69, counted 73 today to place second with 142. Tied with him were Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, and Frank Walsh, Chicago. Diegel posted 70 today but shot even par 72 in the opening round.

Walsh stole the show today, equalling Wood's spectacular 69 Friday. The first day he shot 73, giving him a total score of 142. He went out in 37 and came home in 32, the best score for nine holes in the tournament so far.

Sarazen, western open champion and former national titleholder, went out in 37 today and came in with 34. He faces 36 holes tomorrow to hold his one stroke margin.

How United States Makes War

GEN. SUMMERALL REVEALS TACTICS OF BATTLEFIELD

New Machines Should Minimize Losses.

Gen. Charles P. Summerall, "the fighting general of the A. E. F.," who retired as chief of staff of the United States army on Friday, consented, on the eve of his retirement, to outline for The Tribune his conclusions as to fundamental military strategy for America. The findings are in the form of an interview and the interview was prepared by Brig. Gen. Henry J. Reilly, O. R. C. Gen. Reilly's article follows:

"Our wonderful industrial development furnishes the answer to success without the heavy loss of life in the infantry which was the nightmare to both statesmen and generals during the great war.

"That is, of course, if the army through study and experimentation is on the alert to take the fullest advantage of the latest development.

"I regard doing so as one of its chief duties."

In these sentences Gen. Summerall summed up a subject to which he has devoted continuous thought and a great deal of time.

"General," I said to him, "I remember that during the war whenever the infantry failed to take the enemy's position, despite having suffered heavy losses, you always insisted that it was due to the improper handling of or lack of sufficient artillery to take advantage of its power to crush out resistance and open the way.

Motor Driven War Machines.

"Doesn't our steady industrial development, particularly in aviation and motor driven armed and armored vehicles of all kinds for use on the ground, give us an opportunity in the future to open the way for the infantry in a manner not possible during the great war?

"Incidentally, do you think that these motor driven war machines of the air and ground will replace infantry and field artillery in the decisive battles of the future?"

The general was seated at his desk in the office of the chief of staff in the state, war, and navy building in Washington, D. C.

Speaking in that calm but determined manner which characterizes him on or off a battlefield, the general asked:

"When we are unfortunate enough to have war what is the common sense thing to do?"

Find Limitations.

"Bend all our energies and resources to bringing it to a successful conclusion as quickly as possible," I answered.

"Of course," he replied. "Then the question we must answer is: In what practical way can we use the new war machines our inventors and industry have given us to bring this about?

"This is best answered by finding out what are the powers and limitations of the new war machines, that is, what they can do well and what they can do only badly or not at all, and then determining how far these powers and limitations permit their advantageous use for strategical and tactical purposes.

THREE MILITARY ERRORS

"By strategy, I mean, in general, use to produce military results off the battlefield, and by tactics, use for the same purpose on the battlefield."

"Military history can furnish us some guides, I suppose?" I said.

"Of course it can," he replied. "Despite the present fashion in many quarters to deride it, it very clearly indicates principles underlying past mistakes.

"There are three of these which we are in danger of repeating unless we very carefully and without prejudice find out exactly what the powers and limitations of our new war machines permit us to do with them strategically and tactfully.

"The first of these errors is that wars can be won by attacks on cities and the terrorization of their civilian populations instead of beating the enemy's armed forces in battles.

"The second is that greater speed in movement can make up for lack of ability to give and take hard blows continuously over a long period of time.

"The third is that large numbers of individual soldiers can win a battle if they are sufficiently determined and courageous without taking the fullest advantage of the tremendous blows which all our war machines used for mass effect can give in their aid."

"Bombing and gas attacks on cities by aviation; the replacement of infantry, cavalry and field artillery by a mechanized force made up of motor driven tanks armed with cannon and machine guns, self-propelled field guns, armored cars, and armored carriers for infantry and machine guns, and the tendency among the more conservative officers to pay scant attention to the help which aviation and a mechanized force can give infantry in battle are the three present day examples of these errors which you have in mind?" I asked.

"Yes," said the general, "let's take them up in turn.

Attacking Chicago.

"Putting aside my personal belief that the majority of the world has reached the point where it will not tolerate such slaughter as would result from the bombing and gassing of a city, let us look at the matter from a purely practical point of view. What is the population and area of your home, Chicago?"

"Something over 3,000,000 people living on 135,000 acres of ground," I answered.

"Well," said the general, "if you will figure out how many of our 4,000 pound high explosive bombs, and how much of our worst gas it would take to damage decisively Chicago and its population, you will find that even as rich as we are we would have a hard time manufacturing enough airplanes to do the job.

"However," he added, "that is not the main point. All airplanes must start from somewhere, they must have a place to come back to; in other words, flying fields. The best way to stop enemy air attacks on cities or anything else is to attack their flying fields be they on shore or airplane carriers at sea. This is universally recognized by air services the world over. Thus even with our newest weapon we cannot escape from the principle that victory goes to the side which destroys or defeats the armed force of the other.

The Same Old Question.

"The question of a mechanized force replacing infantry, cavalry and field artillery comes back to the old question which always comes up as to whether some new war machine can replace old ones or is an addition to the arsenal of war.

"History is full of examples to guide us. It has taught us that unless a new machine can do better what the old ones did under similar circumstances, they do not replace the old but make one more instrument which an army must have.

"Shoulder firearms have replaced bows and arrows. However, no one alive at the time the first firearms were used in battle lived to see the change completed, because it was many years before shoulder firearms could equal bows and arrows in range and accuracy and many more in rapidity of fire!

THE MACHINE GUN

"The history of the machine gun gives us an example of how the adoption of a new weapon may be delayed with serious consequences because overenthusiasm in its early days leads to an attempt to substitute it for an older type, when its real use is as an additional weapon.

"French enthusiasm for the new weapon, the machine gun, caused it to be substituted for some of the French field guns just before the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-'71. As the true use of machine guns is to increase the effectiveness of infantry fire and not as a substitute for artillery fire the French suffered considerably.

"In the great war where machine guns were used in tremendous numbers and with such decisive effect, the proportion of artillery to infantry, including the machine gunners, went far beyond anything previously dreamt of.

The Question of Tanks.

"Tanks and other vehicles of a mechanized force have a speed far beyond anything foot or horse troops can approach on the ground. They can carry a certain amount of armor. However, just like ships at sea they cannot have both speed and the heavy armor. The more speed the heavier the engines. The more weight used for engines the less of the total weight of any type of tank is left for armor. The bigger the tank the better target it makes for artillery. We know that our light or small tanks if they want to survive must keep moving and more than 1,000 yards away from enemy guns, while our heavy tanks are very vulnerable at 3,000 yards even though on the move.

"Neither the most powerful aviation nor mechanized force can equal the infantry and field artillery in their usual battle formation in giving and taking hard blows continuously over a long period of time. Also infantry, cavalry, mountain artillery and even wheeled field artillery can freely march and fight in vast stretches of country in which no mechanized force could move."

"Then," said I, "the tank is one thing more we must add to our army rather than a replacement for some older branch of the service."

"The tank and all forms of mechanization are absolutely essential additions," replied the general, "unless we are to repeat the third error." Then after a pause and speaking with marked emphasis, he said: "The most tragic chapters in military history are those written in the blood of gallant infantry striving by sheer courage and determination to make up for the lack of support of every conceivable weapon which could lift some part of their always heavy burden.

Infantry Needs Help.

"Though Gustavus Adolphus and Napoleon I. proved by their victories what could be done when the full power of artillery was used to support infantry, many generals neglecting their artillery still clung to the fallacious idea that infantry if sufficiently determined and courageous could garner victory.

"With the wonderful possibilities opened to us by our industry we must see that we use mechanization to its fullest power to help our infantry and artillery just as Gustavus Adolphus and Napoleon I. set immortal examples by the use of their artillery."

"General, will you illustrate just how this could be done once our different types of machines and weapons of all kinds have been decided upon, the proper tactics and organization for their use worked out, and the plans completed for the full mobilization of our industry at any time war comes?" I said, putting a map of the Argonne in front of him, on his desk.

THE ARGONNE ATTACK

"Here is the line," he said, pointing with his finger, "along which our first attack in the Argonne, that of Sept. 26, came to a halt and from which our second attack, that of Oct. 4, was begun.

"It furnishes us a good example because it shows what inevitably will happen unless we develop the use of aviation and mechanized forces to their fullest capacity to help the infantry forward.

"Why did our troops, after several days highly successful fighting in which they captured and broke through the enemy's main system of trenches, find their advance stopped?"

"For two reasons," I answered. "The first was because our infantry had to attack the enemy's infantry largely unaided by the mass of our artillery which had not been able to move forward quickly enough. Thus they had to rely primarily upon their own infantry weapons and therefore could not generate enough fire to beat down the enemy and advance.

"The second was because when our artillery had gotten up, the reserve divisions the enemy had telegraphed for had had time to hurry in from all directions and were in action strongly reinforcing the remnants of their infantry not killed, wounded, or made prisoners when we captured their first intrenched position and drove these men before us."

Enemy Reinforces.

"Yes," said the general, "and therefore the enemy built up a new position in front of us more heavily manned and gunned than the one we had captured.

"Now," he continued, "our attack on Sept. 26, across the Argonne on a 23 to 24 mile front was a splendid example of a complete surprise, as the enemy expected and had prepared for our main attack on the San Mihiel front.

"Yet we were unable to take full advantage of it to break entirely through, because of the two reasons you have stated.

"Here is where aviation and mechanization will come in, in the future, if we take full advantage of their powers to do things the older branches can not do.

"Aviation can attack far, far beyond the reach of our longest range artillery. Therefore, in such a situation it can seriously delay the arrival of reserves by attacking them while en route by rail and by motor trucks and marching on the various roads at distances which during the war they could not be interferred with.

Can Follow Enemy.

"The mechanized force, by its ability to move with speed over and through the obstruction of a battlefield, can keep open a hole such as that made in the Argonne by the fighting of Sept. 26 and several following days, by keeping up with the defeated remnants of the enemy and thus preventing them from settling down into a new position when well out of range of the artillery.

"Now," said the general, coming to a pause, "I suppose you understand why I have discussed what we can do after a successful surprise attack before describing how we would use the new weapons in the attack itself?"

"Because," I answered, "in the knock down, drag out fighting of an attack on an enemy's position, aviation and a mechanized force, as necessary as is their aid, are so much less powerful than the customary form of infantry and field artillery that they are auxiliaries to these branches of the service; whereas in the uses which you have just discussed they can do what infantry and field artillery of the usual type can not do at all."

"Yes," replied the general, "having shown how the power of these arms to do things the old arms can not do, can be used to reap the rewards of victory, let us take up the actual battle itself and by discussing the details we will see that these new arms, while auxiliaries, have become essential ones."

ARMIES DIG IN

"Let us take the situation in the Argonne just prior to our surprise attack of Sept. 26. Here was the usual stabilization of trench warfare. At the close of the first battle of the Marne in 1914 the French and Germans had dug in facing each other along this line. They continued from then on to dig more trenches. By the time the German attack on Verdun in 1916 was over this line, which saw some of the heaviest fighting during that great battle, was a broad belt of many square miles covered with a maze of trenches.

"Each side at various times could and did capture some of the trench positions of the other, but neither could break all the way through. As powerful as the aid given by the artillery, it could not reach far enough to carry the infantry all the way through. In other words, despite the tremendous smashing of the enemy's artillery batteries, his machine gun nests, and infantry positions by allied artillery fire prior to and during the infantry attack, enough of all three always escaped so that sooner or later the attacking infantry ran into such strong fire that they were stopped by their heavy losses in killed and wounded.

"Therefore, the great question for us to solve today is how we can use aviation and mechanization first to help the artillery do a more thorough job of smashing before the infantry attacks, and secondly, to overcome during the attack enemy batteries, machine gun nests, and infantry positions which have survived that smashing."

HIGHWAY NEEDED TO RELIEVE JAMS ON NORTH SHORE

Would Take Traffic Off Sheridan Road.

Plans are being discussed for a new highway which would give residents of north shore suburbs as far as Highland Park a new access to Chicago and help to relieve the traffic strain on Sheridan road, which yearly grows more acute. This highway, roughly, would parallel the west side of the Chicago and North Western railway tracks and connect with McCormick boulevard at Evanston.

While the plans now for a completed highway are in a nebulous stage, it is pointed out by highway experts that in the years to come such a thoroughfare will have to be opened to traffic to relieve north shore congestion. In most of the north shore suburbs interested sections of this potential highway are now in use.

Want Unified System.

Now planners of the Chicago district road system are urging the connecting of the various completed sections into a unified arterial highway. Possibly one name could be given to the road, which has several appellations in the various towns. Suggestions are that some Indian chieftain who roamed the north shore in the early days of Chicago might have his name commemorated or honor might be done to a hero of the civil or world war.

Taking a look over this potential thoroughfare, a start is made in Evanston at the point where McCormick boulevard runs into West Railroad avenue. West Railroad avenue is a fifty-two foot street, which was completed this year. It runs to Wilmette.

Changes Name Again.

West Railroad avenue becomes Main street in Wilmette. It is a recently completed street about the same width as the section in Evanston and it runs to Elmwood avenue—a few blocks south of the city limits. Between Elmwood and the city limits there is no new pavement, but special assessment proceedings are now under way in court with a view to finishing it through the length of the town.

Passing through Kenilworth, the name of the thoroughfare changes back to West Railroad avenue again. The avenue is now being paved as a fifty-six foot highway, and it is hoped that construction will be completed before the winter's cold sets in. This section crosses the town from the south boundary to the north.

Coming to the Winnetka line a gap is found which extends north for three or four blocks to Winnetka avenue. Then Center street picks up the burden of the future highway. This Winnetka section is fifty-six feet wide, being three or four years old. Then there is a gap on Center from Elm street to Tower road—or Hubbard Woods.

Right of Way Sought.

The village of Winnetka is now negotiating with the Chicago and North Western for a strip of land along its right of way, and there are proceedings in court to pave. From Tower road there is a good pavement running through Hubbard Woods to the south line of Glencoe.

Reaching Glencoe, an uncertain situation is found. For the last seven or eight years there has been considerable controversy in the town as to what route a road improvement which would link up with other suburbs should take. Further, the matter of expense has proved an obstacle. One plan is for a highway to parallel the North Western tracks, but this is only one proposal among several and its fate is doubtful. The whole subject is expected to be threshed out again at the next meeting of the town board.

Green Bay road goes directly to Highland Park, where connections may be made with highways which extend on north or northwest through Lake county and on to the resorts of Wisconsin. The county is considering paving to a width of forty feet that section of the Green Bay road which runs through the forest preserve immediately to the south of the Lake county line.

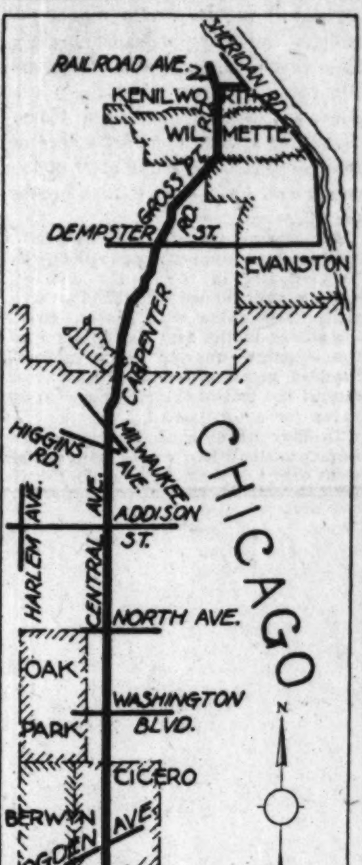
Way Into Chicago.

A glance at a Chicago street map shows the advantages to motorists entering the city by way of the projected new highway in view of present congestion. The ideal proceeding on leaving Evanston now is to follow McCormick boulevard to Devon avenue, crossing the drainage canal on Devon and turn right on Kedzie, following this street to Peterson avenue. On Peterson avenue the motorist proceeds east, where he may either continue his journey south by way of Ashland avenue or he may go on to Sheridan road. Plans are now under way for the extension of McCormick road south to Lawrence avenue. When this is accomplished travel will be still further simplified, for the Lincoln park board is to extend the outer drive now terminating at Montrose avenue to Lawrence and on north. Thus connection may be made at Lawrence or other east and west streets.

Pontiac-Detroit Aerial Highway Work Starts Soon

Detroit, Nov. 22.—Not later than Jan. 1 work will begin on the new aerial highway which will start at the mouth of the Detroit-Windsor tunnel and end in Pontiac, twenty-five miles north. It is to be constructed over the tracks of the Grand Trunk railway which will be electrified. The cost of the highway is estimated at $15,000,000. It will have no intersections and no maximum speed limits. High speed automobiles will be able to leave Pontiac, pass completely over the city of Detroit from north to south, go through the Detroit-Windsor tunnel fifty feet underneath the Detroit river and be in Canada in thirty minutes. The highway will have six lanes of travel.

SHORT CUT



This map shows how north shore motorists desiring to go to the Chicago west side or to get onto Ogden avenue can take a short cut which will enable them to avoid the more congested avenues of travel. This short cut is made possible through recently completed improvements. Central avenue was recently opened between Higgins road and Avondale avenue and this summer the seventeen foot center strip of the thoroughfare was paved by Cook county. The north end of Central avenue runs into Carpenter road, which, in turn, becomes Gross Point road and leads into Railroad avenue at Wilmette. The Chicago Motor club prepared this map.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Chevrolet's new cars for 1931 received enthusiastic public reception when put on exhibition recently, according to reports received at headquarters from dealers all over the country. The first showing this year was timed two months ahead of the customary date on account of financial conditions. It was felt that exhibition of the new cars would result in an increased public demand. This decision has been vindicated, according to reports received from dealers.

The new cars sell at prices lower than ever before in Chevrolet's history. There are nine types in the line, of which three are open models. The new Chevrolet has a two inch increase in its wheelbase and among its improvements are the following: A fully insulated front compartment, easier steering, more durable clutch, smoother and quieter transmission and a liberal use of rustless chromium plate on exposed bright spots.

Three hundred and fifty-eight thousand miles of fast, accident free driving over every conceivable sort of road, and under practically every operating condition known to motorists is the record piled up by Jack "Million" Graham, road scout of the Chicago Motor club, in the four Nash cars he has employed as pathfinders for the Chicago club since March of 1921.

An all time record for sales at the Chicago salon, which closed recently, is claimed by Duesenberg. In the eight days of the salon the company's sales totaled $147,000 or approximately 100 per cent greater than at any previous Chicago salon.

WINTER HOLDS NO TERRORS FOR WOMEN DRIVERS

BY VIRGINIA SCHMITZ.

Winter driving does not mean frozen toes and frozen radiators for the woman driver this year. Mechanically speaking, her car should run just as easily as it did in August. And sartorially speaking, she may collect for herself all the accessories of a winter in the Alps and be comfortably and pleasingly garbed for her turn at the wheel.

Foot muffs and carriage boots, fur lined gloves, not to mention woolly bonnets, heavy pelted coats, zipper blankets and even leggings make it a pleasure for the modern feminine motorist to venture out on chilly highways whether her car is closed or open.

Zipper Blankets.

Of course many of the luxurious wrappings offered are not necessary when the car in question has a heater front and back but even then she will want to add some of these accessories to her wardrobe as a sop to Nemesis or just because they are attractive.

Or she will choose to drive an open car and be glad for all the extra coverings she can secure. Keeping warm then will not be a style gesture but a necessity.

She may have a blanket that is made to fit snugly round her and closes with a zipper front. Or she may choose a footmuff of broadcloth lined with lambswool and edged with fur made just to envelop her two feet. Flossy monograms and color combinations will make it a decoration as well as comfort.

If she is the driver, the chances are she will prefer lined galoshes, or high Russian boots, fur lined and fur trimmed. Perhaps dainty satin or velvet carriage boots, lined with quilted satin or lamb's wool will suit her purposes best if not their more sturdy counterparts in calfskin and soled with heavy rubber.

Mittens and Gloves.

The variety to be had in fur lined gloves makes it possible for the woman who does not want her hands to be clumsy on the steering wheel to find her type. Suede lined with lapin or sheared squirrel will probably be her choice. If she prefers mittens, she can have them plain or colored, silky angora ones with fingers or without. And if she is absent minded, she can attach them through her sleeves with ribbons reminiscent of kindergarten days.

For the woman who wants her hands entirely free on the wheel, automobile manufacturers have come forward with electrical pads to warm the wheel, where her hands rests.

Heaters of one type or another can be found in almost any car these days; in fact they are standard equipment in some makes. For many women who don't do the driving an extra heater in the back seat will solve the problem of keeping warm in the winter. But ventilation requirements keeps the necessity for warm accessories.

Other Winter Accessories.

To keep the frost bite from her ears, the woman driver can secure a woolen toque or fur cap to match her ensembles. No enterprising shop has yet come forward with a suggestion to alleviate cold noses. The only thing on the market that would serve the purpose is the nose guard used by football players but it's a bit too cumbersome.

Add a fur coat or a heavy blanket wrap to the rest of the ensemble, woolen hose which can be worn either under or over the other hose, and milady will be ready and eager to look forward to a long, hard winter without any qualms and without the necessity of giving up her motoring.

AVIATION

REFINEMENT IN RADIO BEACONS TO AID FLYERS

BY ROBERT WOOD.

A new refinement in radio reception for airplanes which will permit pilots flying off the established radio trails to find their way about through storms and fogs has been announced by the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce.

The new instrument is known as the "deviometer" and derives its name from the fact that it is able to pick up the signals of the radio range beacon, established now on most of the important airways, even though the plane in which it is installed is flying off the established course of the range beacon.

Announcement of this new development was made recently by Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aviation, who stated that the instrument is now undergoing final tests. Experimental work on this instrument was started last year when it became apparent that some such device would be greatly needed to amplify the uses of the system of radio directional beacons used to guide the mail planes on their courses.

Avoiding Collisions.

By providing the pilot with the means of flying courses, whether or not they are the main courses marked out by radio range beacons, the deviometer, Mr. Young pointed out, not only will increase the usefulness of the beacons to all flyers but will add materially to the safety of flying in thick weather by aiding planes to keep to the right of the regular beacon path, thus avoiding possible collision with planes coming from the opposite direction.

"To use the deviometer," Mr. Young explained, "the airman need only set his instrument for the course desired, provided this course is not more than 15 degrees from the regular beacon course on either side and then fly as if he were following the beam in the normal fashion."

Visual Radio Beacon.

The deviometer, it is explained, is used in connection with the ordinary visual radio beacon receiver, which is an indicator contained in a simple box mounted on the instrument board. In this box are two strips of metal called reeds which are mounted side by side. The tips of the reeds are white and are visible through the face of the instrument. When the beacon signals are received the reeds vibrate vertically, appearing to the eye as two broad white vertical ribbons. When the two white lines are equal in length the airplane is on the beacon course. Deviation from this course to the left increases the vibration of the left reed, lengthening the white line on that side while the right line shortens. Deviation to the right is noted in similar manner.

"On a congested radio-served airway it becomes possible to reduce the hazard of collision between aircraft during conditions of poor visibility by so setting the deviometer as to keep the aircraft to the right of the equisignal beacon course," Mr. Young explained.

Other Uses Suggested.

"A third use suggested for the deviometer is its aid to a pilot who has departed from the true course in order to avoid a storm area or for other reasons, as the instrument may be set to indicate a direct course to the next beacon without getting back on the original beacon course.

"It has been further suggested that the deviometer may serve as a position finder and thus be useful to aircraft not flying a beacon course."

LESS SPEED, MORE COURTESY.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Every day the auto toll mounts higher, so I am asking your paper to make a big drive for less speed and more courtesy. Most of the accidents are due to excessive speed. I see it every day and every night, and I believe a stop should be put to these hoodlums who do not even give our wives, children, and the old folks a chance to get across a busy street safe and sound. It seems that the wider the street the more cars spatter every inch of the road, and I have watched a mother on one side of Western avenue wait more than 10 minutes before she could get across the street to her little daughter.

Motorists show little consideration for the rights of others. They spatter you with mud, gas you, run over you; sideswipe you, swear at you, and what not. It is because they are in a fast car and the pedestrian is on foot that they get away with it.

I move that we get more motorcycle police to get these fellows, and I also suggest tunnels for such dangerous street intersections as Lincoln park and Center street, Lincoln avenue and Ashland, and many others.

ROOSEVELT ROAD WIDENING.

Oak Park, Nov. 21.—As a property owner in south Oak Park this writer is interested in the proposed widening of Roosevelt road through Oak Park, Berwyn, and Cicero. For years there has been agitation by Chicago interests and others to open a route for high speed traffic. It is open to conjecture as to the value of this widening, for the merchants along the street. Certainly it will be of no benefit to the abutting property owners, who will pay most of the cost. We recently completed paying the costs for the present pavement.

Roosevelt road is a state and federal highway. Therefore the total costs should be paid by these governments. Private property should not be forced to pay for such a general public benefit.

South Oak Park is a community of one family homes. Our silly zoning laws prevent building apartments, except along the boulevards and through streets. The present costs of a twenty-five foot lot, together with its taxes, is almost prohibitive for homes. Now we will be forced to pay another assessment of $250 to $350 for improvements for the benefit of others.

Roosevelt road on the Oak Park side is 70 per cent unimproved—vacant. Still the total cost is approximately $1,000,000. Most of the stores are in Berwyn, and Oak Park people must cross Roosevelt road to shop. A business street should never be used for through traffic. It is too dangerous to cross. This writer's aged mother has had several narrow escapes. Look at West Madison street and 22d street, Roosevelt road, east of Crawford. They are fine examples of wide business streets. Double parking blocks traffic. The correct method is to have parallel through streets. We must pay for a speedway and then run for our lives.

The merchants cannot depend on the business from through traffic. They derive 95 per cent of their income from the neighborhood. This is true in every business district except the "loop." As long as our zoning laws prevent apartments and thereby increasing the population per front foot, it is silly to build stores on Roosevelt road. They would remain vacant. They could not pay.

TRUCK LAW UNFAIR.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—How long must we stand for the high price of operating our trucks? We pay the largest amount for a license and get nothing but abuse in a jail in Cicero, Oak Park, or Berwyn. We pay $150 for a state license and $30 for a vehicle tax to operate a heavy truck anywhere in the state of Illinois, but our operation is limited. Many trucks use 50 gallons of gasoline a day and the tax of 3 cents on a gallon amounts to a large sum at the end of a year. When we buy our license the blank reads for trucks over 20,000 pounds, with a weight permitted of more than 20,000 pounds. But if you try to go through some town where they make their own laws, a load of 16,000 pounds may mean that you are good for a $100 fine. The law is unfair.

ARRESTED ON OUTER DRIVE.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Being a resident of the south shore, I have occasion to use the outer drive frequently. When driving home at 6 each evening, I often wonder why all drivers maintain an average speed of 35 to 40 miles an hour. In fact one cannot go slower without hazarding being hit by the car in the rear. However, one sees no motorcycle police or arrests being made for speeding at that hour.

A short while ago, about 1:30 a. m., while passing 31st street at the drive, I was presented with a ticket for going 37 miles an hour. I took the ticket and the donor received no "tip" other than that of the judge who said, "37 miles an hour at 1:30 in the morning on the outer drive is not speeding. Go out, officer, and do your duty where it is necessary. Bring me real offenders of the law."

PRICES OF ALL GRAINS RISE ON BOARD OF TRADE

Gov't Stabilization Helps Market.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

American grain markets have completely reversed their recent action and the demoralization which prevailed early in the week has been replaced by a strong undercurrent of bullish sentiment since recent government stabilization efforts.

Closing prices in wheat, corn and oats on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday were not only the highest of the week, but also the best on December wheat since Nov. 1, while corn closed the highest since Oct. 29 and oats since Oct. 30.

The improvement in sentiment among grain traders seems to be world wide, as prices at Winnipeg, Buenos Aires and Liverpool have also advanced sharply with a much better demand for Canadian cash wheat in evidence, and it was estimated that sales of around 4,000,000 bu have been put through during the last six days.

All Grains Close Higher.

At the high point yesterday wheat prices in Chicago showed an advance of 3⅛@5½c from the inside figures, while corn had moved up 8⅝@8⅞c, and oats 4½@5½c from the low point of the week with a recovery of over 10c in December wheat at Winnipeg, nearly 8c in Liverpool and 8⅞c in Buenos Aires.

As compared with a week ago wheat prices in Chicago at the finish were up 2⅞@5½c; corn, 5⅝@7¾c; oats, 3⅝@4¼c and rye, 3⅞@4⅜c, and the close was in marked contrast with the uneasy feeling which prevailed on Nov. 15.

There was no material pressure on the Chicago wheat market on Saturday, and with rather general commission house buying prices forged ahead in an impressive manner, and the close was around the top with net gains of 1@2¼c in the face of selling by holders of daily and weekly offers and scattered longs, and there was also some selling which the trade regarded as possibly for the Stabilization corporation. Some buying of December and selling of May was under way at 4⅜ difference, compared with practically even figures at one time during the week. Old December closed at 75¾@76, March, 78¾@79c; May, 80¼@80⅜c, and July, 78@78⅛c.

Russian Rumors Help Advance.

Persistent rumors from Europe of revolts in Russia, which if confirmed, may have an important bearing on exports from that country attracted considerable attention from the trade. There was buying of futures during the day by houses with important German connections. Light frost was reported in the southern part of the province of Buenos Aires, Argentina, where the new crop is in a condition to be badly damaged, and the Buenos Aires closed 3⅜@4c higher for the day, and has advanced 7@7¼c from the close on Tuesday. Private cables said shippers were heavy buyers in the Argentine market, as farmers were not inclined to sell new wheat freely.

The Winnipeg wheat market showed more strength than Chicago, closing 2⅛@3⅛ higher with July leading, while Liverpool was 1⅛@1⅞d higher with shorts covering freely. More attention is being paid abroad to the recent Argentine government report which claimed rust had lowered the prospective wheat crop by 80,000,000 bushels.

Short Covering in Corn.

Aggressive buying of corn futures headed by a leading local professional uncovered stop loss orders in that market and the bulge was not checked until the December had advanced 2¼c to 76⅛ and the May nearly 3c to 80⅝c with selling against daily and weekly offers a factor in checking the upturn. The close was 2@2⅞c higher with December, 76⅛@76¼c; March, 78⅝@⅞c; May, 80⅝@80⅞, and July, 80⅝@¾c.

While the corn market appeared somewhat strained as the result of the big advance that has taken place in the last five days, sentiment at the last was generally bullish. There was no important pressure during the day, and shorts found it difficult to cover without affecting prices. Shipping demand was again active with sales of 150,000 bu, and charters were made for 25,000 bu to Buffalo. The country took advantage of the bulge to sell 50,000 bu to arrive.

It was the gossip of the oats trade that a leading local operator had been a persistent buyer of May oats for two days, and the surplus had been taken out of the pit. Outside interest during the day was the largest in some time, with cash houses taking the December. The northwest bought December and sold May around 3c difference. Closing trades were 1⅛@1⅜c higher, December finishing at 34⅞c, and May at 38⅛c.

Trade in rye was again small, but prices advanced 2@2⅛c in sympathy with wheat, closing about the top with December, 43¾c, and May, 48⅜@48¼c.

Overcapacity of Industry Seen Bugaboo

BY SCRUTATOR.

Overproductive capacity in American industrial plants is a social bugaboo that may be no more dangerous than pumpkinhead lanterns used by little boys to scare little girls.

A few days ago Milan V. Ayres, statistical expert for the National Association of Finance Companies, read a series of prognostications from economic pundits on Nov. 4. Many of them agreed that the whole country had gone to the dogs, that there was not even an attenuated possibility of selling to the world's consumers what the world's producers could furnish, and that at least ten years would elapse before there would be any real prosperity in the country.

"But," said Mr. Ayres, "those predictions were made on Nov. 4, 1921."

When corporations earn and pay big dividends we are accustomed to think, and rightly, that prosperity is here. For the big dividend usually is earned with large aggregate wage payments. Over all industry there is a fairly constant direct ratio between total wage payments and total profits. What happened in the post-1921 era?

Corporation Earnings.

Corporations earned in 1922 about $5,700,000,000; in 1923, $6,700,000,000; in 1924, $5,900,000,000; in 1925, $8,100,000,000; in 1926, $8,200,000,000; in 1927, $7,700,000,000; in 1928, $8,500,000,000, and in 1929, $9,700,000,000.

Plant overcapacity in fact only exists if the "cats and dogs" are included. If one farmer can produce wheat and sell it at a profit for 60 cents, while another requires $1.20 to break even, the latter is overcapacity. From the social approach to his problems, the one now used most effectively by government, there are arguments why he should be kept in business. Yet it would be better for society if all wheat growers were able to sell at a low figure and still make a profit.

The railroads of the United States are commonly supposed—it is a legal fiction—to be worth $25,000,000,000. A certain part of the rail structure could be made to earn more than 5¾ per cent annually if it were divorced from the kind of rails that are not worth as earners anything like the investments made in them.

In Chicago there is an old utility generating plant that runs only when peak loads are needed. Just at present it is cheaper to use it that way than to discard it entirely. But a forward looking management knows that in a few years it must be scrapped; it costs too much to produce in it. Yet it is a part of total capacity or overcapacity in the whole country.

Cites Cotton Industry.

There is an overproductive capacity in the cotton industry. A short time ago investigation showed that much of the plant machinery in Manchester was half a century old. England had overcapacity by usual standards of recognition. A piece of machinery that hasn't earned itself a grave in fifty years ought to be regarded as a relic from bygone ages and not as a part of modern life.

Right now there is not enough consuming demand to take all the products all the plants could produce. There is, in general, more than enough to consume all that the lowest cost plants can make. Capitalism in its purest American form is marked by an eager willingness to destroy capital; to wipe off plant capacity as it approaches obsolescence. A decade hence there will be a lot more plant capacity than there is now; but it won't be the same plants; the tearing away and the replacement of the antiques will be, as it has always been, one of the principal means of furnishing employment for labor and for using new capital.

Report Week's Exports of Sugar Reach High Figure

The Cuban Mill Owners' association reported sugar exports for the week ended Nov. 15 totaled 107,000 tons, the highest of any week during the year excepting the four weeks from April 19 to May 17. The total included 12,000 tons to the United kingdom.

Receipts also were heavy, amounting to 54,000 tons and stocks at Cuban ports now total about 987,000 tons. The local market was entirely inactive, no sales being reported during that week.

TIME PAYMENT SYSTEM RIDES OUT SLUMP GALE

Bankers See Plan as Vindicated.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 22.—The twelve months which have elapsed since the current business depression reached its acute stage have demonstrated that the installment system of selling does not constitute a weak spot in the American business structure, according to bankers who have studied recent reports of installment financing companies. The fear which was expressed by economists before the current depression that the installment system might cause complications in hard times have been proven groundless, the bankers declare.

An examination of the reports of installment finance companies shows that they have met the test of a severe general depression in trade. It had been feared, before the current slump, that such a depression as now prevails with its attendant unemployment and curtailment of the national income would result in a tremendous increase in repossessions of goods sold on the installment plan. Persons buying automobiles and other articles on the installment plan, it was argued, would default in large numbers, throwing the goods back upon the financing companies, and threatening the stability of the entire installment system.

Average Contract 10 Months.

Since the average installment contract runs nearly ten months practically all installment sales made since the current depression began have either been defaulted upon or have been paid. It is, therefore, possible to study the records and to determine the effects of the depression upon the installment system. The installment companies report that while there has been a sharp increase in repossessions, compared with the figures for 1929, the total has remained relatively insignificant. The depression also caused a decline in the volume of business transacted by most of the finance companies, it was said.

The reports of the four largest installment finance companies for the first six months of 1930 showed that repossessions amounted to $2,679,000 compared with $1,486,000 during the corresponding period of last year. Total installment paper held by these companies which was from thirty to sixty days past due on June 30 amounted to $1,616,000, or .31 per cent of the retail notes receivable, which totaled $528,000,000. This compared with past due notes totaling $1,094,000 on June 30, 1929, when retail notes receivable totaled $539,575,000.

Buyers Paying Up.

Since June 30 there has been no sharp increase in repossessions, despite the severity of the business depression, the finance companies report. Despite the fact that there are from 1,000 to 1,500 installment financing companies virtually all are free of insolvencies. The reports of many companies show that while repossessions have been more numerous this year than in 1929 they have been less numerous than in the average for the last five years.

The large finance companies are predicting that they will do a larger and more profitable business next year than in 1930, if there is any improvement in general business conditions. The finance companies are gradually diversifying their business, which at one time consisted largely of automobile financing. Of a total volume of business of more than $4,000,000 in 1929 automobile financing consisted of $2,300,000,000, or slightly more than half, and this ratio is being steadily reduced with the application of installment selling to new fields, it is said.

The ability of installment selling to withstand the current depression has led to the suggestions that the system be used to increase sales and minimize the slump in many lines of business.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

Silas Strawn, chairman of Montgomery Ward & Co., said before his departure for Europe yesterday that the current trend of the company's business is toward improvement. The last quarter's sales are fulfilling earlier promises, he said, and "we are beginning to feel a change in the public apathy toward buying." Mr. Strawn added that "just as soon as it is recognized that the period of recovery has set in, the future will take on an entirely satisfactory aspect." Regarding oft-repeated rumors of merger negotiations between Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck, he said they were unfounded and there is no present indication that there ever would be such negotiations.

F. Pisart and Camille Gutt, Belgian Congo copper mine executives, have sailed for Europe after conferences of several weeks with American copper producers on the question of curtailing world copper production. A week ago the Copper Institute recommended a curtailment of 20,000 tons a month in world production. Increases of 2½ cents a pound to 12 cents, delivered, in the domestice price of the metal followed and, although the large producers have held at that figure, concession by dealers have been reported, some as low as 10½ cents.

Directors of Frank G. Shattuck company have declared an extra dividend of 50 cents, in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of 25 cents.

Eureka Vacuum Cleaner company's plant will go on full time operations of six days a week, beginning Monday. Production will be stepped up 50 per cent.

October shipments of the insulating board division of the Chicago Mill and Lumber corporation show a 34 per cent gain over September, O'Neil Ryan, general sales manager, announced.

Pig iron buying in Chicago is reported showing a marked increase, with large buyers placing substantial tonnages for first quarter 1931 delivery.

The Victor Manufacturing and Gasket company, supplying automobile manufacturers, has ordered 7½ million pounds of rolled sheet copper for current and immediate future requirements. John H. Victor, president, said he looked for continued improvement in business and took advantage of favorable conditions to buy.

Draper & Co., Inc., Boston agent for the National Wool Marketing corporation, has sold between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 pounds of mature mohair at prices ranging from 30 to 42 cents a pound, Joseph P. Draper, treasurer of the company, said yesterday.

Container Corporation of America has advanced prices approximately $2.50 a ton on paperboard.

The first federal land bank financing in two years was done this week, comprising an issue of $20,000,000 4½s, due 1933, callable in 1932, which was offered at par. This issue was heavily oversubscribed.

New York, Nov. 22.—The share market wasn't feeling so stylish today. Price movements were restricted to a narrow range, but the general tendency was toward lower levels. Week-end profits taking was chiefly to blame, although there are a lot of traders who are undoubtedly standing from under as a precaution against getting hit by anything that might come down the chute in these uncertain days. Certain watch tower sharps have been warning lately of a possible crackup about this stage of the advance.

There were bright spots in today's market in spite of its reactionary bent, some of the more ambitious "independents" scoring gains of 5 or 6 points for themselves. The pivotals

Bank Stocks—Today's Outstanding Investment Opportunity

The stocks of the Nation's leading banks are premier among American investments. Many of the country's largest fortunes are predicated on their ownership. At today's greatly deflated market values they afford an outstanding investment opportunity for safety and profit. Trusteed American Bank Shares have been created in order to make a diversified ownership in the Nation's leading banks possible to every investor. They will be distributed by a nation-wide group of investment bankers, including AUGUST BELMONT & CO., and ourselves.

Security These shares represent equitable ownership in 23 of the Nation's oldest, largest and strongest banks. These banks own or control 981 banks or branches. Their combined total resources are over $17,000,000,000.00. All are under either Federal or State supervision.

How Shares Are Issued The purpose of this issue is to make it possible for every investor, to own a diversified equitable interest in these banks. The underlying bank stocks in the form of units as described above, together with reserve fund for dividend stabilization, are deposited with the Guaranty Trust Company as Trustee. The Trustee thereupon issues 2500 Trusteed American Bank Shares for each unit so deposited. Thereafter the Trustee acts for the benefit of the holders of Trusteed American Bank Shares, collecting all dividends, handling all matters pertaining to rights, etc., and in turn making payment of dividends when properly payable.

Record of Earnings and Disbursements Each of these banks has paid cash dividends continuously for not less than 25 years. Each has also paid to its stockholders millions of dollars in the form of stock dividends, rights, split-ups, etc. In addition each has constantly built up Capital and Surplus through earnings retained. This has caused constant increase in book value of capital stock and almost continuous increase in market appreciation. An investor purchasing these bank shares on Jan. 1st, 1920, under the Trusteed American Bank Share plan, at the average price for that year would have received over the ten-year period a total average annual distribution and appreciation of 19%. Statistics also show that investors purchasing these stocks in 1910 and reinvesting all distributions under the plan provided in the trust agreement would have had an average annual appreciation over the twenty-year period of 41.23%.

Description of Shares These shares are in bearer form. Attached to them are coupons payable semi-annually Jan. 31st and July 31st. It is expected that the proven earnings ability of the underlying bank shares, together with reserve fund, will insure the continuance of liberal dividends in the future.

Marketability and Loan Value Trusteed American Bank Shares can always be sold for cash instantly. Quotations will appear daily in leading newspapers. The daily offering price is based on the daily market price of the deposited bank stocks, plus value of reserve fund, accumulations, etc., to which is added a fixed charge of 24c per trust share and 5% for expenses and distribution cost. Having ready marketability these shares should have high collateral loan value.

Tax Features, Rights, Etc. The advantages or exemptions of these shares as regards Federal and State Taxes and also Inheritance Taxes, as well as the valuable rights accorded holders in connection with reinvestment of income and privileges of conversion into the underlying bank stocks, will be fully explained upon request.

Recommendation We recommend these shares without reservation to all classes of investors. We believe they embody the utmost as regards safety of principal, liberal current return, ready marketability and opportunity for profit through market appreciation. Since ownership of these shares represents ownership in twenty-three of the Nation's strongest banks, all under Federal or State supervision and control, there can be no question as to their inherent worth and earning power. Since present market is based on the very low market prices now prevailing for the underlying bank shares, there can be no question but that the present is a most opportune time for their purchase. We now invite subscriptions for these shares at the market. All orders subject to confirmation. Market orders may be wired at our expense.

LIQUID CARBONIC GROWS AS NEW WANTS ARE FELT

BY HOWARD CARSWELL.

While many manufacturers have suffered a recession in earnings during the last year, Liquid Carbonic corporation has enjoyed an increase of 7 per cent in net sales and 5.7 per cent in net profit for its fiscal year ended last Sept. 30.

Net sales amounted to $13,626,530, according to its recent report, and net profits were $2,011,087 after all charges and taxes. This was equal, after the management's share of profits and reserve against receivables and collection expenses, to $5.22 a share on 342,406 shares.

In the previous fiscal year net sales were $12,729,571 and net profits $1,903,528, which, after similar charges, equaled $5.67 a share on 311,131 shares of stock.

Holds Unique Position.

A unique position of diversified strength in its field is enjoyed by Liquid Carbonic corporation. Although best known to the public, perhaps, as a leading manufacturer of soda fountains and of the carbonic gas and flavors in bottled carbonic beverages, the firm is also unrivaled in the manufacture of bottling machinery.

With the rather recent invention of "dry ice," which is solidified carbon dioxide gas, Liquid Carbonic has taken another start in a new line of potential promise. Not only does Liquid Carbonic own a 25 per cent interest in the Dry Ice Corporation of America, but it is the nation's principal manufacturer of the carbonic gas which is the sole constituent of "dry ice." While the ice cream trade is now the prime user of "dry ice," this product is expected to develop a greater market.

Jacob Baur was the founder of Liquid Carbonic. He was running a drug store in Terre Haute, Ind., when he conceived a new commercial process for preparing carbonic acid gas. In 1888 he came to Chicago and with about $75,000 capital started a factory at 437 Illinois street. His process promised to [and did] supplant the older methods of druggists and bottlers in preparing soft drinks for hot weather fans. In the following year the Baur company, known as the Liquid Carbonic Acid Manuufacturing company, made its first shipments of the gas put up in metal cylinders.

Improves Process.

With the small business prospering the next obvious step was toward improving the machinery for carbonating, or injecting, into water the carbon dioxide gas. Baur built the first hand power carbonator in 1894 and about a year later introduced the automatic carbonator. Later flavors and extracts were added and, these being well received, fruits and sirups for soda fountain use were made.

Larger quarters were occupied at Illinois and Franklin streets in 1897 and the thriving young business turned to still another branch of related enterprise—the making of soda fountains. The soda fountains of antiquity were small, cramped affairs, with the dispenser turning his back on his customer to turn a little faucet from the built in the wall fountain for the drink's ingredients. But hardly had the new soda fountain plant started operations when it was destroyed by fire. Large orders for the spring trade were on hand. Within 48 hours the rival Onyx Soda Fountain company was bought. About 1903 the front counter type evolved.

The firm became the Liquid Carbonic company and grew with the years. The present twenty acre property and big plant at 3200 South Kedzie avenue was acquired in 1911. The following year Jacob Baur died suddenly.

Low Pressure System.

In 1914 "the Liquid" [as the trade calls it] came out with the first low pressure system for filling bottles with soda water, an innovation which largely revolutionized the industry.

The Jacob Baur estate disposed of its holdings in 1926 for a reputed $4,000,000, and a bond issue for that amount was issued. The stock of the firm—now the Liquid Carbonic corporation—was listed on the New York Stock exchange. The shares closed yesterday at 50⅝.

With the great development in recent years of chain store systems and the expanding appetite of the American public for the luncheonette type of eating, Liquid Carbonic has naturally benefited. While the coming of national prohibition may or may not have popularized soft drinks, the former development of the times is generally credited as of first importance in the firm's rising prosperity. Since Liquid Carbonic is such a strong factor in the manufacture of bottling machinery, any possible modification of the national prohibition law should logically react to its benefit.

Maintains Many Stations.

Thirty-eight carbonic gas stations are maintained over the country. A soda fountain factory has been established at Los Angeles. A bottling machinery factory is at Cleveland, and a labeling plant at Worcester, Mass. Machinery for filling and crowning bottles is also made. The company's competition is diverted to specialized types of bottling machinery.

Big boulders of marble are bought from Europe and also from Tennessee, Michigan, and Vermont, for the manufacture of soda fountains, which comprise a substantial share of the business.

A recent "big job" is the huge fountain (86 feet long) and over 1,000 linear feet of coffee shop counter in the new Merchandise Mart. The cost exceeded $75,000.

The management of Liquid Carbonic has "come up from the ranks." Officials with more than 30 years of service are W. K. McIntosh, who began as a stenographer, became president in 1923, and who is now chairman of the board; W. A. Brown, president, and C. R. Bull, who is chairman of the executive committee. Mrs. Bertha Baur, widow of the founder, was a vice president until 1926, when the interests of the estate were sold.

DUPLAN SILK STRIKE.

Employés of Duplan Silk corporation strike against wage reductions and the entire plant at Hazleton, Pa., is closed. This affects 2,000 workers.

WANTED! GOLD ALLIANCES TO PROTECT EUROPE

Nations Seeking Financial "Pacts" in Crises.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The work of bringing about a closer collaboration by way of a scheme of mutual floating of gold credits between the Bank of England and the Bank of France is only part of much greater preparatory work going on mysteriously within a closely guarded inner circle of governments of Europe for the promotion of closer economic coöperation.

Ordinary political channels are considered filled up so thoroughly that little hope is entertained for the possibility of achieving this closer unity by diplomacy. What is sought today is the establishment of economic ententes, and before all a gold entente, so as to stabilize the European situation and prepare against the coming of new financial crises in several countries where, at present, they are considered inevitable.

Fear Italy Submerged.

The first country to be submerged, it is believed, will be Italy, where the Fascist régime for several years has given its mantle to an impossible situation in state and municipal finance.

Authoritative circles state that large cities in Italy are hopelessly involved in a network of foreign loans, which have been spent unproductively and paid for only with unwarranted state assistance. It is considered that the break in the Italian economic situation must come any day now.

But Germany, it is declared, will face the same situation until it has settled its Young plan payments. Therefore threads are being sown in all directions in trying to establish international contracts with the object of promoting the financial agreements mentioned above. This may take the form originally suggested by Seymour Parker Gilbert, in making international settlements the new center for the issue of international gold certificates to supplement the inadequate gold circulation. This would obviate the necessity of gold transports.

France Looks to Future.

News received in London reports that the Tardieu government is deeply interested in these preliminaries, as it recognizes the need for facilitating the outflow of gold from France.

One of the principal difficulties is said to be the stiffnecked attitude of Gov. Montagu Norman of the Bank of England, who, while anxious to increase links with the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, finds the idea of coming to terms with the Bank of France, with which he has fought for nine years, repellant.

AROUSES INTEREST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 22.—The possibility of French and British central banking coöperation to meet the troublesome exchange problems that have affected both markets recently aroused interest among bankers this week.

While nothing could be learned here regarding the reported negotiations between banking authorities of London and Paris looking to a credit arrangement which would solve the difficulties, it was considered probable that discussions of some sort were being held.

From the British point of view the problem arises out of the tremendous short term balances held in London by French interests. These balances, which are conservatively estimated at 600 million dollars and probably amount to much more, constitute virtual demand deposits by the French in the English money market.

As such they are subject to sudden withdrawal in part whenever the Paris market is in need of funds. The resultant periodic demand in London for French exchange has kept the franc at or close to the gold point for an extended period of time and has brought about a persistent movement of gold from London to Paris.

French Are Alarmed.

From the French point of view the continued rise in the gold holdings of the Bank of France has become alarming. The figure of 50 billion francs, formerly set as a limit beyond which it was not desired the gold holdings of the Bank of France should go, has long since been exceeded, and still gold pours into the country. The dangers of inflation have become lively and French banking authorities are understood to be seeking a way to shut off the incoming stream of gold.

During the last year there has apparently been no withdrawal by the Bank of France of its balances in London, the frequent movement of gold from London to Paris having been occasioned by the recall of funds held in London by private French banks and individuals. But the existence of these large sterling balances of the Bank of France and the French treasury constitutes a threat to the London money market which has aroused great uneasiness in England.

There have been frequent accusations in the British press to the effect that France had employed her power over the London market for political purposes. During the course of recent European conferences the expression "financial frightfulness" has been employed to describe the supposed pressure brought to bear by the French upon the British.

The French authorities have become extremely sensitive to these accusations and have frequently protested that the withdrawal of gold from London by French interests was a natural development, as unwelcome to the Bank of France as it was to the Bank of England.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES YIELD TO PROFIT TAKING

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The bartering on the Chicago exchange yesterday provided no surprises for the trading community. As had been expected, the week-end profit taking resulted in an easier tone throughout the list. Perhaps the most significant thing about the market was the fact that the losses sustained were uniformly small.

From start to finish it was a quiet affair. For about an hour after the opening gong the trading in Bancokentucky shares was carried on at a rather brisk pace, but the movement spent itself after the stock had been forced down to 25 cents a share from Friday's last quotation of 50 cents. The turnover in the stock amounted to some 17,000 units.

Favorable Developments.

The day's news developments were regarded on the whole as more favorable. It was the consensus of traders and brokers that the market's performance was as much as could be expected by any reasonably minded bull adherent.

Utilities, motors, and accessory shares accounted for the bulk of the 93,000 odd shares that changed hands during the session. Insull and Middle West suffered fractional setbacks, as did Bendix and Borg-Warner, which were the most active shares in the motor group.

In isolated instances small gains were recorded, as in the case of U. S. Gypsum and Marshall Field. Volume in each case was light, however, and the advances had no particular significance.

As measured by the market value of the fifty most active stocks the Chicago list last week surrendered a bit of the ground that was won in the recovery of the previous week. The figures, compiled by Otis & Co., show that the fifty issues had a market value at the close yesterday of $2,344,908,869, as compared with $2,395,119,997 at the close of the preceding week. This was a shrinkage of $50,211,128, or 2.09 per cent.

Total Market Value.

The survey also shows that forty-four of the issues were traded in a year ago. The total market value of these issues at the close yesterday was $2,259,967,334, against $2,408,204,088 on Nov. 22, 1929. This represents a decline of $148,236,754, or 6.15 per cent.

Associated Telephone Utilities company announced yesterday that the periods for the exercise of the common stock purchase warrants by holders of the $6 convertible preferred stock has been extended.

Series A warrants were extended one year to Dec. 31, 1931. Series B warrants under the new plan may be exercised up to Dec. 31, 1932, an extension of one year. Stockholders will be asked to amend the company's charter to permit the extensions.

COTTON PRICES HIGHER

Cotton markets appeared to have a steadier undertone yesterday. Reports from one expert indicate that the crop has been estimated higher than conditions justify, based on ginning returns. There is more disposition to take the buying side on breaks. Mill buying is said to be taking care of hedge sales. Liverpool opened stronger than expected and closed 2 to 3 points net higher, with spot sales 3,000 bales. Weather conditions over the south were less favorable and trade reports indicate that consumption is not expanding in a way that would attract more than usual attention.

It is said that there is a large stock of certified cotton in New York and in southern warehouses and there is fear of large deliveries being made next month. There is already a carrying charge on December contracts and it is said that should the spread between December and January widen the banking opportunity would induce spot houses to take the cotton and hedge by sales of January.

At the close futures in Chicago were 6 to 10 points higher, with New Orleans 7 to 10 points up, New York 4 points lower on December and 1 to 5 points higher on other futures. Spots in the latter market were unchanged at 10.85c, with New Orleans up 5 points to 10.65c, Galveston, 10.55c, and Houston, 10.50c. Prices follow:

Holders of Defaulted Bonds Must Make a Decision.

When a bond issue goes into default the bondholder's first thought usually is to get what he can out of the débris. He is sorry that he ever invested and wants to get something back just as quickly as possible. The whole matter is distasteful to him and he wants to terminate his part in it and forget about it.

Accordingly, when his representatives on the bondholders' protective committee suggest foreclosure and sale of the assets securing the bonds, he indorses the proposal. It seems a clear cut way of settling the matter.

This is the attitude at present of many holders of defaulted bonds on hotels and apartment and office buildings. As a result an already stagnant market for such properties is forced to absorb additional impedimenta. Real estate prices already low are forced further downward by new buildings put up for sale.

The same factors which have made it impossible for owners to earn enough to meet interest payments make it difficult to get a fair price for the property when it goes under the hammer.

The present situation in real estate bonds cries out for intelligent leadership and concerted action. Properly reorganized and refinanced, many of the properties now in the hands of receivers can be made to pay their way And equally important, they could be taken out of the "for sale at any price" list, thereby relieving the strain on the market.

In some cases bondholders, realizing that the property securing the bonds cannot be sold for anything like its value in normal times, have agreed to take over the property themselves. Another plan sometimes followed is to reorganize the capital setup on a sounder basis, exchanging the old bonds for a smaller amount of new bonds and the balance in preferred stock. In that way the bondholders get something down and the assurance of first chance at anything additional that may accrue when times improve.

It is impossible to say what should be done in any case without a careful study of all factors entering into that particular case.

The bondholder must scrutinize carefully any plan offered for his approval. Before indorsing it he should satisfy himself that it is aimed to protect his interests.

Sponsors of one "plan" that recently came to our attention asked first mortgage bondholders to surrender their bonds in exchange for equity junior to the bonds.

REPORT C., B. & Q. BUYS STOCK IN GULF, MOBILE RY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 22.—The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad was reported yesterday to be accumulating stock of the Gulf, Mobile and Northern railway and it was said that the Burlington would make an offer of lease for the smaller line when sufficient shares were aquired.

The interstate commerce commission's consolidation plan divorced the control of the Burlington from the Great Northern and Northern Pacific and gave the Burlington the Missouri-Kansas-Texas. Acquisition of Gulf, Mobile and Northern would therefore give the Burlington a southern connection different from the one provided by the commission. The Gulf line was assigned the Atlantic Coast Line by the commission. It would provide the Burlington with a direct entrance to Mobile and New Orleans.

The Gulf line's operated mileage is nearly 1,000. In 1919 it put in operation a forty mile extension to Jackson, Tenn., where it connects with the Illinois Central, Mobile and Ohio and Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis. In 1926 it obtained trackage rights from the Nashville line for a through route from the Ohio river to New Orleans. This extended freight operations to Paducah, Ky., were it was agreed to interchange traffic with the Burlington.

The Gulf line rounded out its system this year by acquiring the New Orleans Great Northern through an exchange of stock. This gave an entrance to New Orleans.

G. L. Ohrstrom & Co., Inc. Coffin & Burr, Graham, Parson & Co. and Janney & Co. will offer shortly a new issue of $3,000,000 5 per cent notes of the People's Light and Power corporation, one of the principal subsidiaries of Tri-Utilities corporation. One million dollars of these notes mature July 1, 1931, and the remainder mature Dec. 1, 1931.

New financing planned for the Washington Gas Light company of Washington, D. C., will take the form of an issue of $3,000,000 4½ per cent notes, due April 1, 1933, which has been underwritten by a group headed by Harris, Forbes & Co.

The Western Pacific railway has been authorized to sell $5,000,000 5 per cent debentures, the proceeds to be used to partially finance construction.

WORLD FINANCE DISORDERS LEAVE MARK ON LONDON

Gilt Edged Market Holds Foreign Attention.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The disturbing influences of Wall street and continental centers continue to leave a mark on London's financial circles. Fresh liquidation broke out this week in many sections, especially in the industrial departments where the slackening of the recent investment demand for leading debenture and preference stocks brought some disappointments. Additional unsatisfactory trade results and reduced dividends tend to reduce confidence.

The market's technical position, however, is still sound, although there are fears in general that Amsterdam may yet have a boomerang effect here. Financial observers of Wall street conditions who have recently returned to London emphasize New York's immediate outlook as bearish. They hold the view that many large blocks of stock are still being "nursed" and may be thrown on the market with any moderate recovery.

May Surprise World.

There is little hope for a sustained rally in the opinion of these British observers, although they admit that America may surprise the world jumping into a start. It is argued that the United States can certainly engineer a trade recovery in its own borders much easier than the British can here, giving as an instance the 1921 revival.

An interesting feature of the London market this week was the increased attention given to the gilt-edged section for foreign investment. THE TRIBUNE understands that considerable blocks of 4 per cent government consols and also the funding loan have been bought for American accounts, while the 4 per cent treasury bonds recently issued are also expected to attract foreign purchasers. Gilt-edged issues offering over a 4½ per cent yield, with a chance of capital appreciation, are consequently in short supply.

Money Market Favorable.

The renewed American buying of British government stocks has led the experts to estimate an extension of foreign holdings. Well informed city authorities believe that foreign holdings of British government securities are low, total being between 1½ billion and 2 billion dollars, with America easily topping the list.

Money market conditions remain favorable. The French withdrawal of gold continues, but this is offset partially by the inward movements of metal to the Bank of England from abroad, making the net decline of the bank's gold holdings fairly negligible.

The best feature of the foreign bonds market was the recovery of the Chinese bonds, assisted by reports of discussions of consolidating the debt and improving the general position of some of the big loans. The German 5½s are again weak. Brazilian bonds are marking time, following slight reactions on the cessation of the recent sinking fund operations.

Paris Market Irregular.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 22.—With an atmosphere of political financial scandal following the resignation of the minister of justice, Raoul Péret, as a consequence of the Oustric bank failure, which is said to have caused a total loss of $56,000,000, the Paris market remained irregular and a heaviness prevailed throughout the week.

Despite a general attempt on Monday to give a tone to business and to maintain advances shown during Saturday's session last week, most of the French securities felt the influence of the resignation of the minister of justice, and there are rumors that other members of the cabinet are involved in the scandal. Many other international issues were also depressed by the weakness in Wall street stocks on Monday and the fall in copper and other metal prices.

offered good resistance when the selling threatened in their direction and all in all the action of the list was enough to suggest that interruption of the recovery might be only temporary.

Mail Order Shares Rise.

Mail order shares kept up a front throughout the abbreviated session, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck both going forward for more than two points and the amusements just about held their own as a group. The strength in Montgomery Ward was influenced in part at least by the remarks of Silas Strawn, chairman of the company's board prior to his leaving for a trip abroad.

Mr. Strawn said that the trend of business with the corporation was in the direction of improvement and that recent sales had been fulfilling earlier promises.

In the last hour the sugar stocks turned upward presumably to discount the departure yesterday of a Cuban American mission to Europe for a conference with Dutch and other foreign powers on proposals to curtail production. American Sugar, South Porto Rico Sugar and Great Western were advanced 1 to 2 points or so.

New York and Harlem was a shining light on the rail section, runnning up 14 points on a series of 10 lot share transactions. The market in this issue is very thin and it is usually content with a quiescent rôle. Elsewhere the carriers were quiet—apparently being "all in" from the show of strength they affected in the late trading yesterday. The close found New York Central more than a point lower, Baltimore and Ohio down 2 points and Atchison 3½.

Coppers Fall Back.

Copper stocks continued to display a heavy tone, dipping nearer the levels from which the recent display of strength coincident with the marking up of metal prices began. Anaconda fell back a point and Kennecott did a little worse.

There is nothing new in the copper situation. Matters are in a deadlock with no buying on one hand and but little copper available at under 12 cents on the other. Buying of copper comes in waves. One such wave recently advanced the price from 9¾ to 12 cents. The fact that the demand has now subsided merely means that consumers have filled requirements for the time being. Hence the lack of "pep" in the shares of the different producing companies.

The motor and motor equipment shares paused for breath with the rest. These issues have been going along quite nicely for the last two or three sessions and slowing up with them was to be expected along about this juncture.

The day's turnover was extremely light, with trading the smallest in some weeks for a week-end period. Brokers on hand seemed more interested in the football classic at New Haven and a number of other games about the country than they did in stock price movements. News was scarce and not particularly important as a market influence either way.

Reports $1,500,000,000 in Bond Defaults in 7 Years

The 748 major bond issues, involving more than a billion and a half dollars, which have been defaulted either as to interest or principal in the past seven years, are listed for the first time in a new edition of "Status of Bonds," published by the Standard Statistics company. Of the major classifications, industrial bonds lead in defaults, with a total of 279 issues, involving $583,558,614. The current year, or rather the first ten months of it covered, was also the worst of the seven for the industrials, with 53 issues involving $120,884,900 defaulted. Considering the totals, defaults in 1925 involving $348,351,025 made the worst showing, railroads, with defaults of $735,048,615, accounting for nearly 70 per cent. There were 137 defaults, involving $288,534,414, in the first ten months of 1930.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Sales of wide cloths were more active today. There was moderate trading in sheetings for converting. Silk showed little change for the day in both raw and manufactured divisions. All rayon producers have now adopted the policy of a 60 day price guarantee. Business is now improving for prompt deliveries of rayon yarns. Burlaps were quiet. Wool goods were inactive for the day.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Austin, Tex., Nov. 22. — Recommendation of the state proration committee that the maximum allowable oil production of Texas for a period of sixty days beginning Nov. 27 to be fixed at 680,200 barrels, a decrease of 69,800 barrels as compared with the maximum allowable under which the producers have been operating during the last three months, was adopted by the railroad commission today. The curtailment was based on pipe line commitments to meet the market demand. Enforcement of the pipe line and common purchase law will be strictly adhered to by the commission, notwithstanding the resistance which a few companies are offering, it was stated by Chairman Pat Neff of the commission.

WINNIPEG HOPES THAT BOTTOM GRAIN PRICES HAVE BEEN REACHED

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 22.—(AP)—Traders on the Winnipeg grain exchange hoped today that the turbulent week had seen the bottom reached in wheat prices.

Three days of advances have followed a sensational break which brought prices down as much as 8c a bu Tuesday and produced quotations lower than any in the history of the exchange.

Tuesday's crash, which carried values down to 55c a bu, was partially wiped out the same day and subsequent gains had brought prices today up to nearly the same level as a week ago.

Meanwhile, homeward bound delegates from the meeting of the United Farmers of Manitoba at Portage La Prairie held hope for the alleviation of low wheat prices, and their leaders were heartened by the farmers' loyalty to the Manitoba wheat pool.

Next Wednesday at an agrarian meeting at Saskatoon Manitoba's attitude on the compulsory pool may be expressed. The meeting has been called to discuss the "pegged price" proposals and matters of crop insurance involving possible dominion aid.

SOVIET SHIPMENT.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The Daily Telegram said today that a shipment of 800,000 quarters [about 6,400,000 bu] of wheat is on the way to England from soviet Russia, following a shipment of 1,000,000 quarters last week. Other cargoes of Russian wheat will be started for England before the winter sets in, the newspaper said.

Receipts at Chicago for Monday estimated at 19,000 cattle, 50,000 hogs, and 20,000 sheep.

The largest hog receipts since last February flooded the market with stock during the last week and prices crashed to the lowest level since July, 1924. Outside demand picked up some after midweek and prices recovered some of the loss, but shipments for the entire week were smaller than a week ago, in spite of the big increase in receipts.

Chicago handled the bulk of the increase, some outside points reporting abnormally small supplies for the time of year. The total at the 11 leading markets at 588,000 compared with 667,000 a year ago and with 746,000 two years ago. Weights were more uniform, but averaged slightly heavier than a week ago.

March Hogs Bring $9.00.

March light weight hogs sold at $9.00 on the futures market yesterday after opening at $8.90, which was in line with the previous day's close. December mediums sold at $8.25, to be delivered during the first half of that month. January light were offered at $8.40 at the close. On the "to arrive" market hogs averaging 260@310 lbs, were bid $8.25 for Monday's delivery.

Cattle supplies lately have been held down to a minimum to avert a slashing of quotations during the poultry season when much of the normal demand for meats swings to poultry for holiday feasts. Arrivals at 7 markets showed a decrease of 20 per cent, or 35,000 head, compared with a week ago.

The general average price for the entire week was held steady at $10.25, although the proportion at top prices was smaller due to the decline in the market for yearling stock.

Lambs Recover Loss.

Although fat lambs scored a substantial recovery during the last half of the week, selling at the highest prices in ten days at the close, the week's general average established a new low of $7.15. Closing sales were fully 75c above a week earlier.

Colder weather toward the end of the week added zest to the trade, and some improvement was reported in the wholesale market for lambs. Receipts at 20 centers located in the east and middle west were cut 146,000 head during the week, a decrease of 34 per cent compared with a week ago. Eastern slaughtering houses felt this shortage most and western markets were flooded with orders near the close of the week.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 19,000 cattle, 50,000 hogs, and 20,000 sheep, against 11,693 cattle, 54,973 hogs, and 14,077 sheep a week ago, and 19,325 cattle, 74,287 hogs, and 19,040 sheep a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 45,000 cattle, 195,000 hogs, and 65,000 sheep, against 54,765 cattle, 189,646 hogs, and 61,581 sheep a year ago.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Foreigners have been persistent buyers of Canadian wheat the last week, and Winnipeg reported 500,000 bu or more sold on Saturday, making the total for the week around 4,000,000 bu. Nothing was said regarding business in domestic hard winters which were quoted at 2½c over Chicago December for No. 2 for nearby shipment from the gulf.

Local handlers sold 20,000 bu wheat, 150,000 bu corn, 65,000 bu oats, 3,000 bu rye, and 5,000 bu barley to the domestic trade. Charters were for 225,000 bu wheat and 250,000 bu corn to Buffalo.

Milling demand for cash wheat continues fairly active and the basis on red winter was marked up ½c while hard winter and spring varieties were unchanged as compared with the December. No. 1 red was 5½@6c over; No. 2 red, 4@5c over, No. 1 hard and No. 1 northern, 1@1½c over and No. 2 hard and No. 2 northern, ½@1c over the future.

Improvement in the shipping demand for cash corn was not reflected in the basis in the sample market, which was unchanged to 1c lower with expectations of a larger movement and the sharp advance in futures a factor. Old No. 1 and No. 2 yellow were 2¾@3¼c over December with new No. 3 white 1@1½c over. Discounts on new corn as compared with the future follow: No. 3 mixed, 3@3½c; yellow, 1@2½c; No. 4 mixed, 4½@5½c; yellow, 4@5½c; white, 1¾@2c; No. 5 mixed, 6½@7½c.

Offerings of cash oats were light and the basis steady to ½c higher. No. 2 white were ¾@1c over and No. 3 white December price to ¼c over. No. 2 rye was nominally 3@10c over December.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 43 cars; corn, 137 cars; oats, 18 cars; rye, 6 cars, and barley, 2 cars.

SHARP RALLY IN LARD

Limited offerings, with a fair covering movement by shorts, advanced lard futures 12½c yesterday. Trading in all was only fair. The advance in corn and wheat had a strengthening influence on the provision market. Liverpool lard was unchanged. Exports from the seaboard were 454,000 lbs. Shipments of lard and meats for the week were limited. Hog prices were higher early, but closed weaker. Prospects are for good receipts Monday and for the new week. Packing in Chicago Nov. 1 aggregated 547,000 hogs, against 538,000 last year. Prices follow:

BUTTER AND EGGS

Butter futures advanced slightly on the Chicago mercantile exchange yesterday, while egg futures eased off, December dropping to another all time low of 19¼c. Futures finished unchanged to ¼c higher. Bearish egg news weakened the market and induced selling toward the close which removed a fractional gain recorded early in the session. Closing prices were unchanged to ½c lower. Sales: butter, 124 cars; eggs, 165 cars. Receipts: butter, 6,893 tubs; eggs, 2,303 cases. Deliveries: butter, 4 cars; eggs, 4 cars. Prices follow:

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

The fact that grain markets closed the highest of the week, after the sharp break in the early days, created a better feeling and more disposition on the part of traders to work on the constructive side of the market. It was said that millers are taking wheat more freely and show greater confidence in the stability of values around present level. The disposition for the present is to give corn increased support and trade in this grain is broadening.

The country sold a little more corn on the bulge, 75,000 bu yesterday. Local interests are more aggressive and the short interest has been reduced. There is disposition on the part of the leading bulls, however, to take profits on bulges.

"Should the southern hemisphere wheat crop reach indicated figures, there is likely to be an exportable surplus of 330,000,000 bu," says Broomhall, "which no doubt will be shipped out as soon as possible and probably 75 per cent will clear before the new American wheat becomes available next July, or a total of 247,000,000 bu, which would be 9,500,000 bu weekly, without allowing for any shipments from Canada and minor countries. The Russian situation is more assuring, as cancellations of chartered freight are reported, so that grain exports will most likely fall off sharply very soon."

London reports that shipments of 6,400,000 bu Russian wheat are on their way to England, following shipments of 8,000,000 bu the previous week. Other cargoes of Russian wheat are also to start for England before the winter sets in. A New York exporter said that English millers are buying good Canadian wheat for mixing with the Russian grain, which is understood to be of poor quality.

An Argentine cable said there was no rain there in the last 24 hours. The highest temperature in the Santa Fé province on Friday was 86 and in Buenos Aires 84. The forecast is for fair weather with little change in temperature.

U. OF C. PLANS $8,500,000 IN NEW BUILDINGS

Huge Sum to Be Spent Early in 1931.

Five major structures will be under way at the University of Chicago during the early part of 1931, involving an expenditure of approximately $8,500,000, according to a survey made at the big Midway institution last week. This will be one of the university's contributions to the relief of unemployment, according to President Robert Maynard Hutchins. These five buildings will be in the hands of workmen during the late winter and early spring months of next year.

The five projects are: A graduate building for the School of Education, the Orient Institute building, a group of dormitory units, an International house for foreign students and an athletic fieldhouse.

In addition to these five the university will begin work during 1931 on an Art building, plans for which are not yet ready, and it is possible that several other educational and research buildings, now partially financed, also will have "1931" on their cornerstones.

$30,000,000 In 7 Years.

These projects are part of a program of physical expansion under which the university will have spent by the close of next year approximately $30,000,000 in seven years. During that period the number of educational units used by the university will have been increased to eighty-five and the floor space of the university will have been trebled.

Three of the five projects already are under way, but will not be completed before next summer. These are the graduate education building, the Oriental institute and the men's quadrangle of dormitories. Three other structures, costing a total of $2,400,000, are also under way on the Midway at present and will probably be completed before the close of this year. These are the Chicago Lying-in hospital, the Nancy Adele McElwee Memorial and the Gertrude Dunn Hicks memorial.

The new graduate building for the School of Education is now rising on Kimbark avenue, near the Midway, two blocks from the site of International house. It was designed by Armstrong, Furst & Tilton. This structure, which will be devoted to advanced teaching and research in educational methods, will become the third side of the "Education quadrangle," which occupies the entire block bounded by Kimbark, Kenwood, 58th and 59th.

Will Cost $650,000.

It will cost $650,000 and will rise in a general "T" shape, four floors high. Administrative offices, seminar rooms, a large lecture hall seating 230, a library and a series of laboratories will occupy the bulk of the building. The university's plan for the School of Education calls for the eventual erection of a new University High school, to be built along Kenwood avenue, completing the Education quadrangle.

Announcement was made last week of the impending erection of the two newest structures, the athletci fieldhouse and the International house. Both are designed by Holabird & Root. The athletic house will cost $700,000 and will rise along the north side of 56th street, across from Stagg field, between Greenwood avenue and University avenue.

On Old Hotel Site.

The International house, which will rise on the site of the old Del Prado hotel on the Midway between Dorchester and Blackstone avenues, will become the easternmost of the university's mile long Gothic line on the north flank of the Midway. Its twelve story tower will become the seventh tower in the line. The house is intended to provide living and club facilities for foreign students in all of the city's institutions of higher education. As in the case of the International houses at New York and Berkeley, the donor of the building is John D. Rockefeller Jr. The cost of the building has not been determined exactly. Rooms for 500 students will be provided in the Chicago International house.

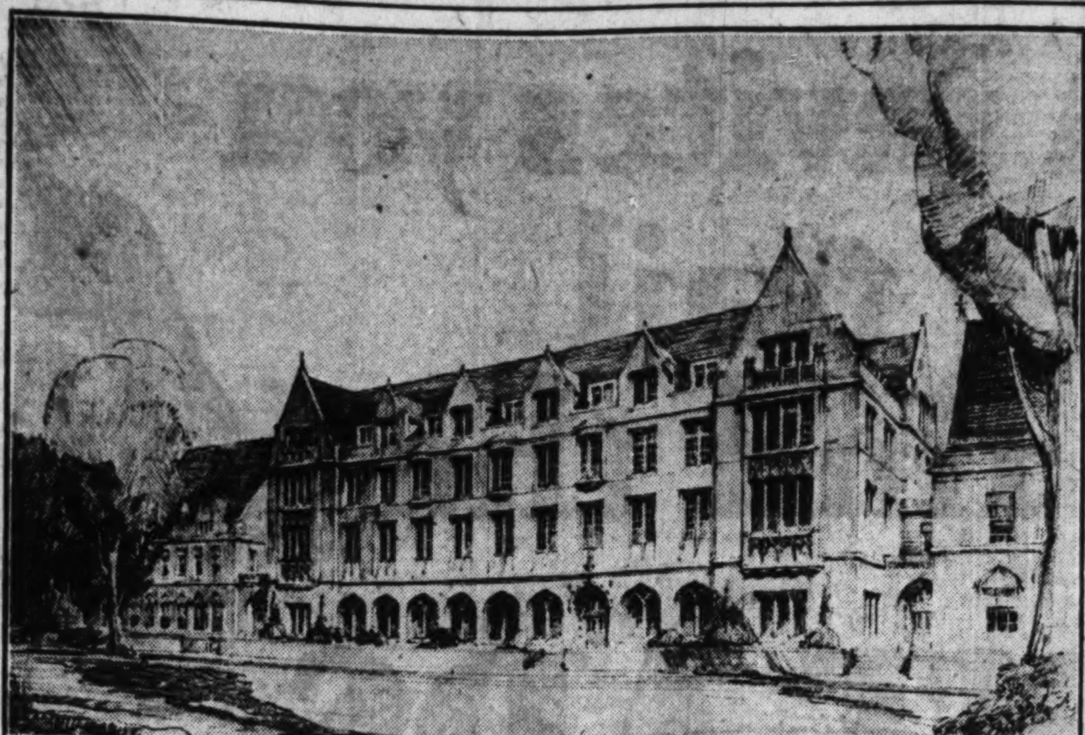
There are over one thousand foreign students in the Chicago area eligible to use the house, according to Bruce Dickson, adviser of foreign students at the university. Most of these already belong to the International Students' association, which meets every Sunday at the university.

Among the units which the university hopes to build in the near future are three for the Midway medical-biological development, a nurses' home, a laboratory for anatomy and a laboratory for bacteriology and hygiene.

ARCHITECTS TO HOLD FORUM ON BUILDING WASTE

An open forum will be held by the Illinois Society of Architects, Tuesday evening, Nov. 25, at the Architects club, 1801 Prairie avenue, at which will be discussed wasteful practices in building. Among those who will take part in the general discussion are: John J. Aeberly and Thomas J. Claffey of the Chicago health department; Rupert J. Weber and James Patten, president and vice president, respectively, of the Plumbing Contractors' association; Martin P. Durkin, Steamfitters local union, No. 597; B. L. Cruise, Plumbers' local union, No. 130; Louis Kohlman of R. Cooper, Inc.; E. V. Anderson, Zerozone corporation, and H. A. Macclom, Stover company.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION UNIT



Armstrong, Furst & Tilton, Chicago, architects, designed the above graduate building for the school of education of the University of Chicago. It is now under construction on Kimbark avenue, near the Midway. Details are given in another column on this page.

TELLS WHAT TO DO IF YOU WANT TO REBUILD HOME

Architect Warns of Extravagance.

This is the second of a series of articles sponsored by the committee on public information of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

BY EDWIN H. CLARK, A. I. A.

EDWIN H. CLARK.

The idea of buying an old, ugly house at a bargain and by some feat of legerdemain transforming it into a modern and charming home at a negligible cost, appeals especially to many women with a moderate income and a desire for an attractive place to live. It is also generally believed that the result of this operation is what is usually known as a picturesque and "rambling" house.

Remodeling a house can be one of the world's greatest gambles—either a success or a lamentable failure. The result depends upon what one has to start with and how intelligently the changes are made.

If you are contemplating changes in the house, which you now own and occupy, the problem is comparatively simple, but if you are going to buy a place either to live in as it is, or to remodel, careful consideration should be given to many questions which are often overlooked before such a program is undertaken.

Location First Essential.

In the first place, is the property convenient to transportation and schools? Has the zoning law been investigated with respect to the possibility of undesirable buildings or enterprises being located in the immediate neighborhood? Is the lot too large so as to make its proper care a burden or an expense beyond your means?

In considering the possibilities of the house itself, either as a house to buy and remodel or a house already owned, first consult some capable architect and have him advise you as to whether the building is worth remodeling and, if so, whether the changes you wish to make, can be done economically and attractively.

One must always remember that much money put into an old house is there to stay. If it is ever sold, it is still an old house. Only a person experienced in building can tell whether the foundations are sound, the basement dry, the walls and roof properly built and insulated and the piping in good condition.

Heating Plant a Problem.

The condition of the heating plant presents the same problem and the same danger of excessive cost. Sometimes it is even necessary to cut a hole in a basement wall to replace an old type boiler which was not made in sections like the modern ones.

The electric wires concealed in the walls and partitions are a fire hazard, unless the original work was properly done. In many towns the authorities may require that the house be completely rewired in accordance with ordinances which have been passed since the house was originally built.

After all of these fundamental and uninteresting matters have been investigated the next step is to decide what you wish to do with the general plan of the house.

You will find perhaps a stair hall, two parlors, a dining room, and a large kitchen on the first story and four or five bedrooms and one or two bathrooms above. The pantry space will be inadequate and you will want to use part of the too large kitchen to make a serving pantry with a sink and cases. Another corner can be turned into a cold room; a lavatory can be tucked in a corner of the hall.

Throw Parlors Together.

The two parlors can be thrown together and made into an attractive living room with book shelves built in and a new outside chimney added to make a fine big fireplace in the right location, or perhaps a bay window put in. Upstairs you may wish to turn a large closet into a new bathroom and build wardrobes, linen cases, etc., in various rooms.

If these are the kind of things you wish to do, go ahead, buy the house, and do them, as they involve the minimum of structural changes. It is also perfectly feasible to add to the house if you do not disturb the old building too violently. If the structural work is followed by taste in decorating and furnishing your remodeled house will be an attractive and economical house.

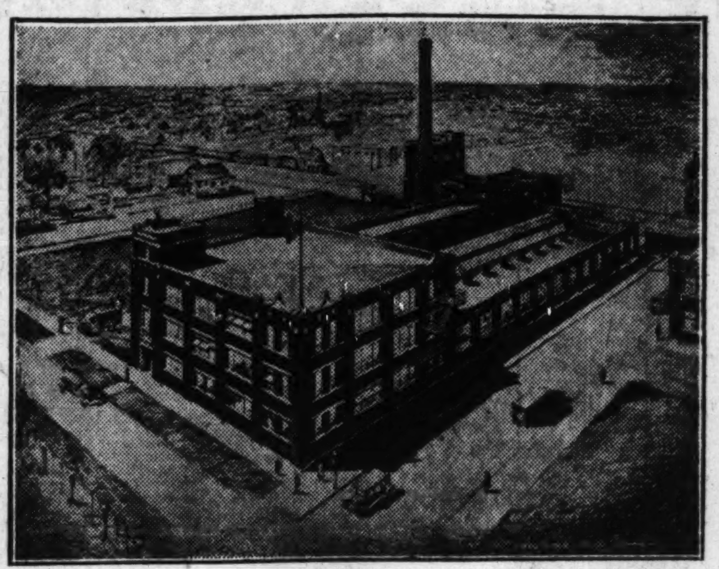
If your desires are more ambitious and you begin to tear out partitions all over the house, change the stairs, etc., then heaven help you. That kind of remodeling is the most unsatisfactory and expensive experience you can possibly imagine.

It Costs a Lot.

It costs a lot to brace up and hold together the old house, to tear out the discarded work and dispose of it. Then you pay just as much or more to put in the new work as you would in building an entirely new house, and in the end you have an old house with an old house value, and you have paid as much for it as a new house would cost, while you have forgone much of the convenience and beauty which you could have had if you had built an entirely new building, because you cannot disregard everything, even if you tear the house practically to pieces.

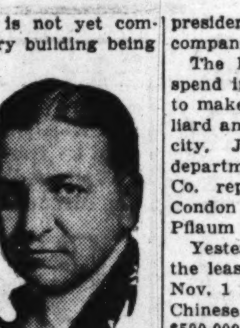
Don't delude yourself into thinking that you can make an old house into a new one, even if you're willing to spend an unforgivable sum of money; but if you are satisfied with the modest changes an experienced architect can suggest to modernize the essentials and give you a livable, attractive home, by all means get the value and the comfort which can be realized from a substantial old house.

MAKING TRAVELING CLEANER



This is the new laundry plant now being erected by the Pullman company at West 43d street and Shields avenue from plans by Weiss & Niestadt. It will employ approximately one hundred, who will work the plant at a present capacity of 65,000 pieces of flat work, 1,000 porters' coats, and 500 blankets per working day. Space is to be provided in the building for an ultimate capacity of double this amount. It is expected to be ready for operation about April 15, 1931. Van Etten Bros. have the general contract.

Roof Not on 23 West Randolph but Building Is All Rented



JOHN R. THOMPSON JR.

Although the roof is not yet completed on the five story building being erected by the John R. Thompson company at 23-29 West Randolph street, a $500,000 twenty year lease was signed yesterday, which means the structure is now 100 per cent rented. W. P. Mussey & Co., of which Norman E. Bensinger is president, have leased the entire third, fourth, and fifth floors, containing 30,000 square feet of floor space. The rental calls for $25,000 annually, plus percentage, according to John R. Thompson Jr., president of the John R. Thompson company.

The lessees, it is stated, expect to spend in the neighborhood of $175,000 to make the three floors the finest billiard and bowling establishment in the city. J. A. Kelly of the real estate department of John R. Thompson & Co. represented all parties. Ryan, Condon & Livingstone and D'Ancona, Pflaum & Kohlsaat were attorneys.

Yesterday's lease calls attention to the lease of the second floor, made on Nov. 1 by the Oriental Gardens for a Chinese restaurant. That was for $590,000 for a twenty year term. This means that a total of $1,090,000 will be paid during the next two decades for the four upper floors of the building. The Thompson company will have an elaborate eating place on the first floor. Both the Oriental Gardens and Mussey & Co. will have private entrances. Completion is scheduled for about Jan. 1.

In the first ten days since the opening of the widened forty foot Northwest highway the Bert H. Laudermilk Realty association reports a large increase in real estate buying in its Arlington Heights properties. A gradual improvement in home buying interest has been felt since Labor day, according to Mr. Laudermilk, but the big increase came with the opening to the public of this important automobile artery, which had been closed for about ninety days.

Among the principal deals consummated in the last ten days, aside from over $25,000 in estate home sites, Mr. Laudermilk reports the sale of his country estate home of ten rooms and stable at 100 Drury lane, Stonegate, for $60,000, to George F. Hartford of Chicago.

The corner of Chatham place and Northwest highway at Stonegate, 75x125 feet, was purchased by a Green Bay, Wis., syndicate for $10,250.

One hundred feet of business frontage on the Northwest highway, facing the Arlington Park race track, was sold by E. F. Moore of the Laudermilk organization to an undisclosed syndicate at approximately $150 per front foot.

The Laudermilk organization has opened for sale 100 additional home sites reserved out of its original Arlington Park development. Arlington Park faces the Northwest highway, opposite the entrance to the Arlington Park race track, and adjoins the organization's Sherwood estate development. Over 25,000 full grown shrubs and 500 Moline elm trees have just been planted on this property. A building program consisting of ten fire safe homes to cost $7,500 to $9,000 will be started in about two weeks.

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

AUXILIARY HEAT DEVICES A CHECK TO WINTER COLD

(Next week an article on radiator covers will be printed.)

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

LOUISE BARGETT.

Have you a room in your home that is hard to heat?

Have you remodeled lately, added a sun porch or a breakfast nook, or inclosed a sleeping porch, now need supplementary heating in spaces unprovided, perhaps, with warmth from your central heating system?

Is your bath or bedroom or nursery chilly before the basement fire is thoroughly started in the morning?

Does your living room or library grow uncomfortably cool at night after the fire is banked and you still linger over some interesting book?

Are there times when you rise in the night to tend the wants of some sick member of the family and wish that you had some auxiliary heating unit to start for quick heating in bedroom or bath?

There are so many times and occasions in the average home when maintaining the desired warmth in all the rooms is difficult.

To meet this problem there is a wide range of available gas and electric equipment for auxiliary heating. Some of this equipment is highly ornamental as well as definitely heat contributing.

New Gas Heaters.

Take, for example, the modern radiant gas fireplace heaters, with their chemically treated fire radiants contained therein, which throw an abundance of clean, instantaneous, odorless heat. Nor should these modern gas heaters of the radiant type be confused with the old fashioned gas log of bygone days. They have been so perfected by modern engineering ingenuity that they cannot be said to be even distantly related to their gas log ancestor, and they can be expected to raise the temperature of a moderate sized room a considerable number of degrees in a short time.

These same gas fireplace heaters are manufactured in various styles and are adaptable to any room where flue connections are available. They may also be obtained in a glowing "bed of coals," this type patterned after the picturesque coal heaters of England. Durability, it may be mentioned, is one of their many assets.

Again, for auxiliary heating or for the entire heating of a room there are gas radiators; entire heating units in themselves. Operating independently, they provide heat quickly and abundantly wherever it is needed. Steam heat, this, and when desired the necessary amount of humidity may be also furnished.

Living Room Gas Burners.

Nor should there go unmentioned here the new gas burners for installation in a living room. These burners in their mahogany coats resemble giant phonograph instruments more than anything else. They are for use in homes or apartments where there is no central heating plant.

Various types of auxilliary heating by electricity are also offered the homeowner. These include built-in wall heaters, portable heaters of various kind and electric fireplace heaters.

For the most part these electrical heaters and fireplaces only claim to throw out a little extra heat where a little additional warmth is required. Furthermore, an electrical heater which requires more than 1,000 watts to operate it requires special wiring. This should be kept in mind in the purchase of any electric auxiliary heating unit in order that the circuit should not be overloaded and cause trouble.

Beauty with Heat.

As many people know, up to recently the chief claim of the electric grate has been to beauty and ornamentation. It has taken no credit to itself for adding very perceptibly to the warmth of a room. Lately, however, a few have been manufactured with the heating element so mounted that the warm rays of electric heat are radiated outwardly and send out more warmth into the room.

Rather recently, too, electric radiators have been put on the market. These are equipped with humidification and may be plugged in any outlet. They may be portable or mounted on a wall permanently. Naturally they are suitable for any room where a little extra warmth is desired and, combined with a thermostatic control, they maintain an even temperature.

Still another new and rather unique type of electric heater has been manufactured. This heater is in itself an ornamental piece of furniture and can be used as an occasional table in any room. Its heating element is entirely protected and can therefore be used in a child's room without danger. It operates on the principle of sucking the air in from the floor through the under part of the heater and sending it out again under the top part of the heater, and thence back again to the floor.

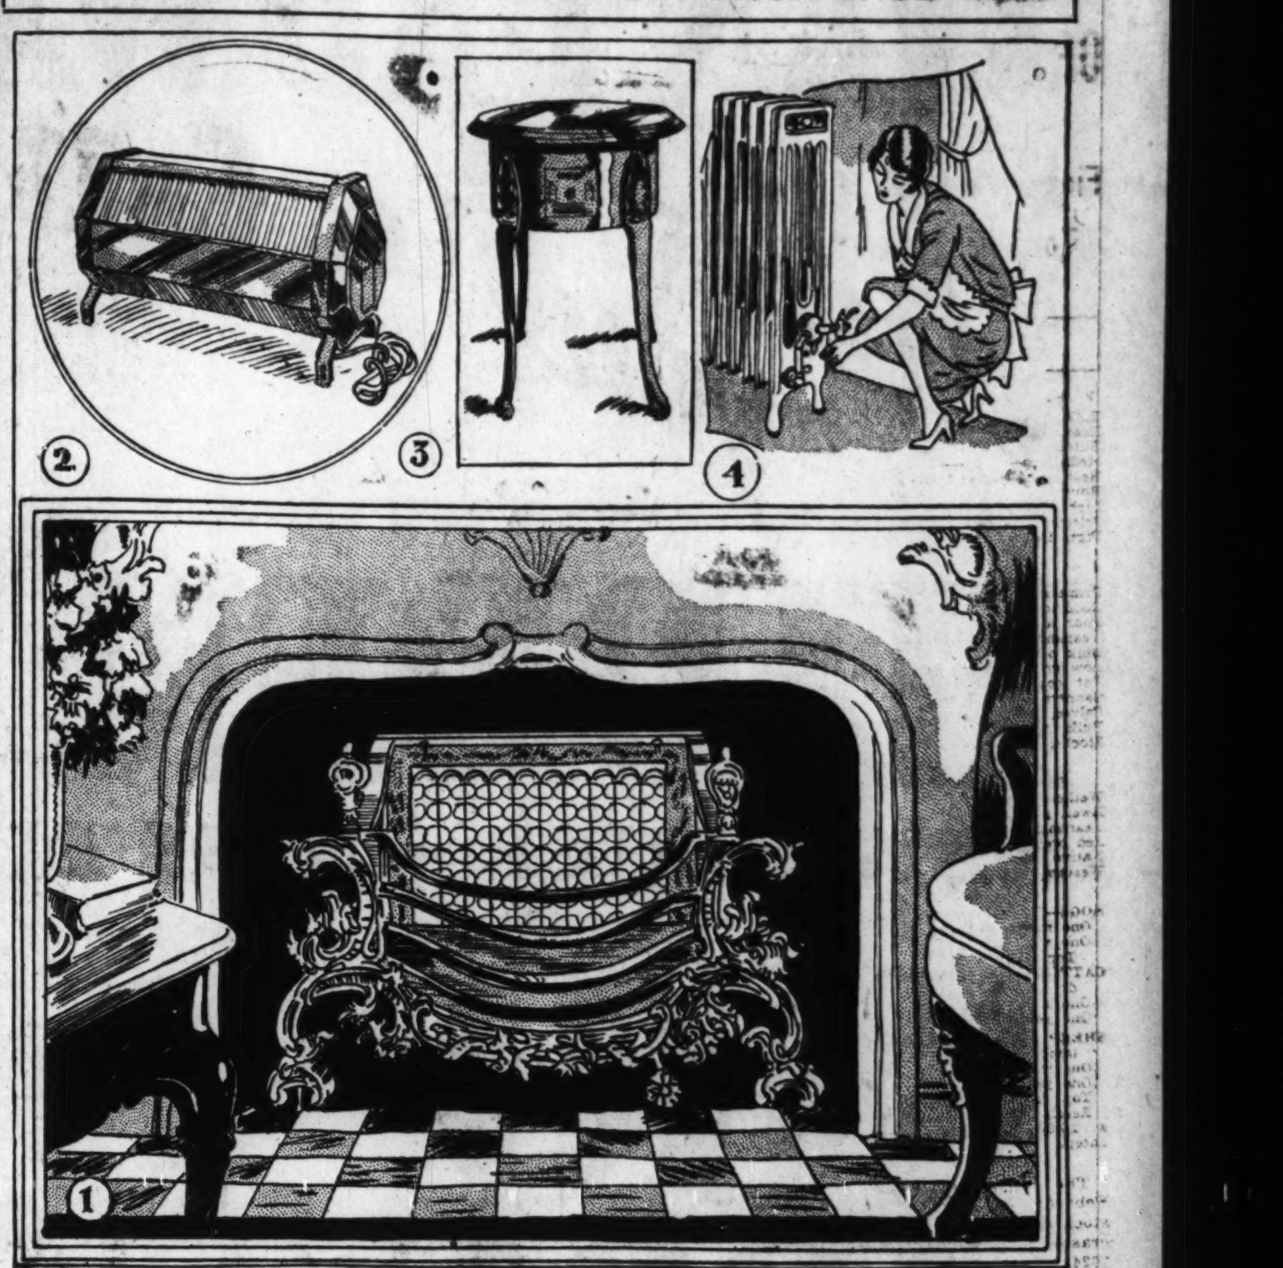
Portable Devices.

There are other portable electric heating devices where a motor fan draws the air up into the unit, passes it through a specially designed heating element and sends it on to the room again. These units resemble a metal covered radiator more than anything else.

Spot heaters of the reflector type are too well known to need much description. The heat which they throw is not great, but they do cast a warmth in a small bath or send out a preceptible heat in a certain desired direction.

In the purchase of these units the cost of operation should be borne in mind. Manufacturers are glad to give out cost per hour of these different units and no attempt is made to underestimate their expense, whatever it is.

FOUR AIDS TO A WARMER RESIDENCE



The above picture shows four modern auxiliary heating units available for the home. No need for any one to be chilly, in any room, at any time of the day or night. (1) A radiant gas fireplace heater, the curved lines of the Louis XV. period, dominant. (2) An electric portable radiator to be plugged in any outlet or socket. (3) An electric heater which can also be used as an occasional table. (4) A gas steam radiator, operating independently of other heating units and highly efficient.

RODE TO STOCK SHOW ON BIKES 30 YEARS AGO

Thirty years ago this week, when Chicago's stock yards were a fraction of their present size and situated "way out in the country" from the youthful metropolis that today surrounds the corn belt's largest meat center, the first International Live Stock exposition was held.

Great, well groomed cattle, horses, hogs, and sheep, fattened from the tips of their noses to the hoofs on their feet, were entrained or hauled into the show over dirt trails in iron-tired wagons. Immense beasts they were, with bones of outlandish size trimly encased in neat, silky furred bodies. That's why the old timers in agriculture can tell you the international was better known as the "fat stock show."

And the international did replace Chicago's first fat stock show, held in a small amphitheater on the lake front in the late '90s. A. G. Leonard, through the years an able sponsor of the growth of the Union Stockyards, had called upon leading live stock fanciers to support the infant international. Through three decades it has continued to be the barometer of business for the live stock industry, denoting changes in meat animal styles and serving as a picturesque educational medium for American, Canadian, and foreign stockmen.

Young Manager Behind Scenes.

A young man of quiet demeanor known about the yards as "Barney" Heide, who served during these first shows under "Bill" Skinner, in 1906 took the reins of managership and still drives with a dexterous hand today. You may see his show in its enlarged splendor in Chicago from Nov. 29 to Dec. 6, but the chances are you won't see this "Barnum of Farm Showdom" himself—he keeps in the background.

Just as a circus adds innovations through the years, so has the international. A small tanbark arena that once held fancy horses and fat stock show classes was surrounded by mustached men wearing brown derbies and long gloved ladies with bustles, small bonnets, and flowing gowns.

Bewhiskered Judges in Ring.

The judges in those days, dressed in high fashion of the day, sported canes as they still do today. But many of them appeared in sideburns, whiskers, or long haired mustaches, tight panted suits, and were the object of feminine admiration.

Barney Heide and many of his helpers who have continued to serve as superintendents and officials of the international through the years recall the "way back when days" with a peculiar humorous sentiment. They remember the first time a driver appeared in this ring driving a wagon pulled by six prancing teams in tandem, whisking about the arena amid cheers and loud handclapping from the galleries.

There is more than the monetary value of premiums to attract such a wealth of rural leadership to this shrine of animal worship. That has been true also of the development in a fewer number of years of the hay and grain show that is now an integral part of the many ringed show.

More Than Premiums to Attract.

The international has grown out of its first quarters, now requiring twelve buildings covering several acres of space. The trains, street cars and autos converging here for one week continue to bring Chicago a huge convention of notable people from the four compass points. Some thirty prominent agricultural organizations hold their annual meetings during this week also.

Women enjoy as well as men the natural wonders of the international. They delight in the dexterity of their own sex at the bridle reins or in the careening buggies. They also admire the educational displays of meats in their newest modes of preparation.

"Every year I secure particular satisfaction from the expressions of Chicago people who come to the live stock show," said Manager Heide on a recent occasion. "If they haven't been thrilled by the unexpected sights they see here they are impressed by the magnitude of our undertakings. We expect Chicago to visit the show next week in larger numbers than ever before."

The first Hidden Want Ad will tell you where to look for the next one, and so on. Read the simple directions and start now!

What Want Ad Classification Does This Picture Represent?

CAN you follow a trail? Do you like to figure out secret messages? Do you like games that make you use your wits? Then get busy! Want-Ad Wanda is offering a brand-new series of Hidden Want Ad games. Again she challenges you to follow her trail and find the want ads which she has hidden in the want ad columns of today's Tribune. Loads of fun for everybody—a real treasure hunt, mysterious messages, baffling clues, lots of excitement!

Just Follow These Simple Directions:

In the want ad columns of today's Tribune there has been inserted a number of mysterious want ads. These want ads look exactly like regular want ads, except the wording is different. Altogether there are between 10 and 15 of these Hidden Want Ads. You are invited to hunt for the Hidden Want Ads and try for the $100 in cash prizes which the Tribune will pay.

The game starts with the picture on this page. This picture represents one of the main classifications of Tribune Want Ads. Study the picture and decide which classification you think the artist had in mind. Then turn to that classification in today's want ad section and look through the want ads under that heading until you find the first Hidden Want Ad. You can't possibly miss it.

Each Hidden Want Ad Leads to the Next

After you have found this first Hidden Want Ad, read it over carefully. THE WORDING OF EACH HIDDEN WANT AD GIVES A HINT OR CLUE TO THE HIDING PLACE OF THE NEXT ONE. It's just like a treasure hunt. You don't have to search through the entire want ad section to find the Hidden Want Ads if you will just keep your wits about you. The Hidden Want Ads all tie up with each other. The picture helps you find the first one. The first one helps you find the second one. The second helps you find the third, and so on.

Remember, there are no less than 10 Hidden Want Ads and no more than 15. It's up to you to decide when you have found them all.

Awards will be made to the persons who send in the most nearly complete sets of Hidden Want Ads arranged in the most nearly correct order in accordance with these rules. Neatness and ingenuity of presenting them will count. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

You may clip the Hidden Want Ads from the paper and paste them on the handy blank provided at the right, or you may copy them down on separate sheets of paper. You may indicate what you believe to be their proper order or sequence by numbering them 1, 2, 3, 4, etc.

This offer is open to all—men and women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

Entries should be mailed to "HIDDEN WANT ADS 'J'," the Chicago Tribune, Postoffice Box 1718, Chicago, Ill. All entries for today's game must be received in the Tribune Office not later than 6:00 P. M. on Thursday, November 27, 1930.

You need not purchase the Tribune to compete. Copies of the Tribune may be examined at the Tribune office or at public libraries free of charge.

No entries will be returned, nor can the Tribune engage in correspondence on this subject. The prize winners of today's game will be announced two weeks from today.

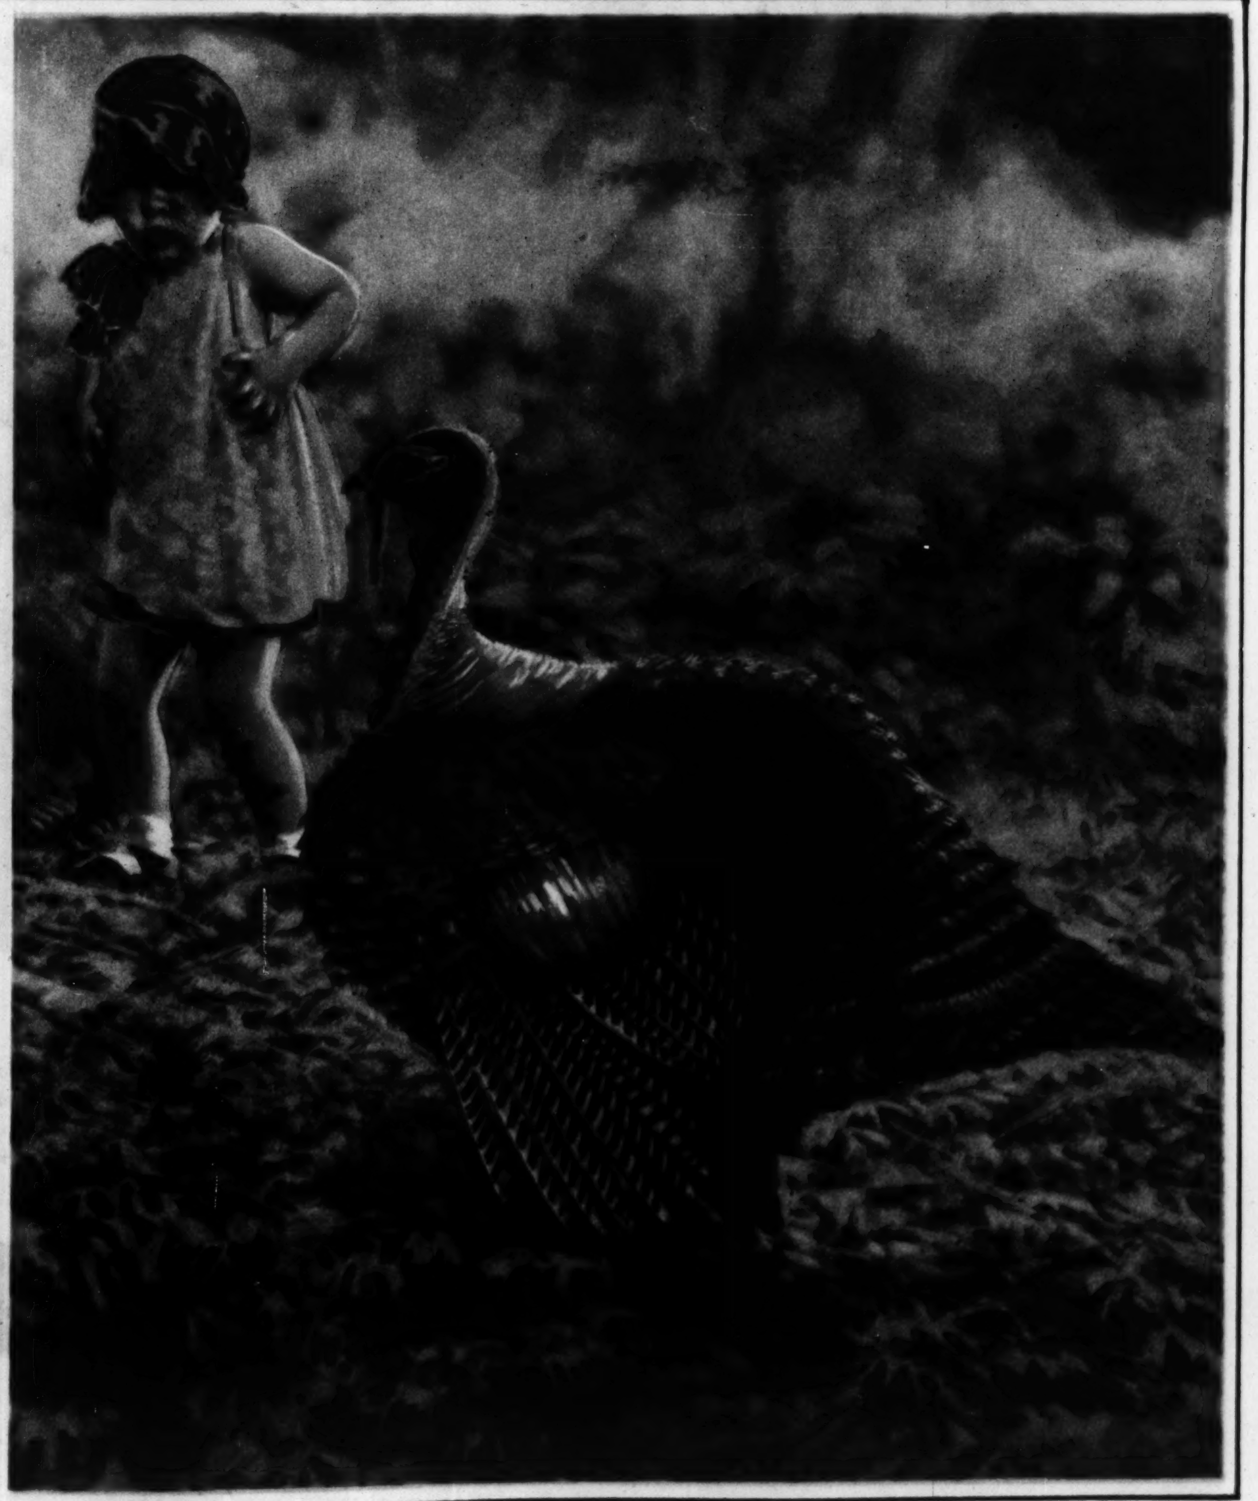
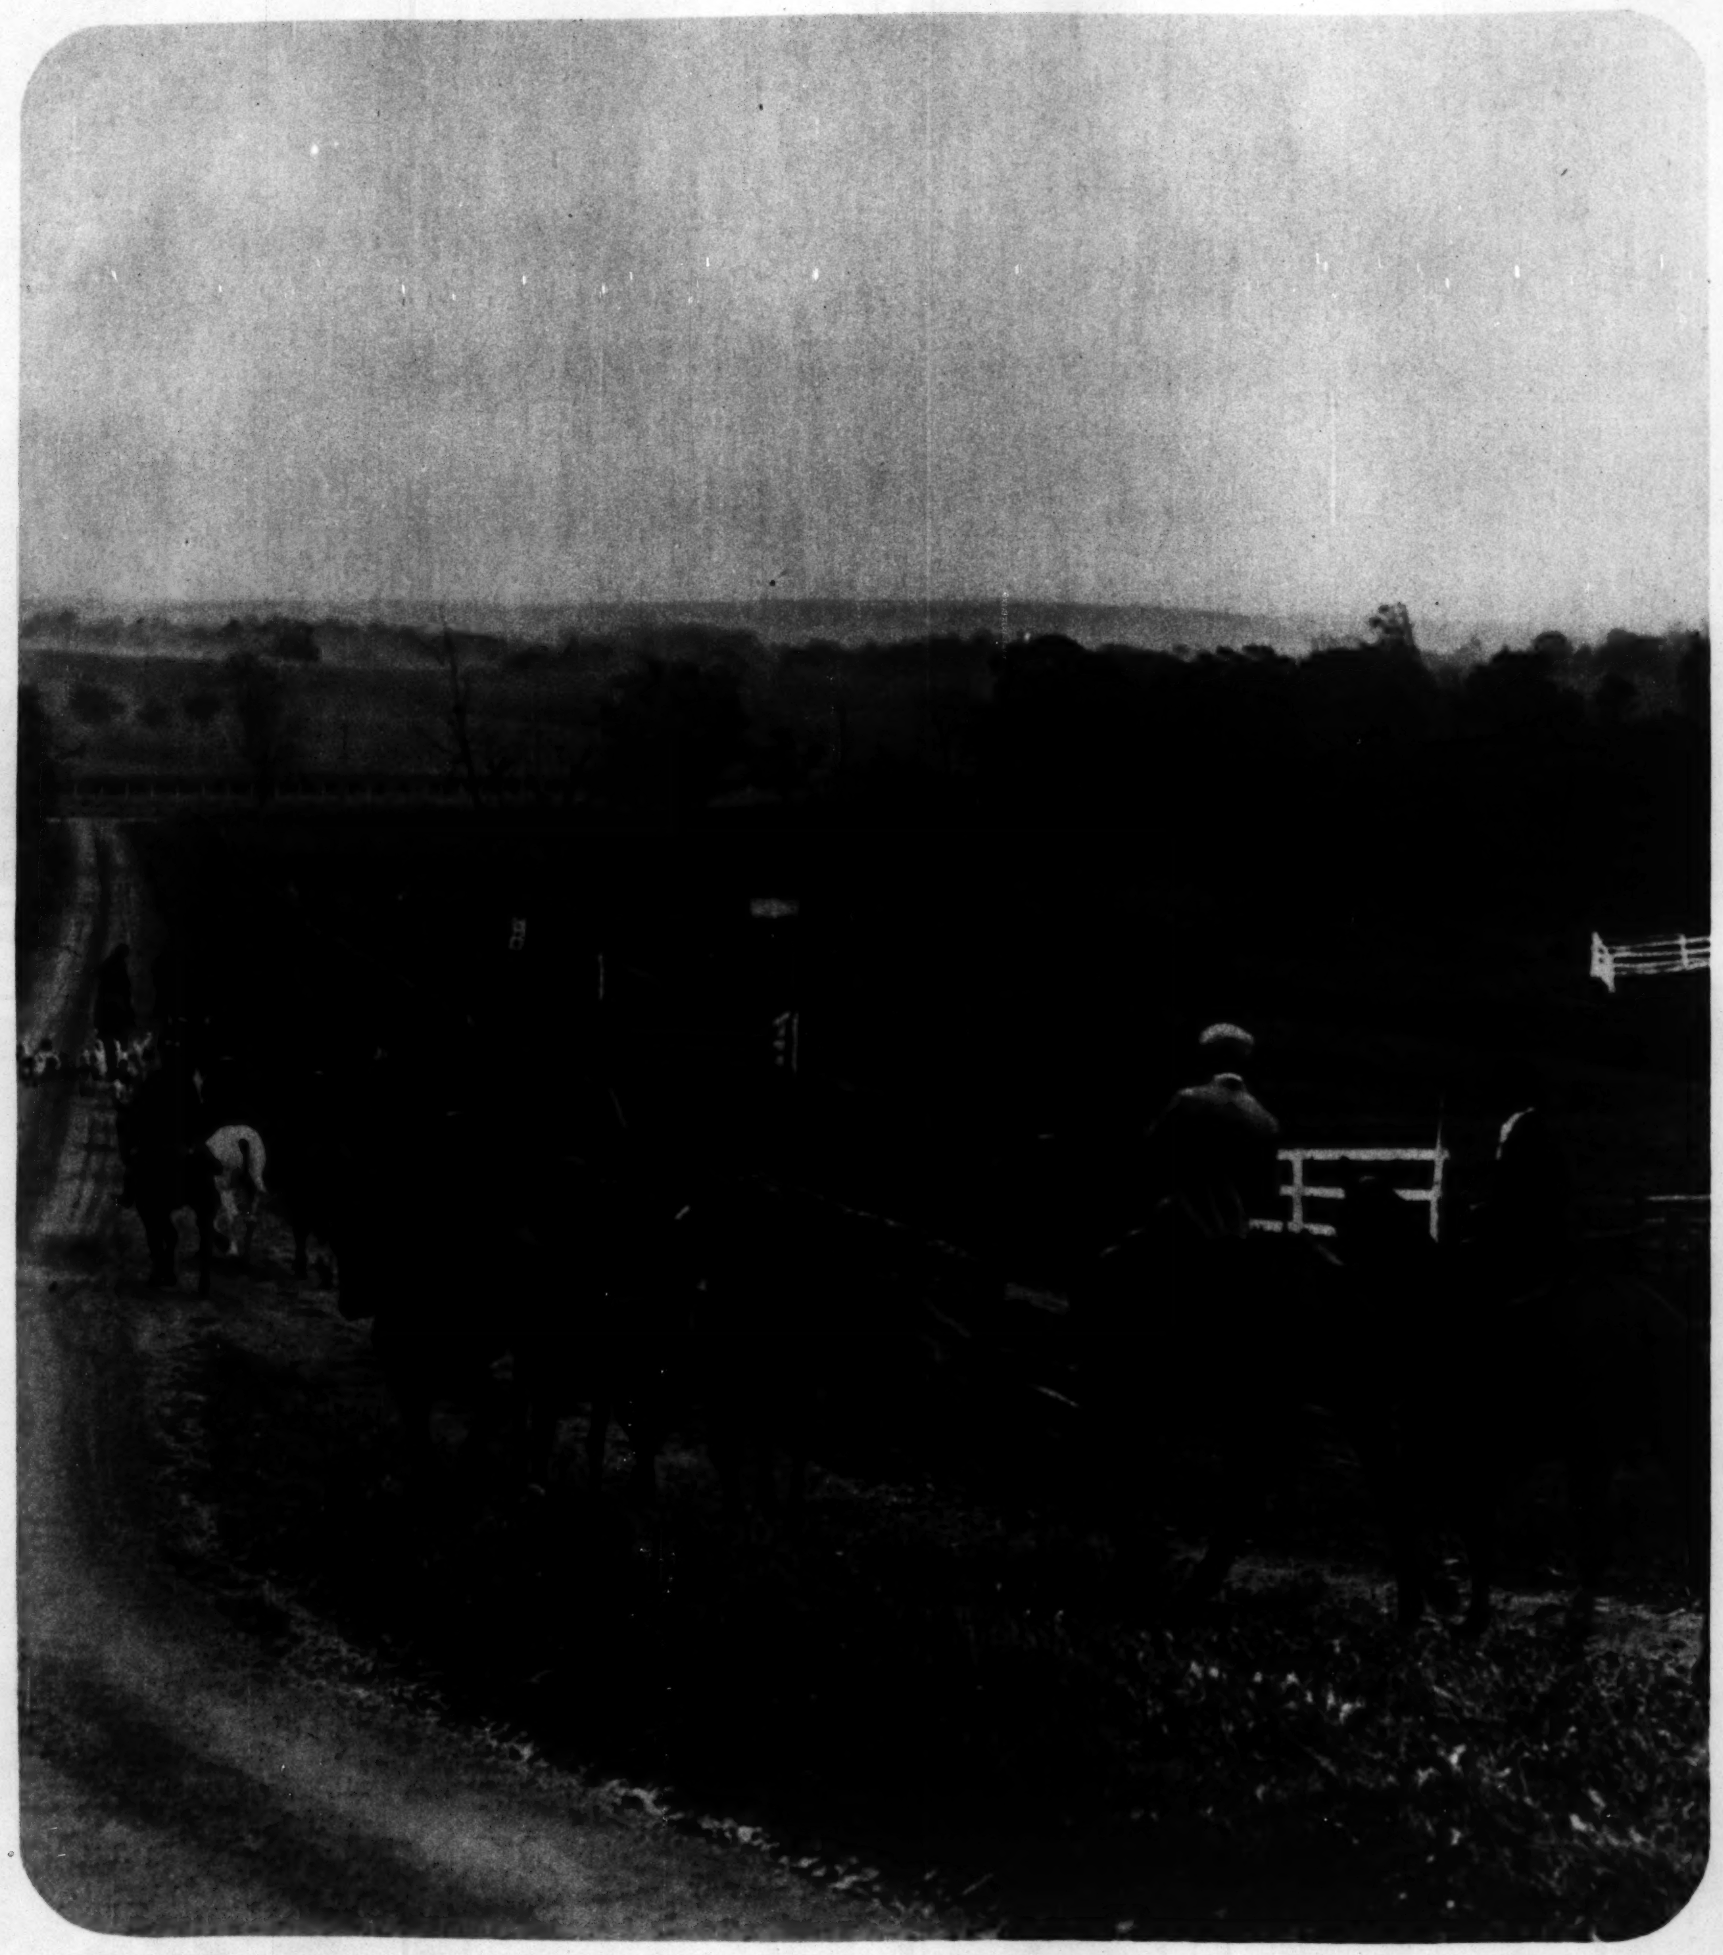
A THANKSGIVING VISION—Vivid red steelwork lashing out toward the skies is a picture that has in it elements for heartfelt thanksgiving in this year of 1930. Artist Chase, whose interpretations of Chicago's spirit of energy are numerous, sees the city moving "Onward and Upward" (the title) despite all discouragements.



A THANKSGIVING EPISODE—A little miss whose curiosity about turkeys led her into this terrifying predicament. "I'd rather have my nightmare after Thanksgiving dinner than before," she said, as (we are happy to relate) her papa rescued her from the infuriated Mr. Turkey, who obviously doesn't like turkey red caps on little girls.

Hounds to their Kennels, tired Horses to the Barns

Now happy Sportsmen will Live over each Moment of the Run



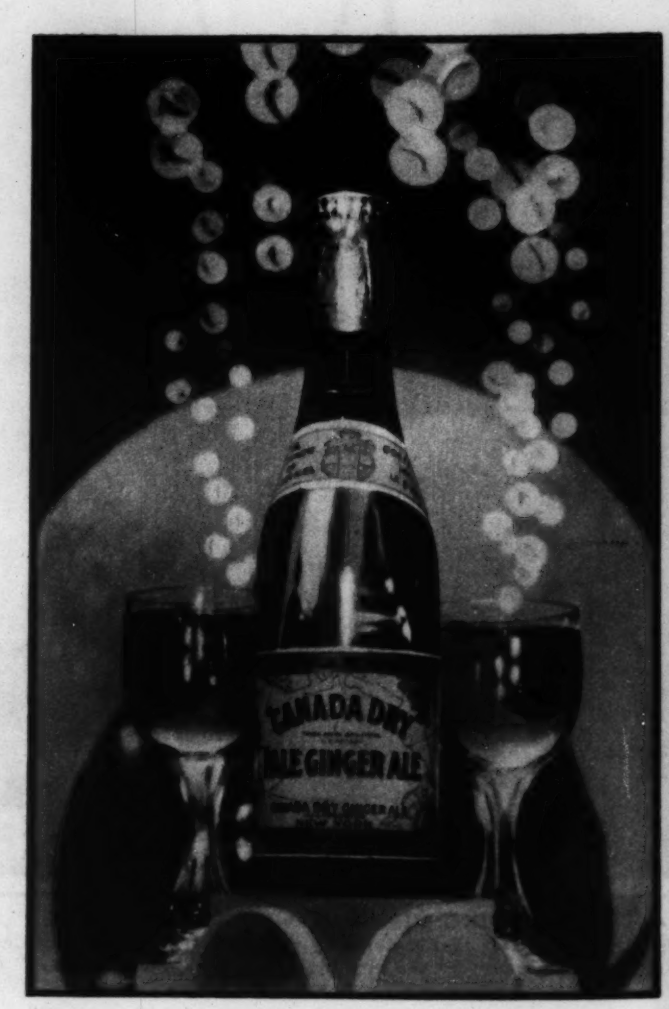
ACROSS the fields they rode, over meadow, jumping brooks, through woodland . . . eight miles of galloping in the keen autumn air . . . eight miles of danger and taking a chance . . . eight miles of sport . . . and after they found, then they bore the brush in triumph back to the club house, living again each moment of the day.

These are fox-hunters. These are sportsmen. These are the sort who find that matching quality of sportsmanship, basic excellence, in their favorite beverage, "Canada Dry," the Champagne of Ginger Ales.

With good reason they find basic excellence, for this fine old beverage has won the approving nod of connoisseurs the wide world over. Its very foundation is "Liquid Ginger"—which we make from selected Jamaica ginger root by a special process. This process is exclusively controlled by us and, unlike any other method, retains for "Canada Dry" all of the original aroma, flavor and natural essence of the ginger root. Rigid laboratory control assures uniformity, purity and highest quality. A special process of carbonation conserves its sparkle long after the bottle has been opened.

Such a marvelous beverage is the favored one in many places . . . London . . . Paris . . . New York . . . the Houses of Parliament at Ottawa . . . and in countless homes throughout this country.

Its zest brings pleasure to any occasion . . . its graciousness, like that of an accomplished hostess, makes itself quietly but surely felt. Its inimitable flavor adds distinction to Thanksgiving dinner. Order "Canada Dry." The Hostess Package of twelve bottles is a convenient way always to have it on hand.



HAVE YOU TRIED — ?

Canada Dry's Sparkling Orange. A remarkable new carbonated orange drink. Made from pure fresh orange juice, and containing the natural fruit pulp—a true orange beverage. Ask for it where you buy "Canada Dry."

Canada Dry's new Golden Ginger Ale. Never before have you tasted a golden ginger ale with such a marvelous flavor. The secret of its delight comes from an exclusive process of beverage making. Buy it where you buy "Canada Dry."

6 VACATIONS IN ONE
IN Southern California

THIS WINTER

$215 A MONTH WHILE HERE

Send coupon for new free Winter Sightseeing Itinerary

HERE, in one unique area, are the varied elements of half-a-dozen glorious winter vacations . . . and all for as little as $215 a month while here. This figure is based on a full schedule of activity every day . . . hotels, meals, sports, sightseeing trips daily. (Costs can be considerably less if you don't care to be "on the go" every day.)

Because the Los Angeles area is a year 'round vacation land, with ample accommodations at all times, you escape the "peak prices" necessary in short-season resorts. In fact, U.S. government surveys show that costs of food, rent, fuel and light in Los Angeles County are 15.2% less than the national average. Costs while here may easily be no more than at home.

We have prepared a suggested itinerary for a month's stay in Southern California this winter, describing and illustrating all the things you'll want to do and see. Includes dozens of interesting photographs of California scenes, map, information about routes and itemized daily cost figures. Send the coupon below for your free copy of this remarkable book.

You could take half-a-dozen trips and not gain as much fun and stimulating new experience as Southern California offers you. For close to Los Angeles, the United States' fifth city, are the blue Pacific, with sunny beaches and nearby pleasure-islands . . . mile-high mountains and crystal lakes . . . the sun-drenched winter desert, land of gorgeous colors and strange contrasts . . . orange groves . . . ancient Spanish Missions and colorful Old Mexico . . . all linked by palm-lined boulevards and transportation lines.

Rest, Play, Health—and More

Every sort of sport, all winter long. In Hollywood you'll mingle with famous stars at smart cafes and gay "first-nights." Then there are Pasadena, Long Beach, Santa Monica, Beverly Hills, Glendale, scores of other fascinating places. You can stay six months and do something different every day. Or, if time is limited, even a two-weeks vacation gives you 11 days actually here, from your city.

Let us tell you more about this vacation, how little it will cost and how much it will mean to you. Send the coupon . . . NOW!

If you wish another beautiful Southern California book—containing 71 large gravure photographs, send 4 cents to cover mailing cost.

This folding Lipstick by Lenthéric

THIS unusual lipstick is indeed the newest creation of French cosmetic art. Being indelible, it will not rub off . . . no matter what the occasion. It is presented in three natural, exuberant, youthful colors. ● This triumph in cosmetics has been withheld by Lenthéric, awaiting its new exquisitely chic folding holder. Beautifully executed in silver and gold and silver and black, this holder is a rare expression of the jeweler's skill . . . and at the same time fascinatingly practical. ● You open it in the manner of a folding pocket comb and the lipstick emerges . . . you close it and the lipstick disappears in its protecting case. There is no cap to come off. The lipstick can never stain the contents of your handbag. ● This new Lenthéric Lipstick with other Lenthéric products is available at leading department stores and at your favorite druggist.

IT CLEANSES!

When Nivea Creme is patted into your skin as a cleanser it not only takes out dirt, dust and grime, but it puts into your skin substances essential to smooth, healthy loveliness. Nivea is the only creme in the world containing Eucerite (discovery of a noted German dermatologist). And it's this Eucerite* which causes Nivea to restore to your skin those softening substances removed by exposure to wind, cold, snow and rain.

If you want a lovelier skin this winter—if you would like to have your face and hands soft and smooth as sheltered body-skin—use Nivea* Creme faithfully, day and night, as cleanser, powder base, freshening night creme and a constant protection against exposure. Buy it in tubes or jars—look for the blue and white package on the cosmetic counters of the better department and drug stores.

CHILDREN really do love Castoria. The tiniest infant and the growing child—both like its pleasant taste. Mothers like the way it acts. It comforts a child so quickly, and it can't do any harm.

The best child in the world will have fretful spells. But as often as he is restless, can't sleep, won't eat, has a cold or shows any fever you can always give good old Castoria. If you've tried it, you know how soon it makes a child comfortable. If you've read what's in it, you know how safe it is. (The formula is printed in plain English on the wrapper.)

Yes, Castoria is mild. Yet it is effective in real emergencies. When there's an attack of colic; or other little upset. And remember this: a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation for older children is better than some stronger medicine meant only for adults.

Fletcher's Castoria is in every drugstore. No home where there are young ones should ever be without a bottle, day or night. Look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the wrapper. Read the valuable book on babies and children which you will find inside.

It's a new type of skin softener women everywhere are changing to!

A light, delicate cream you apply at night . . . it is utterly unlike the old-type "greasy" softening creams. Hence you retire with face smooth and lovely.

No need to be unattractive . . . uncomfortable with grease on face, in hair.

You simply smooth cream well into skin for a moment, and behold! your face is left soft, velvety, utterly greaseless.

What it does

A strict departure from ordinary softening creams, Texture Cream not only softens and lubricates dry skins, but positively will not over-stimulate oily areas.

Good for "Deceptive Skin"

Hence it is used with remarkable success by the "Deceptive Type" skin, which shows both dry and oily symptoms.

Note: Many women, in attempting to keep skin softened and lubricated, find creams increasing the oily condition around nose, chin, and forehead. Hinds Texture Cream will not do this.

You get it at all drug and department stores. Price 40¢ and 65¢. Buy Hinds Texture Cream today.

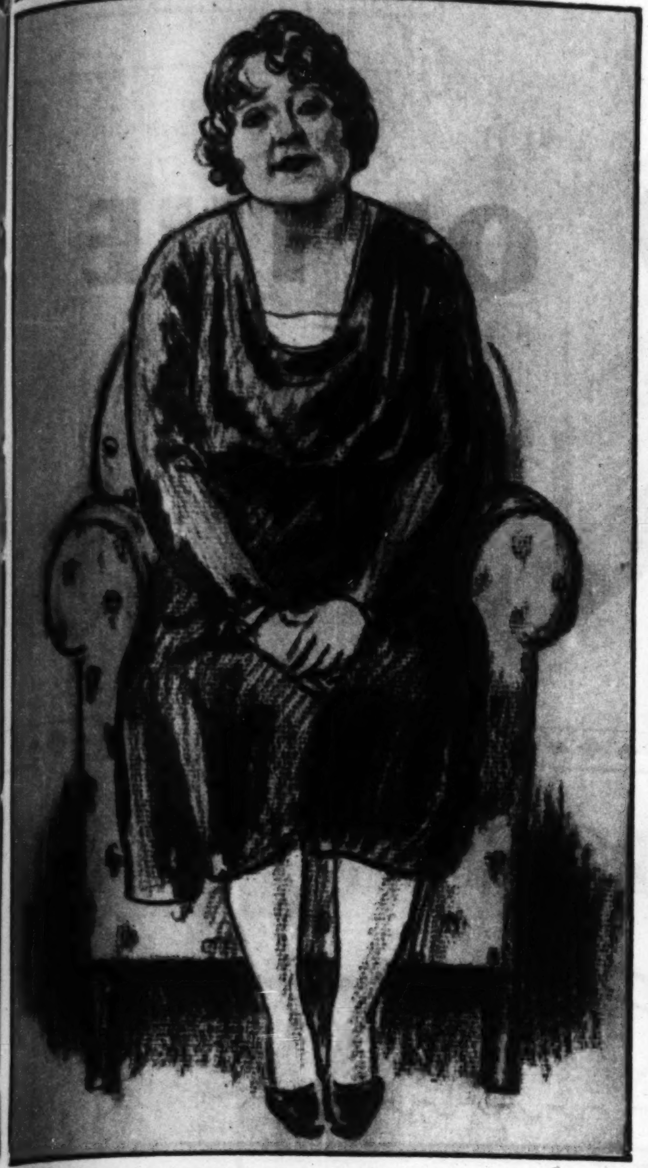
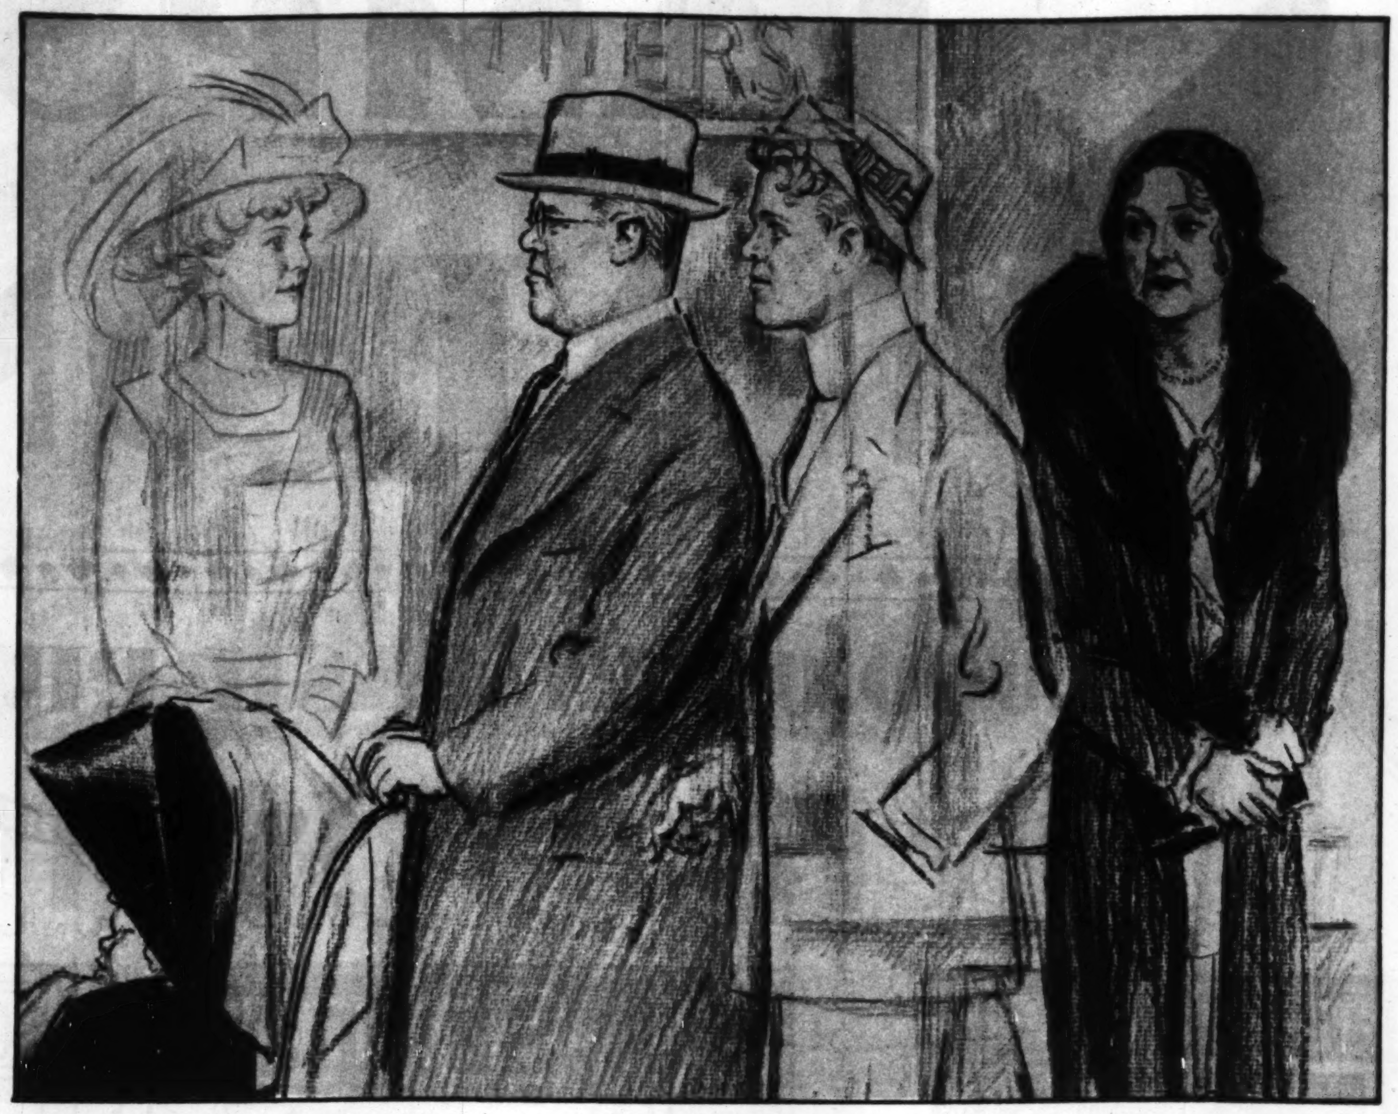
The Halls of Memory

By W. E. Hill

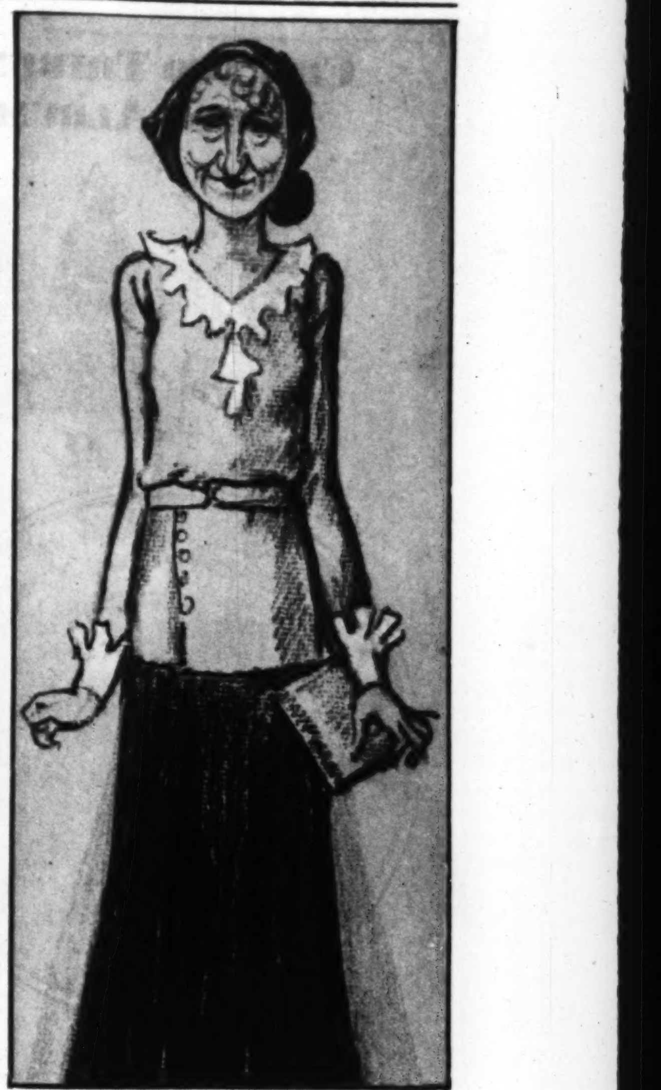
[Copyright: 1930: By The Chicago Tribune.]



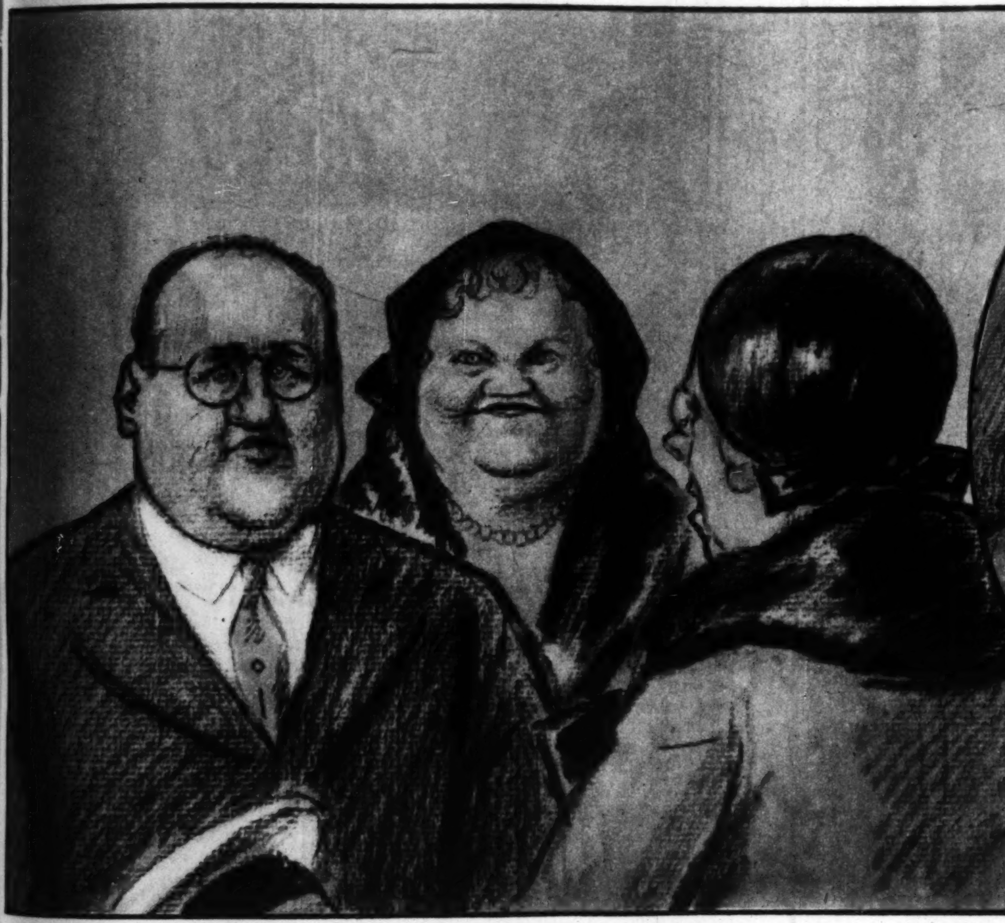
The unpleasant memory. Some people are born with a faculty for assembling gruesome facts and hanging on to them. Just such a person is Mrs. Harold Wigge. "Twenty-eight?" she will comment brightly. "Why, Lucia, you must be thirty-eight if you're a day! Because I remember Aunt Hattie sent me over with a little combing jacket she made for you on your seventh birthday, and that was in 1899, I'm sure."



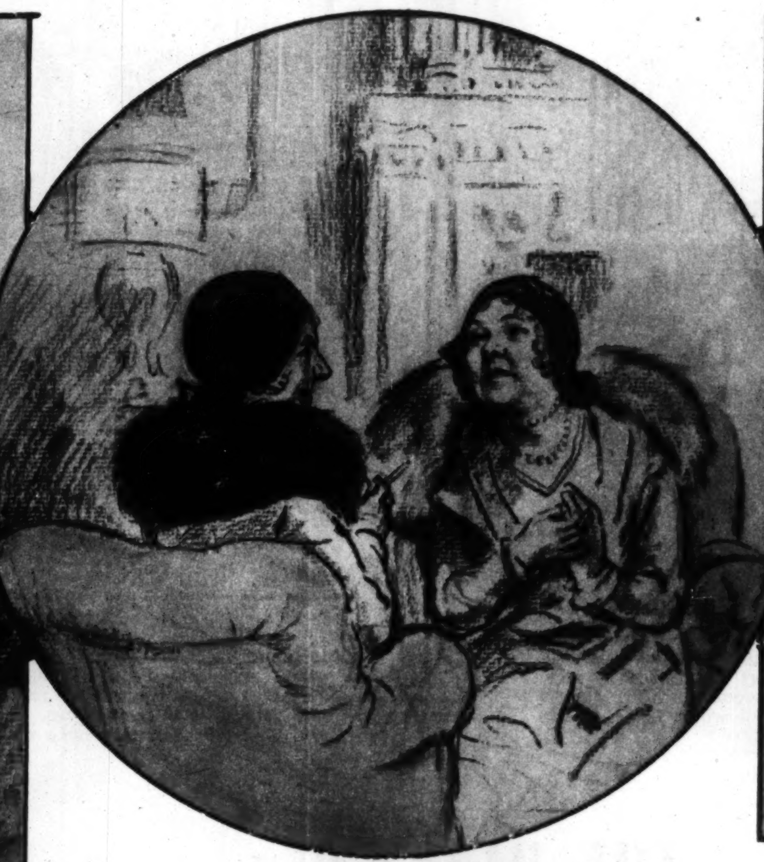
"When You and I Were Young, Maggie," sang a poet of the blithesome long ago, and fond memory is painting a fleeting picture for Margaret and Wallace of the days when they were sweethearts, before Margaret married the bank cashier and Wallace took his employer's only child for better or for worse.



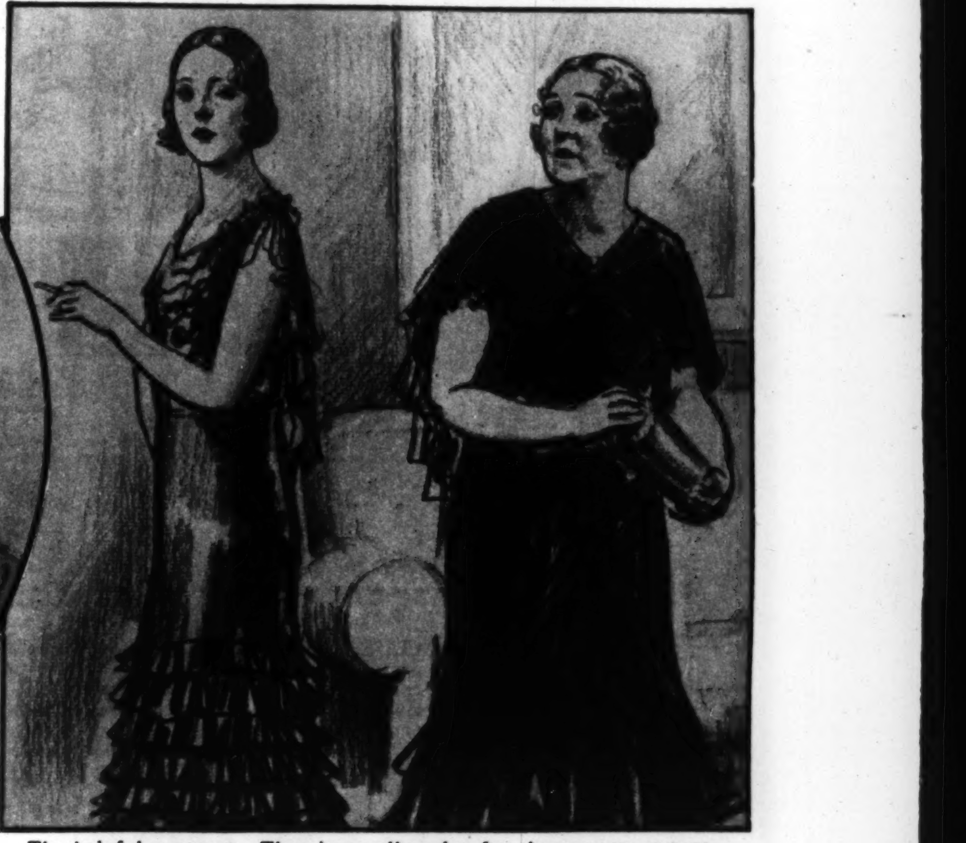
Miss Mabel Mantle has one of those day-before-yesterday memories which causes her to look saucer-eyed and vague — no easy matter after the crow's-feet begin to creep in—when anything before 1920 is brought into the conversation. "I was such a tiny tot when the great war commenced that I can hardly remember anything connected with it, except that we all saved and saved every scrap of tinfoil we could lay our hands on!"



The memory for faces. "I remembered your faces right away. I never forget a face, but I couldn't recall the name!"

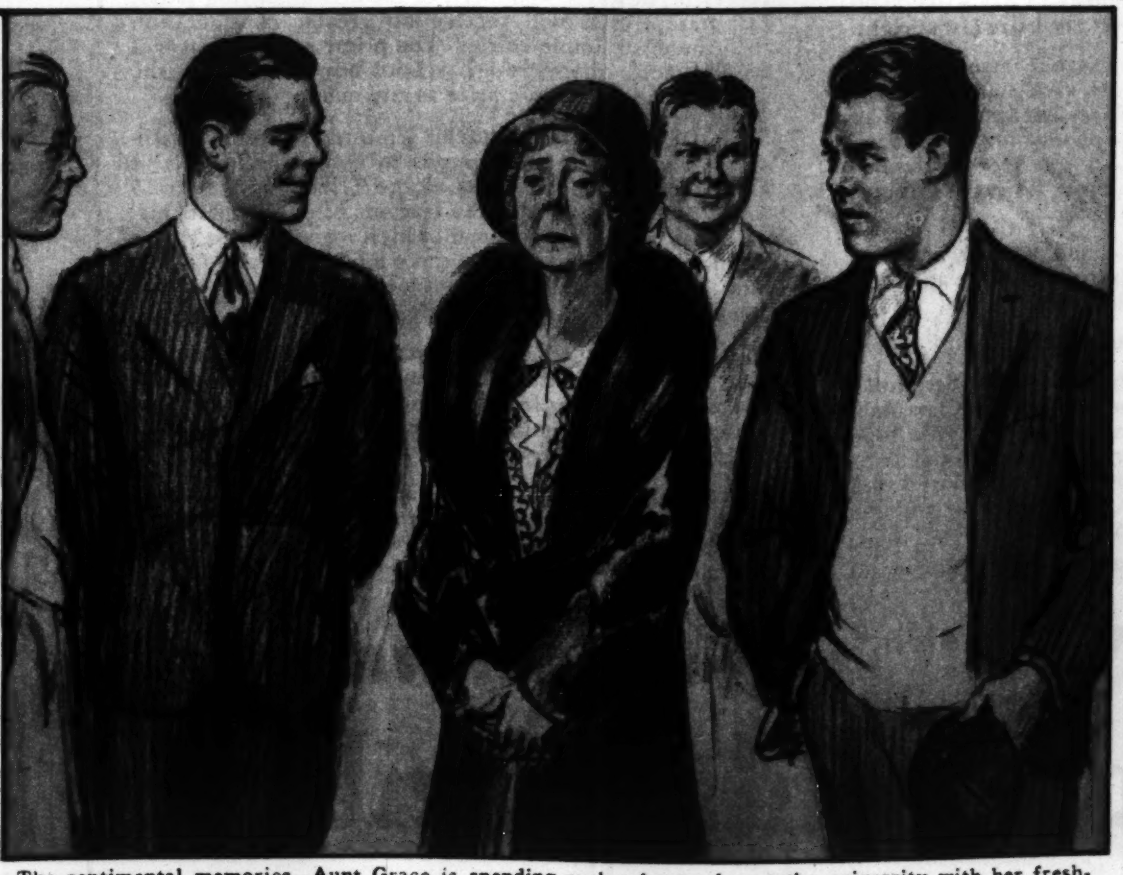


The college memories. These lovely girls are a couple of old college grads talking over the old days on and off the campus. "Will you ever forget," reminisces old grad No. 1, "the time those three Amherst sophomores took us to dinner at Boyden's, and we didn't know what to order, and Alice Mould spilt mayonnaise on her roommate's pony-coat?"

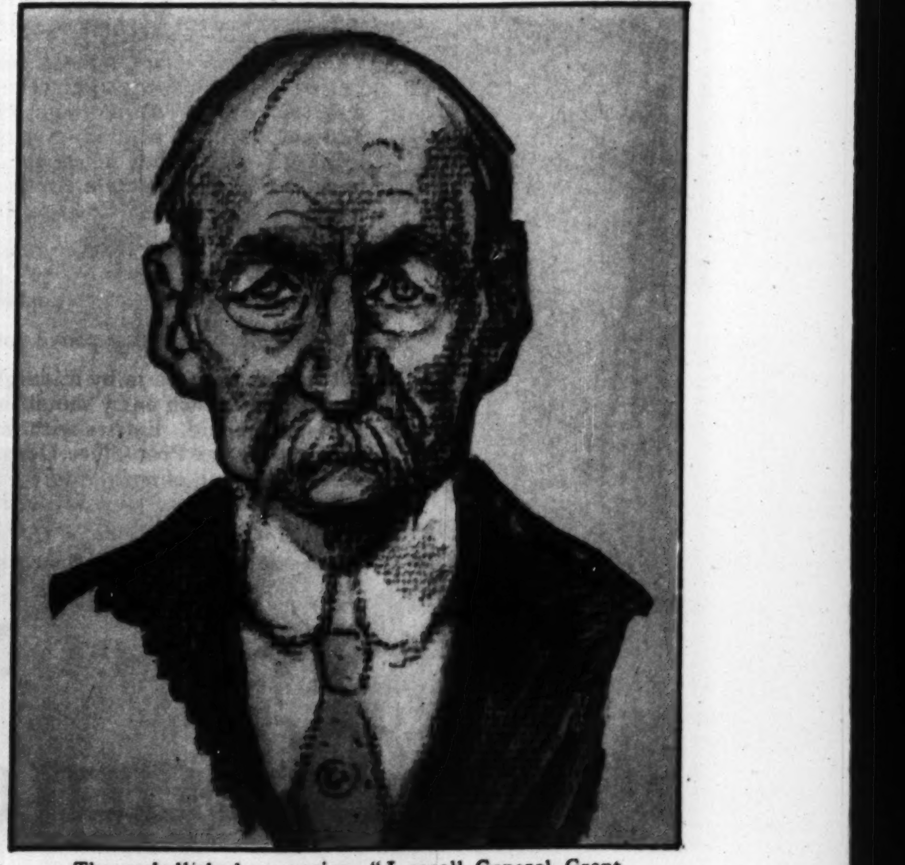


The helpful memory. There's usually a lot for the younger generation to learn from Mrs. Huggins' store of girlhood memories. What her mother said, and how she profited by it, and never forgot, and so forth. "I remember, Gertrude, my mother once saying to me," begins Mrs. Huggins, "'a lady is known by the company she keeps,'" and after Gertrude has digested this Victorian wisecrack she will say, "O, mother, please don't say things like that. You've no idea how it dates you!"

The blank memory. "Contrast the style of Chaucer with the methods employed by the poets of the Restoration period and illustrate by examples from what you have read." (Dudley is A-1 on bits from "All Quiet on the Western Front," "The Corpse with the Winking Eye," and several other lately perused volumes, but memories of Mr. Chaucer's works just will not come to mind.)



The sentimental memories. Aunt Grace is spending such a happy day at the university with her freshman nephew, meeting all the upper class fraternity brothers and telling them about Laurence's home life. "He was such a sweet child I hated to have him grow up. He used to have a doll named Jemima that he always took to bed with him."



The embellished memories. "I recall General Grant sending for me to step over to see him in his tent at Bull Run, and how he said to me, 'Silas,' he said, 'you may be only a corporal, but if Lincoln and Seward and the rest had you in Washington there'd be a lot more efficiency.'" Uncle Silas' memory goes so far back there are very few who can dispute his veracity.

• THE RULES •

1. Every Sunday for 14 Sundays, the Chicago Tribune will print in this "Stamp Album," a set of 3 composite "Stamps of the Nations." Each set of stamps, when cut apart and assembled properly, will make complete stamps. The public is invited to put the stamps together and name the countries they represent. The Chicago Tribune will pay $10,000.00 in Cash Prizes for the best answers! See Prize List at right.
2. The composite stamps must be cut out, assembled and pasted or pinned together. Below each stamp must be written the name of the country it represents. A total of 42 stamps will be printed—3 each Sunday for 14 Sundays. IMPORTANT! Hold all stamps until you have the complete set of 42. Then send them to "Stamps," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois.
3. This contest is open to everyone—men, women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. It does not matter where you live.
4. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.
5. All stamps must be in by midnight 21 days after Set No 14 is published. Each entry should be sent by First Class Mail, Postage Prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department. A letter must be sent with your entry giving your name and address and telling the name of your favorite Stamp and why you like it best. Letters must not exceed 50 words.

   Contestants may send as many sets as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize. No entries will be returned.
6. The judging will be based upon the accuracy of putting the stamps together, correctly naming the countries they represent, neatness, and merit of the accompanying letter. Elaborate entries will receive no greater consideration than the most simple entries. The prime requirement will be accuracy. Therefore any school boy or girl has the same chance to obtain a prize as any man or woman.
7. SCHOOL TEACHERS, NOTE: To interest School Teachers in encouraging their pupils to enter this instructive and educational game, the Chicago Tribune will award 5 prizes of $100.00 each to the teachers of public, parochial or private schools of grammar or high school grades, whose pupils rank highest among the winners. Good taste is more than wrapper deep. Van Dyck is fine all through, mild all through—it is a distinguished cigar from the outside in—a delightful smoke from the first puff to the last. Look for "The Distinguished Set" — Van Dyck Banker, Invincible, Corona, and the new Selecto — in cigar cases everywhere. You'll like Van Dyck.

TRAVEL round the world and you will find this to be true: The loveliest women follow Pond's 4 steps to beauty . . . It is the four delightful preparations that keep their skin always flower-like, radiant . . . Charming young Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. declares, "I'm devoted to the marvelous Two Creams and the exquisite Tissues and invigorating Tonic" . . . Pretty Mrs. Gifford Pinchot II says, "Just the four steps of Pond's Method, faithfully followed every day and never omitted, will keep one's skin smooth, fresh and clear" . . . Your own experience will prove this . . . Swift, simple, scientific, Pond's Method assures the pore-deep cleansing, the gentle bracing and toning, the exquisite protection from wind and weather that are essential to preserve the youth and beauty of your skin.

POND'S METHOD: 1. For pore-deep cleansing, amply apply Pond's Cold Cream several times a day, always after exposure; pat in with upward, outward strokes. 2. Wipe away with Pond's Cleansing Tissues, soft, safe, super-absorbent—they come in the new Parisian peach color as well as white. 3. Pat cleansed skin briskly with Pond's Skin Freshener to banish oiliness, tighten, tone and firm. 4. Smooth on a dainty film of Pond's Vanishing Cream for powder base, protection, exquisite finish.

The Steinway Baby Grand — A Steinway of this size and power . . . at $1425 . . . is an extraordinary value. It may be obtained with a down payment of only $142.50. Payment of balance is made in small monthly instalments over a three-year period. It is the ideal instrument for the majority of homes. Its beautiful finish harmonizes with any plan of interior decoration. Its size is such as to conserve floor space, and still retain that beauty and breadth of tone which a true grand piano ought to have. There are many Steinway sizes and prices (including period models.) Also with the famous Duo-Art reproducing action.

WITH THE LYON & HEALY PLAN THERE IS NOW NO REASON WHY THE FAMILY OF MODERATE INCOME SHOULD BE DEPRIVED OF THE INSTRUMENT OF THE IMMORTALS

For generations the heads of important homes have realized that the Steinway, chosen instrument of nearly every great musician from Liszt to Paderewski, had a rare property of inspiring children with its splendid tradition and brilliant performance. But what is not generally known is that Lyon & Healy sell the Steinway on a plan that places it within reach of almost every family.

When your children grow up, this Steinway that you buy now for their instruction will still be theirs, helping them to entertain their friends with its incomparable range of tone and color, giving their spirits a chance for self-expression, and decorating their home with the graceful lines of its beautifully finished woods and ivory.

For a sum as low as 10% of its price, the Steinway, the instrument on which the mighty ones of music have built their reputations and careers, can be in your home tomorrow, and payment may be conveniently extended over a three-year period. Thus, as easily as you obtained the other important units of your home, you may obtain from Lyon & Healy the finest piano in the world . . . an inspiring lifelong possession that is at once a distinguished decoration and a superb musical instrument. Come in and be convinced.

A new Steinway Upright piano can be bought for a total as low as $875

10% down balance in three years

This means that the Steinway Upright may be obtained with a cash deposit of only $87.50. Payment of the balance is made in small monthly instalments over a three-year period. Any Steinway may be purchased on the plan of 10% down, balance in three years. Used pianos accepted in partial exchange.

Hofmann says: "I consider the Steinway piano absolutely unique."

Enroute to the football game via Park Avenue—with the very charming lady in her knitted sports costume of green and beige plaid ready for whatever gray skies may bring forth! A camel-hair coat, a Rodier scarf, beige gloves and beige cloth Gaytees complete the smart effect.

. . . The Gaytees that went to the football game were beige cloth in a tweed effect, like this. Available in other costume colors. Ask to see the Elfin model.

Gaytees ensembles step from motors into smart rendezvous

The woman who rides to her every destination wears Gaytees, too. Partly because dainty footwear spots distressingly in even a few seconds of exposure. Partly because of the added warmth and comfort in wintry weather. Partly (or is it chiefly?) because these new matching Gaytees are quite the smartest touch any stormy-day costume can acquire! . . . Paris set her stamp of highest approval on Gaytees ensembles when the mannequins of such famous couturiers as Jenny, Mary Nowitzky and Chantal, at the August openings, wore matching or harmonizing Gaytees to complete both town and country costumes. Right now your favorite store is showing the most fascinating Gaytees—the very models Paris raved over—in types and colorings to match all your new clothes. Shop for them now, while stocks are complete!

Gaytees are made only by United States Rubber Company.

A NEW GIANT OF WINGED TRANSPORTATION—A diagrammatic view of the Junkers monoplane D-2000, Germany's newest entry in the competition of skyways with railways. In size and power it will remind the reader of the touring German DO-X, the world's biggest flying boat. The motors are in the wings, and the cargo carrying space is in wings and body. BOMBED! Crack flyers of Camp Stanley, Texas, rain destruction on retired army planes in a sham battle of deceptive realism. Elsewhere in this section appears an interview in which Gen. Charles P. Summerall, who retired as chief of staff on Friday, discloses his conclusions concerning effective military strategy for the United States. This scene supplies an interesting illustration of aerial bombing of hostile aerodromes, the strategic importance of which the general points out.

THROUGH THE ARTILLERY'S EYES—An aerial photograph from 32,400 feet above Wright field, Dayton, O., creates a remarkably detailed map of the terrain and argues strongly for Gen. Summerall's high valuation of this military art.

for Pale, Listless Run-down Children

Every observant mother sees children that "just don't seem to do right." They are pale and listless, catch cold easily, and are first to catch all diseases children are heir to.

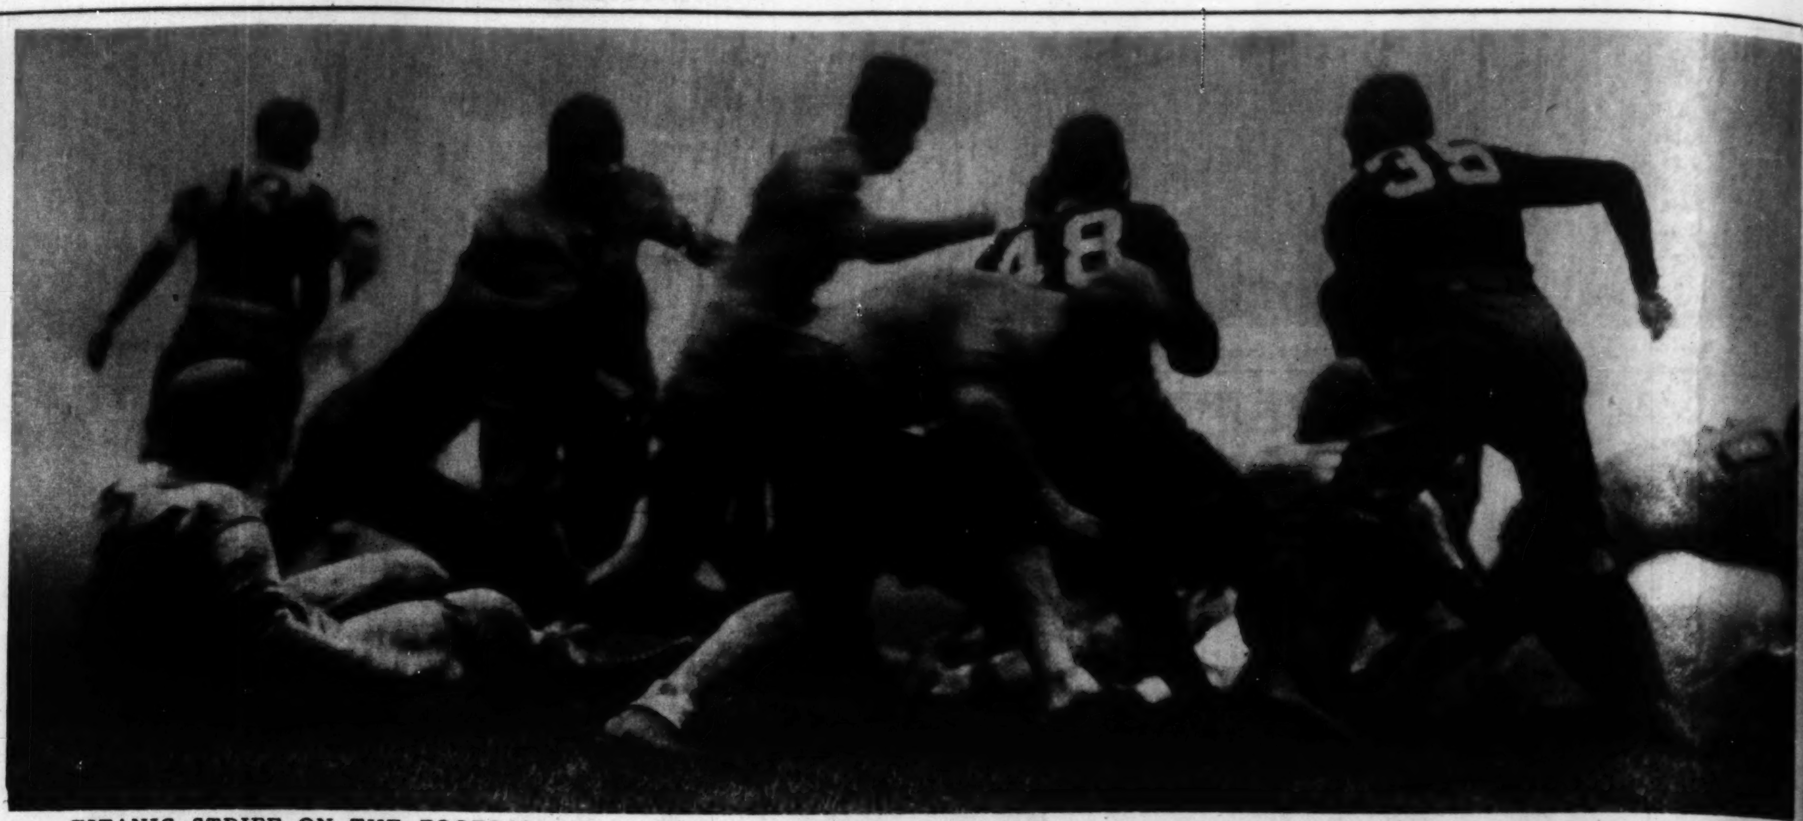
For over 75 years Father John's Medicine has been helping raise happy, husky children. Countless mothers have seen pale, listless children gain in weight and strength, cheeks glow with color, hollows fill out, bones become strong, muscles hard, and colds few and far between.

Father John's Medicine is an unequalled conditioner for growing children. It is rich in vitamins. Due to its peculiar combination of valuable ingredients, it brings the benefits of cod liver oil in exactly the right amount and in the form best adapted to a child's needs. Each tiny globule of oil is so finely broken up and is in such perfect suspension that it is easily and quickly assimilated by even the most delicate stomach. It is a simple food medicine and contains no drugs, no alcohol. It could not possibly harm even an infant.

If your child catches cold easily, is under-weight, has poor appetite, or is recovering from a sick spell, Father John's Medicine will help promote strength and vigor. Even a half-sick, irritable child takes it gladly because it tastes good. Over 184 hospitals and institutions use it regularly. Any druggist will supply you.

FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE



TITANIC STRIFE ON THE FOOTBALL HEIGHTS—Through gray fog on the turf of Dyche stadium young giants present a personification of struggle as Northwestern university, crushing Wisconsin in a 20 to 7 battle, batters its way to at least half of the Big Ten title (see the sports section for Michigan's comparative standing). Purple stalwarts here open a hole in the Badger line for Russell, Northwestern's big full back.

STOPPING A BULLDOG'S RUSH—Von Koten of Drake, leader in the early rush against Notre Dame which later was crushed in a 28 to 7 triumph for the Ramblers, is halted by an overwhelming defense.

REMEMBER 'WAY BACK WHEN spangled harness glistened on high stepping coach horses at the first International Live Stock exposition in 1900? MERICAN HEROES

JOHN STARK, who, according to the famous tradition, vowed that he would take the enemy in the battle of Bennington or that Molly Stark would sleep a widow that night. Clifford Raymond tells the story of his valorous deeds on the editorial page of today's Tribune.

WHEN THE BRIDGES ARE UP—Five of them were open and the sixth was just opening as the amateur photographer, who had "watched for four and a half years" for such a chance, with proper conditions of light, snapped the scene with her kodak from the eleventh floor of the London Guarantee building. And meanwhile traffic waited everywhere along the river. (Photo by Anita B. McConnell.)

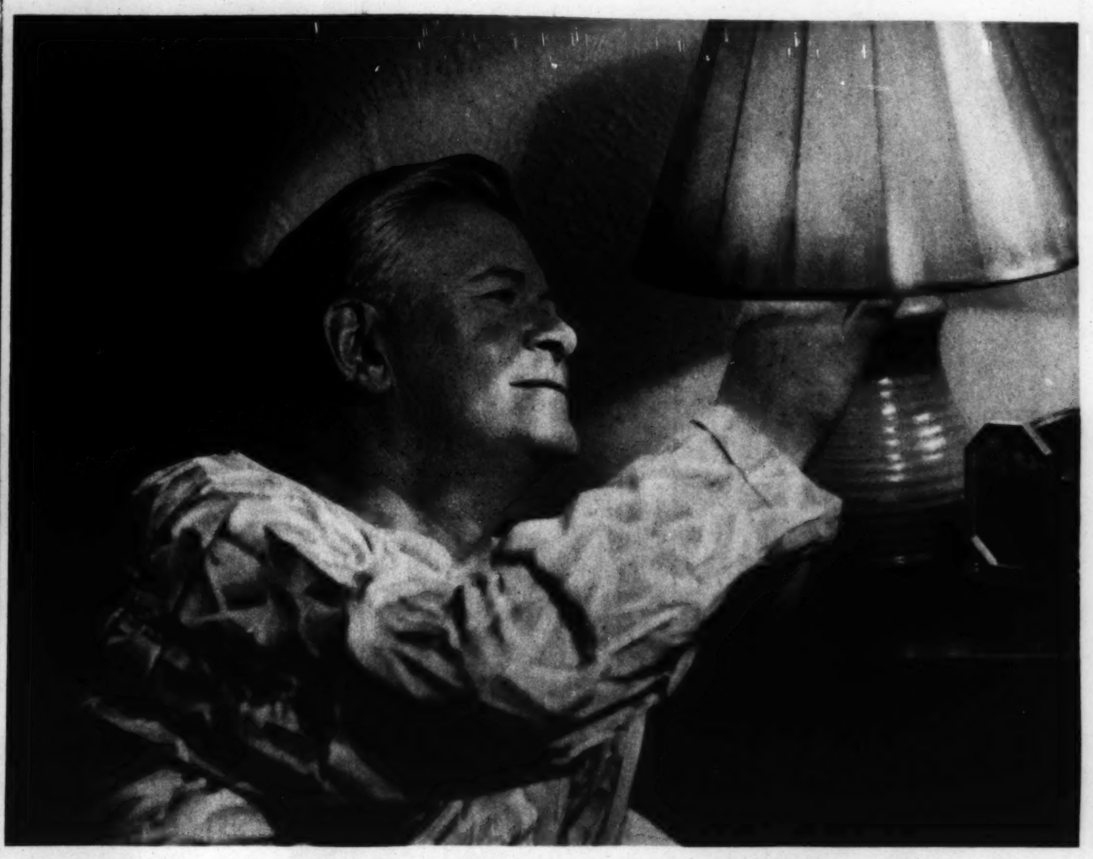
How to Get 8 Hours Sleep Without Drugs



A New Discovery That Gives You 8 Hours of Sleep—the Kind of Sleep That Brings Teeming Energy All Next Day

NOW there's a drugless way to get instant sleep. Sound, natural sleep, so all the next day you teem with new energy and "pep." You look and feel like a different person—fresh, clear-eyed, buoyant all the day long.

On doctors' advice, millions employ this new way. For it is as free of drugs as the bread you eat or the milk you drink. And does far more than simply induce sleep! This delicious food-drink actually rebuilds your wasted tissues while you sleep.

What It Is

It is called Ovaltine; a scientific food-concentrate developed in Switzerland by a scientist of world-fame. You take it in a cup of warm milk at bedtime; a super-delicious drink.

First, it induces sleep. You get sound, natural sleep a few minutes after taking it.

Then, while you sleep, its peculiar dietetic properties resupply your system with the energy lost the previous, active day. For it contains practically EVERY building element necessary to energy. And thus provides not only sleep, but the kind of sleep that rebuilds and rejuvenates!

You can take it night after night and not only not form a habit, as with drugs—but actually build up your health! So you teem with energy every day.

Do you wonder then, that people are flocking to its use? New to America, Ovaltine is being recommended by over 20,000 doctors. Used over 30 years in Europe, its use has spread to over 54 different nations. It marks one of the most important scientific findings of its time.

Try It Tonight

Doctors urge it not only for sleeplessness, but for all nervous and rundown conditions. They recommend it, too, for nervous, underweight children. Thousands of busy people take it during the day to relieve fatigue and restore vitality. Widely different from powdered, sugary, chocolate, malt or cocoa "mixtures," its scientific standing is unquestioned.

A few weeks' use will make an amazing difference in the way you feel. Your whole appearance will show the result of restful sleep and vitality restored this natural way.

Believe or not what people claim for Ovaltine—but try it. Try it without delay. Start tonight. Just 'phone your druggist or grocer now—ask for a can of Ovaltine. 750S

IMPORTANT NOTICE
Many people have asked us, "Does Ovaltine contain any drugs?" It is such a wonderful "night-cap" they feel it "simply must" contain something in the nature of a drug. In short, it works so well they sometimes "wonder" about it. So we wish to go on record here in public print, that Ovaltine has never at any time contained any sleep-producing drug of any kind whatsoever. It is made entirely from food and nothing but food. The government would not permit us to make such a statement in public print unless it could be proved beyond a doubt.

LUXURY CAR

Words are inadequate to describe this 7 passenger All Weather Touring Car (convertible into Sedan Limousine) mounted on an extra long 150 inch 1930 Lincoln chassis. LATEST STYLES PLACE EMPHASIS ON CONTRASTS

Evening coats, like this Poiret velvet coat of rose red, often don't wear fur this season. The dress is white satin trimmed with velvet bound eyelet embroidery.

Third, Maggy Rouff makes this cape coat of pale blue ottoman and trims it with wide bands of Russian sable. The cape may be worn draped around the neck like a collar.

Last, Worth gives the evening cape a new aspect by making it double. There is an inner, longer straight cape of green and gold moire and an outer, fuller cape of black velvet.

Extremes Meet to Create New Winter Modes

Long Coats, Short Jackets Equally Smart.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—A survey of the evening wraps that are smart this winter establishes the fact that this branch of fashions is certainly indulging in extremes. The longest and most voluminous evening coats and the shortest of evening jackets are an outstanding example. The biggest and most extravagant sleeves adorn the wrap to be worn after dark. The slimmest waist lines achieve a record of merely eighteen inches of circumference on certain evening coats.

Sable is back in style, so that the superlative of most expensive fur may be applied to this department of chic. Side by side with wraps of such priceless pelts are simple, furless coats of humble velveteen that are quite as fashionable, thank you. Embroidered evening wraps look fresh and charming after hibernating in oblivion these many winters. Redingotes come out under electric light to take their place among extreme novelties for the evening, and Molyneux's revolutionary evening wraps that are flared in tiers from mother hubbard yokes give quite another silhouette just as novel and equally dans la note.

Chanel's evening capes, which reach almost to the ankles, and Patou's dolmans are two new types of wraps that everybody is talking about and that are being much worn in Paris. Lelong's longish evening jackets that are cut something like a Prince Albert coat are still another kind of evening wrap that is right in the style swim. These extremely varied fashions are cut from almost every kind of material: velvet, velveteen, silk, brocade, lamé, satin, wool, and, of course, fur, and then more fur.

Fur evening coats, capes, and capelets are too numerous to catalog. Ermine in its pristine snowiness, or black or gray is just as beloved as ever by luxurious ladies who can afford to indulge in the latest fashion fancies. It is made up in coats of every length from boleros and capelets to cloaks that trail to the floor in back. Sable evening wraps, or short capes are favorites and sealskin makes some of the smartest of the shorter evening cloaks. Mink is worn by women of the grand chic, too. Augustabernard's chiffon velvet evening coats that are cut like a princess frock, and are instep length all around but without an inch of fur to trim them are as fashionable as the most precious wrap of sable.

For the woman who wants to be smart and has to be economical the evening wrap of velveteen unadorned with other trimming than its own soft surface is the best choice. It may be made into a long, double breasted redingote, a cape, or a rather long jacket that is fitted or allowed to hang loose from the shoulders. Color is important to such wraps—very important—and some rich shade is advisable. Red in a wine shade makes a beautiful evening coat, particularly to wear with white evening frocks. Indelible ink blue or purple are two other colors that are exquisite in velveteen and for the evening wrap. These shades are just as practical as black and are far more effective, even in a limited wardrobe. If your evening frocks are black, the white evening coat is a stunning complement, but remember, it requires a lot of cleaning.

Two evening wraps are a fine thing to have, if you cannot achieve a fur wrap. A short jacket, draped in like a blouse at the waistline, and a long coat to wear over it will keep you warm and make your evening frock appropriate for a large number of occasions. They should be made of the same stuff, and in the same color, if they are to give the best service to the woman of moderate means.

Paris makes no attempt to match the evening wrap to the frock with which it is worn. In fact, the wildest of contrasts are often seen. This doesn't mean that coats which match the evening frocks aren't smart. They are. It means, simply, that you don't have to bother about matching if you do not want to do so. It is, however, dangerous to mix colors of evening wrap and dress indiscriminately. Such mixtures will only be smart when a color expert does them, and even then they are apt to become too conspicuous.

A good contrast rule is to combine a bright and a soft color, or a bright shade with black or white. Two pastel shades aren't so good for the rank and file of women. They're too pretty, and not exciting enough for this jazzy life of ours. Such a combination as bright purple and turquoise blue, on the other hand, is apt to drown out the character of the wearer.

Beautiful and wearable is the color combination of the Poiret evening ensemble shown in one of our sketches today. The dress is made of white satin and the coat is rose red silk velvet. Worn with a flower to match the coat at the décolleté, this makes a sufficiently bright color scheme for the woman who craves life in her sartorial hues. The dress of this Poiret ensemble has a longish basque waist that is fitted closely in the waistline region, and it is trimmed with circles of eyelet embroidery bound with white velvet.

The skirt is circular in cut, just escapes the floor all around, and is also trimmed with velvet bound eyelets. The coat is one of those fashionable furless wraps that Paris approves this winter. It is trimmed with plaited velvet bands set in at the collar, cuffs and above the hem.

The Maggy Rouff evening coat shown is very grand and at the same time not too expensive looking to be in good taste. This coat is princess in line, and cutaway at the bottom in front. It actually trails in back, and flares there, too, from the knees. This flare is emphasized by the wide band of sable that makes the hem.

The circular cape that reaches to the waist in back and only below the shoulders in front is also made of sable, and it may be pulled up around the neck and worn like a draped

Here's Way to Develop Those Modish Curves

By Antoinette Donnelly.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—In the current figure demands you are going to need your slender ankles as much as ever, your stream-line hip and your definitely marked waistline—but more than these, you are going to want a bust line that is developed enough to give that much vaunted woman turn to a slender silhouette.

No need to remark on the passing of the flat chested beauty, if she ever could have been called one. Her passing is now ancient history. But how, if one is by nature or by habit of holding oneself a poor figure of a woman in the section of the anatomy referred to, is she going to get a rounded bust line and a well developed one?

Of course the heavy bust line is not wanted any more than heavy hips and legs. But those we will have to attend to another day. Today we want to set on the right track those girls who are anemic and extremely thin and whose chests are flat or hollow, for theirs is the style that cannot afford to have any devotees this season.

On the slab figure with no rounded contours the floor length dresses look anything but attractive. The figure is accentuated to a grotesque degree. The only way one can get proportion inside the new style of frock is in the development of the bust and a certain amount of plumping up all over, which is generally needed in flat chested figures.

Look for the Cause.

First we must offer the trite reminder that excessive leanness is often due to a physical disorder of one kind or another, or to a mental condition. Just the other day I ran across a woman who had lost forty pounds after a tragic happening in her family. Two members were killed in a motor accident and a third was dangerously ill for months. The one in the party who escaped hurt miraculously is the one who lost weight excessively as a result of grief and worry over the surviving sister. But it shows what a mental state will do to flesh.

Curves are lost to human forms frequently from living in a high pitched state of excitement continuously—whether on pleasure bent, or in the pursuit of bread winning. So a caution here to the young women who are disposed to dance the winter through after strenuous days of toil is not amiss. If they want to put on weight they must compromise with pleasure until they pad the bones a bit anyway.

The nervous tension from which people generally are suffering more at this trying moment of financial depression than in years is something that has to be battled against with nothing more mysterious in the way of beauty aid than good common sense and a readjusted form of living. Better mental discipline is urged.

Rest periods, enforced ones, if necessary, help greatly in mental control. Long hours of sleep are recommended for every underweight one, no matter what her ailment. A day in bed every two weeks can be arranged and if one is in earnest about weight we suggest the day off from duty and pleasure to get the nerves in condition.

Excessive smoking and dancing in smoked filled rooms and the drinking and high nervous pressure of some of our current entertainment had better be foregone if one is truly interested in a lovely feminine line of figure.

Regulate the Diet.

Eating, of course, is the way to put on weight. But do not increase the number of meals. The regulation three a day may stand. But at those three meals you are asked to eat unhurriedly, unexcitedly, chew the food well and eat well balanced foodstuffs.

Gorging on fats, sugars, and starches is not a wise weight gaining principle. You thins need fruits and vegetables more than the fats, because your digestion needs help. Fresh salads twice a day, with a goodly portion of olive oil in the dressing is what you want. Eat at least one fresh vegetable along with your potato—the latter baked and generously buttered and eaten skin and all, at least three times a week—and butter your fresh vegetable generously.

Plenty of Exercise.

Now, for exercise. If you can keep up swimming at a gym or club pool, do it. For bust development the swimming movements and the deep breaths are what the doctor ordered exactly. If you cannot arrange that diversion then believe that you can develop your chest by deep breathing work.

Take your morning twenty before the open window, but let that not be considered enough. Every time you put your nose outdoors—and put it out if it won't go willingly—say to yourself: "Here's where I do a little chest developing." Then breathe and breathe.

Smart Items Gleaned from Life in Paris

The last word in sweaters is the La Coste sweater introduced at Biarritz. It's fine jersey, skin-tight, with short sleeves and a small turnover collar. The ladies wear it in navy blue and add a white skirt and a red carnation on the shoulder.

Everybody in the smart world at Biarritz in September carried Chanel's new paper fans, designed by Jean Cocteau. They have black celluloid sticks and one side is bright lacquered paper, while the other is gold or silver moire.

Bright red slippers, cut so low at sides and back that they look like mules, were worn by many fashionable women with white or black evening frocks at Biarritz.

SEVEN DAYS' LEAVE

By Kathleen McLaughlin

In Which Serious and Amusing News of the Moment Is Chronicled.

SUNDAY, Nov. 16.—Devoted to reflection and dejection. This columnist business, we begin to suspect, isn't all it's cracked up to be For one thing, a loud silence greeted our bow in this section under the caption "Point to Point." It couldn't have been the contents of the column, of course. So we reluctantly conceded that perhaps it wasn't as devastating a title as we had secretly believed, and with more of trepidation, but with high hopes, we sneak in again this week under a different banner. Now, as Ted Lewis once remarked, "Is everybody happy?"

Moreover, it has not failed to reach our ears that a New York columnist is about to be shot because "he knows too much." And our pedal extremities are growing chilly with the dawning conviction that it might just happen that a Chicago columnist would suffer the same fate because she knows too little. Whatever you can do to mitigate such a sad state of affairs will be vastly appreciated.

MONDAY, Nov. 17.—Betty Eckersall was telling how, when her horse fell with her recently, she seemed to have indications of internal injuries in addition to painful bruises, so her physician decided to take some X-rays to make certain that she wasn't badly damaged.

"So they gave me a lot of gooey white paste to swallow," she related to a group of girls, "and then took the pictures."

TUESDAY, Nov. 18.—Last week's mention of the Art Institute's conducted tour through Spain brings in this additional anecdote. That free and untrammeled spirit, Dudley Crafts Watson of the institute, took very seriously his duties as guard and guide of the expedition. At one point the party was proceeding by bus along a country road when a torrential rain broke upon them. Progress was next to impossible because of the difficulty of seeing ahead.

Director Watson promptly stripped off his shoes and sox, rolled up his trousers to the knees, and went squishing and sloshing down the road in the rain, beckoning the bus driver to follow him. The admiring huzzas of his flock at this noble gesture, however, changed into shrieks of laughter as Miss Bertha Alling of Lake Forest, barefooted and with her skirts high enough to clear the mud, hopped out to help him hunt. Some genius in the crowd, equipped with a motion picture camera, had the presence of mind to start grinding away and the film has had any number of encores when shown to their friends here in town.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 19.—Productive of nothing more diverting than the assurance of a visiting New Yorker that salesmen are getting to be the most independent persons in the world, this year—taking orders from nobody. Sounds like an echo from somewhere.

THURSDAY, Nov. 20.—Mrs. Edward L. Spears talks on writing and writers, revealing a curious combination of the conversational mannerisms of both Americans and English in her way of speaking—the effect of ten years residence in London. On the covers of her successful novels, she is Mary Borden. On the other hand, there is Henry Channon, now visiting here after five years in "Lunnon." His friends declare his accent is so British they have difficulty understanding all he says and he wears an umbrella hooked over one arm in true London fashion. He has recently published his first book.

FRIDAY, Nov. 21.—Women have always been credited with the ability to make the most of the means at hand. Three year old Joan Hill, who lives at 21 East Elm street, has learned the trick early. Joan and her younger sister, Carol, known as "Cicy," scampered up to the front door of their parents, the Boyd Hills, after a walk and neither tyke could manage to reach the bell, for all their tiptoeing efforts. Then Joan had an inspiration.

"Cicy, you've got a big stomach," she told the younger. "You lie down and let me stand on you and I'll reach it. Mother'll give you some candy."

Cicy was sweetly accommodating. So Joan carefully mounted the recumbent form of little sister, triumphantly rang the bell, and when admitted, informed her mother about the pledge of the candy. Cicy collected.

SATURDAY, Nov. 22.—A brother physician relates the story of the late Dr. Will Ellis, who died at Passavant hospital last June. Years ago, when Ashland boulevard was a fashionable center and the district a thriving one, Dr. Ellis was one of the ablest and most popular general practitioners in Chicago. As time went on the social world looked with favor upon other neighborhoods and began deserting the street for the near north side, the South Shore Country club district, Lake Forest, and other suburbs. But Dr. Ellis, clinging tenaciously to the idea that Ashland boulevard was destined to return to its former high estate, resisted all efforts of his friends to persuade him to retain his patronage by moving his office from the corner of Lake and Ashland. His practice diminished year by year, despite the high regard in which he was held by others of his profession and he came, finally, to the end of his life with only a remnant of his former flourishing patronage.

And just to avoid ending on a pensive note, we might add a commentary on the present hard times. One "affairs of the heart" editor used a letter in her column recently in which a moderately wealthy widower asked her advice as to whether he should seek a bride through a matrimonial agency. So many women called on her and wrote to her seeking the name and address of this eligible male that it was necessary for her secretary to have a form letter drawn up to take care of the flood of inquiries. It never has happened before, she said.

Shops Are Full of Lovely Gifts for Christmas

By Helen Bartlett.

WE hope you took heed last week of our timid reminder that Christmas is fast approaching and that there is much shopping to be done. For our part, we have continued on our observing way and this morning can report more pleasant surprises and novel suggestions in the way of gifts.

We explored another large State street store and found therein a gift bureau that can supply almost every need—from shoes to ships to sealing wax, as the ditty says.

But before we reveal our findings we want to issue two warnings: NOW is the time to arrange for your monogrammed gifts. The shops simply cannot take last minute orders and if, on your shopping list, you have such things as monogrammed handkerchiefs, linens and lingerie, don't lose a day in placing your orders. Also, NOW is the time to have photographs taken, if you plan to give any as gifts.

Great Variety of Gifts.

The gift suggestions we unearthed in this store with the help of the capable young woman who presides over its gift headquarters are almost bewildering in variety. As we remarked last week, prices seem lower than in the past, but quality and ingenuity haven't suffered in the least.

We will list first those things which would be acceptable to any person who is a householder, or who likes and can use household accessories, or novelties. Here are a few of the things we noted and like:

Something new in bridge sets, a black cloth with either gold or silver design and border and cards to match, $2.75.

Real, honest-to-goodness door stops in bronze. The new touch about them is that they can fit in the palm of your hand, are no more than two and a half inches high and come in cunning figures. The price is $1.

Small Standard dictionaries, in large type, with print covers, $2.50.

Small ash trays and match boxes of pewter that are especially meant for the dining table. If smoking in your household is indulged in during or after meals a set of these in front of each diner or between two is decorative and sensible. They're only $2 the set.

The latest in guest towels—finger towels, not much larger than cocktail napkins and extremely dainty. A good thought when you reach the "what can I get that woman" stage. The price begins at forty cents and does not work up far.

A gay little dinner gong in gold plate and enamel, $4.50.

A chromium cocktail set with a tray and four cups, the latter with gold plate lining. Modern design, at $7.50.

The Newest Card Table.

The newest thing in card tables is the table that can be a permanent piece in your rooms. They look like the occasional tables every room must have, but they can be instantly utilized for bridge. There are several kinds, plain maple or walnut in good line; tilt top ones with painted tops that can also serve as fire screens, and gayly painted ones for porch or sunroom.

All kinds of bridge accessories and parlor games, backgammon, roulette, and poker sets.

And not original but very nice are the boxes of boxes of matches, if you get what we mean. Print tops for the boxes and gay heads for the matches, at prices ranging from 50 cents up.

Presents for Men.

In this store we found some particularly good gifts for men, for which we were duly grateful. There's no denying the fact that selecting things for them is usually difficult if we would get away from the annual avalanche of shirts, socks, and ties.

We noted particularly: Smart things in lighters, especially the realistic airplane model with a heavy base. It's about three inches high and it's claimed it always works: $4.50.

A little gadget for repairs at the nineteenth hole—a golf ball that opens at the press of a button, revealing four little gold plated cups. The price is $5.50.

And working on the theory that only the men in the house want to get down to cases on the temperature, this store offers the newest thing in thermometers, made of pottery and with a dial instead of visible mercury, priced at $2.50.

An accurate, revolving globe in a wooden case is priced at $3.75. This is an excellent gift for a student or any map minded friend.

For motorists: A convex rear view mirror in two sizes, $5 and $12.50; a gear shift lock with radium dials, instead of the usual knob, for any make of car, $10; a rear view mirror with a clock in it, $10.

There is, too, a black cigaret case which fits on the car's dashboard. It's a trick—push a button and a lighted cigaret pops out—but it's also useful and costs but $8.50.

For the Ladies.

Gifts for women are not such a terrific problem at the worst and in this

Colonial Menu Is Still Guide for Feast Day

Turkey Continues the Piece de Resistance.

By Meta Given.

THANKSGIVING day was originated for those colonists who had toiled, hoped, harvested, and who could rejoice and be thankful. It is still for people who work hard for what they possess. Its celebration is a symbol combining gratitude, pleasant social intercourse, and merry feasting. If you belong to that great class of labor loving, God fearing Americans, Thanksgiving is for you! It is a time for families to assemble, for relatives to come, for friends who are far away from home to be invited.

This year, as we make plans for our Thanksgiving meal, it might be well for us to keep in mind that first feast prepared by those early colonial women. Let us not forget that they cooked what was plentifully at hand. If we will only do this, the day will mean much more to us and we will be satisfied with having done our best.

The early colonists had turkey, but it was wild, of course. The woods were full of them. History relates that Gov. Bradford sent men out to search for game for the whole colony and for the friendly Indians. In just a short time they were able to return with an abundance of wild fowl, most of which were turkeys. Geese, ducks, and fish made up the rest of the bagged game. Cornbread and cake, pumpkin pie, popcorn, and wild grapes, we are told, were also prepared for that occasion.

Choosing the Turkey.

The present day feast continues to be one of tradition. It includes certain viands which were served at that original feast, and to depart from them too radically spoils the day for some of us. Turkey is the traditional bird for Thanksgiving. Its size and the quality of the flesh well adapts it to the occasion. I know turkey seems expensive compared to other fowl. But, considering the amount of real meat in proportion to the bone, it is an economical purchase.

No fowl has such a quantity of fine white meat, so desirable for beautiful plate service. If you aren't convinced that this is true, the next time you go shopping for fowl, compare the bulging breast, the large legs, thighs, and wings of the turkey with other fowls. Then compare the price. The turkey is a luxurious appearing bird, and for this reason we sometimes think the price, too, is luxurious, and so we fail to measure its real food value.

Here is something else to consider. Turkey has a way of lasting. Whatever the size of the bird one buys, there is usually quite a little left. And it can reappear without apologies in à la king, in hash, and soup. Did you ever hear of any one scorning these dishes? I never did.

How large should turkey be to be good? That is a practical question just at this time when we all want turkey. And how small may it be? That is the solemn question when we must watch our pennies. A six pound one will do and a ten pound one will do. What I am trying to say is, "Do your best." Buy the biggest one you can afford. A reasonable amount invested in turkey will be money well spent.

Stuffing Is Real Food.

And once you've bought your turkey consider the next important thing—the stuffing and ingredients, which should be purchased when the bird is bought. Now, I know there are some culinary artists who are opposed to the use of stuffing. These individuals, I am aware, are considered epicures. Their argument is that stuffing conflicts with the sweet flavor and delicate aroma of the bird. That may be true. But I'm thinking this: what the fowl loses the stuffing gains. Have these objectors ever tasted good stuffing? I don't mean the dry, crumbly dressing that almost any one would push to the side of the plate, but I mean the real flavory, moist stuffing spooned out of the deep chambers of the fowl. To my mind stuffing is the one great accompaniment of any baked fowl. With a small turkey one is always bothered about what part one will have—white meat or dark, a drumstick or a pinion—but with the stuffing, it is always the same. The only question is, how much dare one eat. That sage odor with, perhaps, just a suggestion of an onion, does stimulate the appetite. And whether stale bread or chestnuts or pork sausage or oysters with fresh eggs are used the stuffing is real food that a few people fail to enjoy.

Turkey straight without stuffing! No, indeed. I'm against any reform in roast turkeys. Our grandmothers gave it a sanctity of which it would be downright sacrilege to rob it. I doubt if it will ever be improved upon.

Directions for Cooking.

The turkey should be purchased on Tuesday, singed, washed and dried, then put in the refrigerator to chill. On Wednesday afternoon it should be stuffed. Then it may be trussed and placed in a cold place. Before the stuffing is put in at least half the salt used for seasoning should be rubbed on the inside. Unless part of the salt is put on the inside the salt used on the outside will not be sufficient to give the desirable flavor.

For a two o'clock dinner the turkey will need to go into the oven between nine and ten o'clock. Allow 20 minutes to the pound. This will require at least 4 hours for a 12 pound turkey. Rub the entire surface of the turkey with salt, then with butter and start in a hot oven [550 degrees Fahrenheit]. Continue cooking at this temperature for twenty minutes or until the surface is well browned. Cover closely with four or five thicknesses of cheese cloth that have first been wrung out of hot water and then well saturated with fat—lard or bacon drippings. Reduce the heat to 375 degrees Fahrenheit. Baste every 15 minutes with ¼ cup butter melted and blended with 1 cup hot water. My pet method of cooking turkey is in a roasting pan without a lid. I get a finish this way that I am never able to obtain in a covered pan.

Carrots or potatoes should be fitted over the end of the legs to pre-

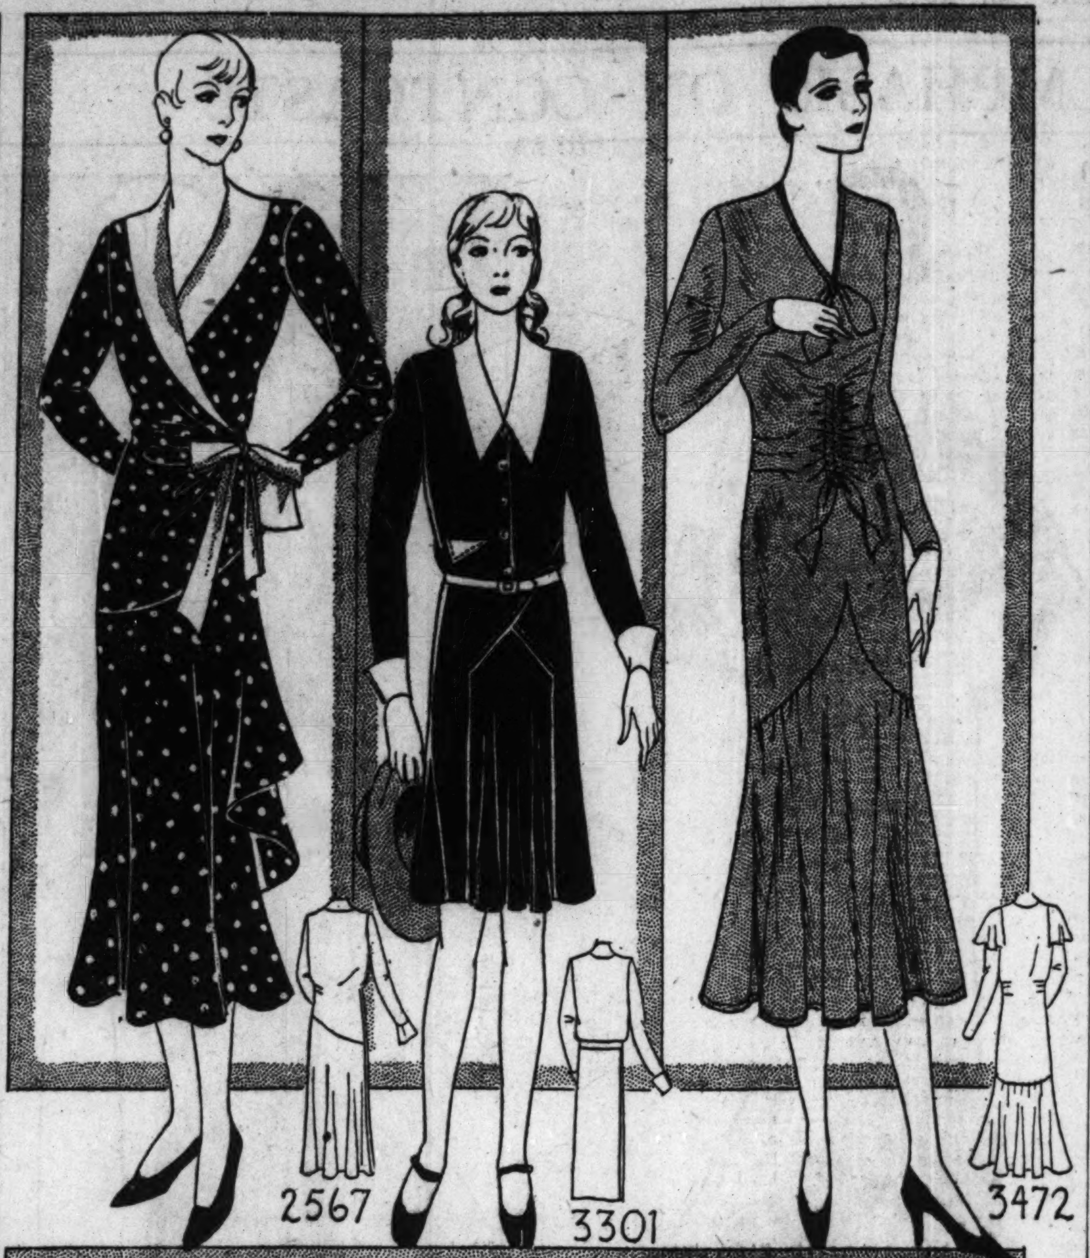
Patterns and How to Use Them

By Clotilde



2567—Woman's dress. Sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4⅛ yards of 39 inch material with 1⅛ yards of 39 inch contrasting.

3301—Girl's dress. Sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 35 inch material with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

3472—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material with 5 yards of binding.

Slenderizing Details Make These Frocks Particularly Suitable for the Woman or Girl with a Figure Above the Average.

THE dress made by pattern No. 2567 is one that will be particularly becoming to women with full figures. The bodice and skirt are cut separately and then joined. The bodice closes in surplice fashion, with a swathed treatment across the front that minimizes the breadth through the hips, while the new circular draped skirt in wrapped arrangement gives an effect of slenderness.

You will have to be careful about laying the pattern pieces on the material, so as not to cut two parts for the same side. Don't cut any part out until you have made certain that each piece is right.

Then baste the bodice together and try on. A chart that is included with the pattern shown clearly how the skirt is put together. The skirt seams should be finished, then the bottom of the bodice turned under an even seam's width. The upper edge of the skirt is laid under the bodice edge, pinned at intervals, basted — edges overcast together — then two rows of stitching put in, at the edge and ¼ inch above. The skirt edge should be finished with a narrow bias binding, and this binding also extends up the left side where the drapery is.

The collar and cuffs can be made double, and if they are made so, stitch in a narrow seam on the wrong side, turn right side out and press; then pin the center of the collar to the center back of the neck, then at the ends before basting. Holding the neck of the dress toward you, baste one edge of a bias binding over the collar seam and stitch on the machine. Remove the bastings and, turning the opposite edge of the binding over the seam, hem down by hand invisibly. The cuffs may be done in the same way.

If they are made on a single thickness the edges may be bound or picoted.

A rusty brown wool crêpe with coin dots in a lighter shade will make up well, as will any of the heavier dress crêpes, wool jersey or a wool challis.

The inset piece is put in the front of the skirt and the skirt edges above it are turned in, carefully basted in place and stitched. The the bodice should be fitted, the shoulder seams basted, and the under arm seams basted from the under arm to the skirt edge. The fronts of the bodice are hemmed and the bottom edges lapped before, joining to the skirt across the front.

Navy blue wool crêpe, with a vivid red crêpe used for contrast, will be chic for classroom or general daytime wear, while tweed, covert cloth, wool jersey, and wool challis prints make up attractively.

A transparent velvet in the popular tête de negre shade will make up beautifully in pattern No. 3472. If you are accustomed to making your own frocks you should be able to handle the velvet. Of course, great care must be used in having the pieces all go one way—having the nap go up—and silk thread should be used for basting. When you are ready for stitching try a couple of scraps first, to make sure the tension is correct and that you know just how to hold the material.

Inverted tucks across the front and back at the waistline and the front shirring give a beautifully molded waistline and aid in giving that slender appearance. This slender looking model is lengthened by a circular flounce that provides ample fullness at the hem—making the skirt for size 36 measure about 2¾ yards there. The V neck is bound and both neck and shirring are finished with small self-fabric bows. The sleeves may be long or short, the pattern for both kinds being included in the pattern pieces.

vent charring. At the end of the cooking period these may be removed. Never stick a fork into the bird in but one place to see if it is done. One wants the flesh juicy. When the bird is done it should be a rich golden brown and as shiny as if it had been varnished. The skin should be soft and tender and when cut into should flow with juice. Many people think turkey is a dry meat while it is really juicy if cooked correctly. There are usually enough drippings left in the pan to make delicious brown gravy.

The Thanksgiving bird need not be a turkey. There were other birds served at the original feast. A duck, chicken, or goose, with the other traditional foods wil. not offend the most loyal descendant of the Mayflower. So we are suggesting a menu with duck as the main pièce de résistance and still a third with pork chops.

Roast Turkey.

Singe the bird by holding over a gas flame, turning it slowly. Then cut off the head, push down the skin around the neck cutting off the neck close to the body. Loosen the tendons, those flat bonelike slivers that are in the legs. Place the point of a metal skewer under the tendons, pull one out at a time. Cut off the feet at the knee joint. Remove the pin feathers, using a pair of large tweezers or a strawberry huller. Remove the oil bag from the tail, then wash thoroughly on inside and out. Dry carefully so as not to break the skin. Rub the inside of the bird with salt. A 12 poung turkey will require about 2 tablespoons salt for the inside. Place in the refrigerator to chill over night. Stuff the following day with the following or any other desired stuffing:

Stuffing.

2 tablespoons bacon drippings.
¼ onion, chopped fine.
½ cup celery root, diced.
Liver, gizzard, and heart, chopped fine.
2 eggs.
1 teaspoon salt.
⅛ teaspoon pepper.

Soak the bread crumbs in cold water and squeeze dry. Melt the drippings in a pan. Add onion and celery root, then the chopped liver, gizzard, heart, and fry about ten minutes. Then add the bread and other ingredients. Stuff into the prepared turkey. Sew or skewer the opening, then truss the bird and return to the refrigerator. Thanksgiving day, sprinkle salt over the bird and rub it into the skin. Rub butter over the entire surface. Place in a roasting pan and roast uncovered in a hot oven [550 degrees F.] for twenty minutes. Cover with four or five thicknesses of cheese cloth, reduce the temperature to 375 degrees F. and allow twenty minutes for each pound, figuring the weight of the bird after it is cleaned and dressed. Baste frequently with hot water and butter. A 12 pound turkey will serve eight or nine people generously.

Roast Duck.

Stuff and truss the duck. Dredge with flour, salt, and pepper and place in a roasting pan, preferably on a rack. A few slices of salt pork may be laid over the breast for flavor, even though duck is itself fat. Have the oven hot [500 degrees F.] for the first twenty minutes, then reduce to 375 degrees F. Cover the pan or cook uncovered, basting frequently with one-half cup water. Cook until tender. Twenty to twenty-five minutes to the pound will be required for a full grown duck, fifteen minutes for a young one to be served rare. An old duck will be more tender if it is steamed for an hour before roasting.

Duck should be young, from six months to a year old. The flexibility of the windpipe is one of the best tests for age. In a young bird the windpipe can be moved easily and will break when pressed between the fingers. The breast bone of a young duck is soft.

Carving the turkey at the table should be a most pleasant task for either host or hostess.

Ducks weigh from four to six pounds, but have less meat in proportion to their weight than do chicken and turkey. All the meat is dark. It is well to allow one duck for every four people to be served.

The skin of a duck is oily and likely to be dirty and it should be scrubbed well with warm water and baking soda, or even soap. After the scrubbing, rinse the bird carefully inside and out and wipe dry with a cloth.

Pork Chop Supreme.

Choose pork chops one inch thick with tenderloin. Bone them and tie so as to form round pieces of meat. Season with salt and pepper. Place in a greased baking pan and bake in a hot oven, browning first on one side, then on the other, basting frequently. Remove to heated platter. Cut broad slices from green peppers, removing seeds. Parboil slightly in water containing a pinch of soda. Place a pepper ring on each chop and fill with shredded onion which has been fried in a little butter.

Potatoes Parisienne.

Season three cups mashed potatoes with butter, cream, chopped chives, one teaspoon lemon juice, one teaspoon powdered sugar, salt, and pepper. Heap roughly on a dish and sprinkle with paprika.

Molded Jellied Apples.

Pare nine firm, tart apples. Remove core and seeds, being careful not to break the apples. Slice crosswise into a sirup made of one and one-half cups sugar, two cups water, and one-fourth pound red cinnamon candy, cooking until the candy is dissolved. Drop in apples a few at a time and let cook until tender, being careful not to let fall apart. Carefully remove apples to a round mold and fill centers with blanched almonds. Boil sirup down so there is just enough to barely cover the apples. Dissolve one tablespoon gelatin which has been softened in cold water in hot sirup and pour over apples. Place on ice. Yield: Nine servings.

Pepper Hash.

Put through a food chopper the following:

One large head of cabbage.
One dozen green peppers [sweet].
One red pepper.
One dozen onions.

Add scant one-half cup of salt. Let drain in muslin bag until next morning. Then add two and one-half cups of sugar, two tablespoons mustard seed, two tablespoons of celery seed, and vinegar to cover. Dissolve the sugar in some of the vinegar. Be sure to remove seeds from the peppers and put in pint jars.

This is good with any kind of meats and is easy to make, as it requires no boiling. A. E.

Jellied Chicken.

Boil chicken and remove the bones. Cut into small pieces. Let it simmer 1½ hours with one sliced onion, a big leaf, a little celery, and parsley. Strain and return to fire. There should be three cups of liquid. Pour over 1½ package of gelatin that has soaked one hour in a cup of cold water. Put jelly in a wet mold. Needlework

By Clotilde

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework, write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

UTILITY bags made of moire, satin, or taffeta make charming gifts and are equally desirable for one's own use.

These bags are unlined and are simple to make. Cut two pieces—measuring about twelve by fifteen inches. Round the lower corners. If you are not accustomed to cutting without a pattern, practice on a smooth piece of paper, maybe you will want to make the measurements slightly different.

On one side of the bag stamp some delicate outline—flowers or perhaps a conventional design—and embroider, using several colors. Measure entirely around the edges of the bag, and buy enough inch and one-half wide ribbon to make a gathered ruffle. This ruffle is set between the edges of the bag and stitched in place when you stitch the sides together.

If you have sufficient bag material you can make the ruffle of that—maybe using a selvage edge instead of putting in a hem. If you buy ribbon, a contrasting color will look well.

The bag is straight across the top and turned in to make an inch and a half wide heading. A couple of nine inch pieces of quarter inch wide whalebone or anything similar should be run in a casing made by putting in a row of stitching three-eighths of an inch above where the hems are stitched. Fasten the ends and sew ribbon loops to hang the bag up by. Sew one of those tiny flower strips that may be bought by the yard over the casing.

Hang the bag at one side of your mirror and you will find it useful for many things.

THE BIGGEST LIAR

Who was the biggest liar you ever knew, and what yarn did he tell? If you want to see him in print, address Biggest Liar editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

Speaks Up for His Watch.

Recently I met an old traveling salesman whom I consider the biggest liar that I know. He has a watch which he claims has a rubber case that was bought in South America. No matter how often it is dropped it will not break. According to him, a few weeks ago he was looking out of the thirty-fifth story of the Woolworth building and his watch fell out of his pocket to the sidewalk. Goodbye to the watch, thought he, but to his surprise it bounced up again to the thirty-fifth story and he grabbed it with his hands to find no harm had been done. A. B.

Touch of Conviction.

Our neighbor, in speaking of a heavy windstorm which had done considerable damage to buildings and trees, noticed the questioning glances of his listeners after telling an impossible feat of the wind and continued: "I saw the same wind take my rain barrel, blow it right over my house and set it down on the other side without spilling a drop." A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown

Sally Suggests That You Help the Needy Turn This Approaching Feast Day into a Real Day of Thanks.

AS Thanksgiving draws near most of us feel the desire to perform some act of charity. Those who enjoy fairly comfortable circumstances and haven't felt too heavily the general depression are able to help some needy person or family in a more substantial way than can those who are not so well off themselves. But we all feel that we should do something to help relieve conditions and each bit does help.

Suffering, poverty, and anxiety are more deeply felt now than ever before and there is greater need for all the assistance we can get. Heads of families are out of work, and have been for months. Children are hungry; they haven't enough warm clothing, and many families do not have sufficient fuel.

If you are planning to celebrate Thanksgiving day in the customary manner, don't you think it would be a good idea to give one of these less fortunate people something to be thankful for, too?

Perhaps you know of a job for one of them, or it may be that you can create work for some jobless person. Perhaps you'd like to have some extra cleaning or painting done so that your house will be at its best for this festive occasion.

Perhaps you'd like to be able to provide clothing for some poor family in honor of the feast day, or see that they have sufficient warm blankets or enough fuel.

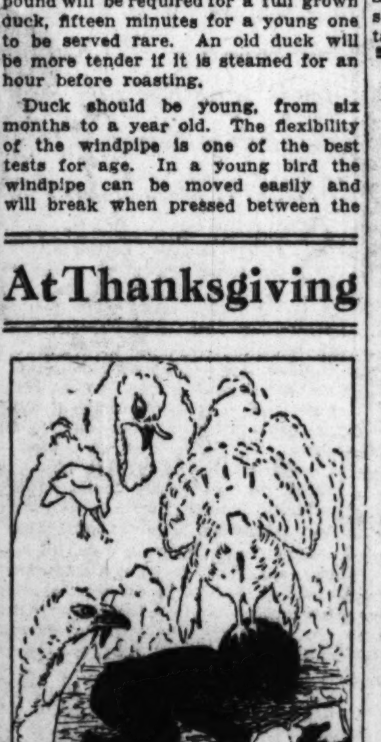
Yes, if you want to make it a real Thanksgiving day for every one you'll follow my suggestion and see that it's a glorious occasion for some needy person. If you'll write me telling what you'd like to give, I'll give you the name of a person who will appreciate your generosity.

Child Wants Violin.

"I wonder if one of your readers has a violin suitable for a 10 year old child? This little girl has a chance to take some lessons, but the father has been out of work for months and there is no money for a violin. She would be so grateful. N. G."

It does seem a pity that this child must give up the opportunity of having violin lessons just because she can't buy an instrument. Perhaps your child has graduated to the adult size and will give his small violin to another aspiring musician.

At Thanksgiving



By Eleanor Jewett.

On Thanksgiving night
Young Robert James Brown
Got up out of bed
In his flannel nightgown.

I found him asleep,
His face wet with tears—
He'd been cutting out pictures
Of turkeys, poor dears.

Their bodies were here,
And their heads over there;
Each bird had been sliced
Beyond thought of repair.

O, Robert! Young Robert!
Now tell what you do?
I'm making Thanksgiving,
The same as you.

Thanksgiving Tables

—By Edith Weigle—

What more appropriate than early American for Thanksgiving?

With the Great American Feast Day Just Around the Corner, Dining Room Furniture Steps Into the Limelight.

WITH Thanksgiving just around the corner, the busy housewife turns her thoughts to juicy, roasted turkeys, cranberry sauce of deep crimson, golden squashes, and green brussels sprouts, sweet potatoes and all the other delicious things that the mere mention of the holiday envisions. Who will ever forget the description of the groaning board in Washington Irving's "Legend of Sleepy Hollow," of the super abundance of good things that we always associate with Thanksgiving?

I had never realized how much it is our own day until a Canadian remarked to me last summer: "What is your Thanksgiving like in the States? You make quite a holiday of it, if I'm not mistaken, and even close the schools." Indeed we do and we also get out all the best linen and all the "fixings" and invite indigestion at every turn.

Today I've chosen pictures of dining room furniture as being appropriate to the occasion. And, of course, if you want to be absolutely correct, you'll celebrate Thanksgiving on a table of early American maple similar to that shown in one of the two smaller photographs. This table is set for four, but by extending its leaves, refectory style, at either end it may be made large enough to accommodate all your "sisters and their cousins and their aunts."

Charming refectory benches are used, with ladder back chairs for the head and foot of the table, but if you prefer chairs all around it is a simple matter to change them. And if you want to continue the first Thanksgiving spirit you'll use pewter plates or old luster ones, and old glass goblets with a pewter bowl of fruit for the centerpiece.

Against the rear wall is seen one of those hospitable looking open cupboards for which the Pennsylvania Dutch were famous and which make ideal places to display Americana. This side of the room is paneled in knotty pine of uneven widths, while the right side is papered. Lighting fixtures are given a pewter finish.

French Provincial furniture, suitable for the little house or apartment, is seen in the other small photograph. Like the early American, this style makes for cheery informality. The curves of the cabriole legs of the table and the scalloped apron on the cupboard and the rounded backs of the chairs lend grace to any room. Beech is the wood employed and the fittings are brass. You'll be enthusiastic about French Provincial furniture as soon as you come to know it.

This stately suite, with its restful reserve and flowing contours, exemplifies the sudden breaking away from the stiff, florid school of William and Mary. The cabriole leg, the flowing outline are fully developed in the Queen Anne period and are tendencies which survived in England for a full half century, until Robert Adam brought about the classic revival and the straight line.

The rich brown tone of the French walnut used finds contrast in borders of lighter sap wood, while inlaid lines give further relief. The china cabinet is particularly dignified, both in form and detail. A feature is the beautifully designed broken pediment, with its moldings accenting the arc. There is a carved central finial in the shape of a classic torch. The hooded doors of walnut sap wood are exquisite examples of marvelous cabinet making and glazing, each light being separate, necessitating the most delicate work in correctly fitting the squares of glass. Both upper and lower portions have fluted corner posts; the drawer section is given a block front, and the feet are rectangular.

The dining table follows the serpentine feeling of the sideboard; the four legs are typical cabrioles and are connected by molded stretchers to four central legs, which combine turnings and bun feet with a tapered octagonal section. The table should stand directly on the floor, without casters, however.

The chairs incorporate the outstanding features of the larger pieces. They are simple with the simplicity of true elegance and are beautifully upholstered. Notice the plain walls, which set off the furniture to fine advantage, and the plain, solid color rug.

Extremes Meet to Create New Winter Modes

shawl collar. There are no sleeves. Long gloves, either brown, wine red, or black are to be worn over the arms. The coat is made of light blue ottoman silk that contrasts charmingly to the brown of the sable.

One of the newest and most thrilling evening coats Paris has seen in many a long season is the Vionnet evening coat shown in another sketch. Please observe the superslim waistline that contrasts with the bulk above and the rounded hipline below. Looks like Lillian Russell in her prime, doesnt' it? The upper part of this coat is made of white ermine, worked in a miraculous way that only Vionnet can achieve. The flaring, standing shawl collar is flattering to any kind of face and neck, and will bear remembering.

One of Worth's original and elegant evening ensembles is shown on another figure. The evening wrap is a real creation and one that is excellent for the tall and slender girl. This wrap is composed of two capes. The inner one is made of green and gold moire, is cut on straight lines and is cut away at the bottotm. Over this Worth places a shorter, fuller cape, cut circular and banded with black ermine. The wearer is supposed to hold this outer cape in the manner shown in the sketch.

The collar is a long scarf. The frock is made of black velvet to match the cape, with a hem of green and gold moire, topped with embroidery.

French enamel powder jars in pastel shades are $3.95.

Little round purse mirrors, the heartbreaking (at least for uncertain complexions), magnifying kind with tweezers in the handle, $6.50.

Dress, hat, and fur bags in pastel shades of material that is like glazed chintz. The dress bag is $1.50 and others are slightly less. A set would make an excellent gift.

Hat racks, slipper trees, and hangers in pastel shades of velvet are from 50 cents to $1.50.

Boudoir cushions come in all sizes, colors, and prices. There are some in moire, rather small but useful, priced at two for $2.50.

Umbrellas, particularly those of silk in any color, with a pearl knob handle and ferrule, $10.

Folding cameras in color with modernistic designs on the front are $15.

A leather envelope purse of no more than usual size has, of all things, a collapsible umbrella along its length at the bottom. The umbrella, when opened, is full size, but telescopes down to the size of the purse. It's $40.

Next week we'll list still more gifts. And in the meantime, don't forget what we say about monogramming and photographs and, if you possibly can, do your shopping early.

Marriage and Divorce

—By Doris Blake—

Couples Separate, but the Good Old Institution of Matrimony Has a Way of Going On.

FOR each 6.1 marriages performed during 1929 one marriage was dissolved. The year before, 1928, the ratio was one divorce to every six marriages. The divorce increase last year may make a toothsome morsel for the Gloom family and their neighbors, the Cynics. But——

There's a side to last year's marriage story that may be a bit disturbing to the pessimists. There are statistical facts and figures that indicate that you simply cannot down an institution that has been doing business as long as marriage, with mere divorce figures. Marriages recorded for 1929 show one of the largest yearly increases numerically and in percentage in some time. There were more than fifty thousand marriages over the 1928 total, or an increase of 4.2 per cent, if you are interested in fine percentages.

We will hear, no doubt, during the coming year more about the increasing number of divorces in our midst than we will about the spurt of popularity given to marriage. Disasters, of course, make better copy and better sermons. Folk who get married and work away at the rules of the game with every intention of seeing it through do not make sensational news, as you know. But this writer, at least, thinks that more good might ensue in married circles and in planning to be married circles were the happier side of the marriage picture presented more often. And surely no brighter picture could be offered than the fact that couples in numbers of 1,232,559 [to give exact figures for 1929 marriages] are not influenced by the constantly mounting matrimonial mishaps recorded in divorce courts.

Old and Powerful Lure.

Whether you view it as an indication of how hope does spring eternal in the human breast, or whether you see in the increasing popularity of marriage a vindication of matrimony's claim to the perfect relationship between two beings of opposite sex, you must admit it has something to lure people into its fold and that something cannot be made entirely of romantic young hopes and dreams. You've even got to admit that there isn't anything better to offer our young people or being young people, they'd be off courting the new.

The marriage victory of 1929 strikes a particularly triumphant note in an era fraught with companionate experiments and a freedom of views not heretofore recorded in history, perhaps.

Not that the 1929 .1 per cent increase in divorce is to be viewed with indifference. It has meaning, too, as well as has the marriage increase showing. It represents an element in our nation in whom intolerance is a marked trait. It represents, also, difficult economic conditions. It represents, in many instances, sheer selfishness. And it is a blight on the good old institution of marriage, no matter how optimistically you may be inclined. But divorce is not the hopelessly destructive thing it was once expected to become when marriage is adopted by over a million couples who certainly have eyes to see and ears to hear the spectacle of the marriage defeated.

Nevada, Arizona Leaders.

In the statistical report from which our figures on marriage and divorce for 1929 were taken, we learn that Nevada was the leader among the states both in marriage and divorce. We expected it to be the leader in divorce numbers, naturally, with the divorce capital located there. However, the high marriage record for Nevada was not due entirely to immediate remarriage of those restless souls who sought release in the Reno divorce court one day and signed up on a matrimonial contract the next. The strict marriage laws of California, making a Gretna Green out of its neighbor state, are really what raised the marriage status in Nevada to its imposing position of leader. Arizona, with the second highest marriage record, profited by California's rigid laws, also.

It would be interesting to have the actual figures on those remarrying immediately after their divorce, or as soon as the law permitted. Also, it would be enlightening to know how many were divorced with full intent of taking on a new mate at once. From each lot there surely would be a high percentage of contributors to the idea of marriage as the only livable state.

Anyway, when divorce is recognized more freely as a mere matter of exchanging one mate for another, we think it might have a better "settling" effect on those who are working away at their first. It is the idea of freedom—freedom from the responsibility of providing, from having to consider some one beside self, from the monotonous, homely little duties that go with a household—that gives divorce its lure to the married misfits. If it is recognized that this freedom is, in the parlance of the day, nothing but "plain hooey" and that remarriage is wanted immediately, which it generally is, the mate in hand might be viewed more tolerantly.

Adjustment to different temperament, compromises, duties, household or office, have to be practiced with a second mate as with a first. Maybe not the identical ones, but the union of two adults is conducted successfully only on compromises, adjustment and readjustment, and duties of one sort or another tended conscientiously. They can't be escaped if any marriage is to be made to go. In fact, duties cannot be escaped if one chooses to go on alone. Life and human contact demand certain rules of disciplinary conduct which cannot be ignored. So "freedom" is the bunk.

CHARM.

Enchantress, in chiffon and furs,
Your presence instantly confers
Deep pain on office managers.

With red rouged lips and sleek marcel
You crash a gate. You look so swell
One hates to ask—but can you spell?

He muffs your Greta Garbo wiles,
Snubs Swanson's chic, Sue Carol's smiles,
And—harps on well kept office files.

An office boss, the hard boiled brute,
Resists smart hats and dimples cute—
He hands you figures to compute.

No man to charm is ever blind,
But oft from nine to five, you'll find,
He tolerates—a show of mind.

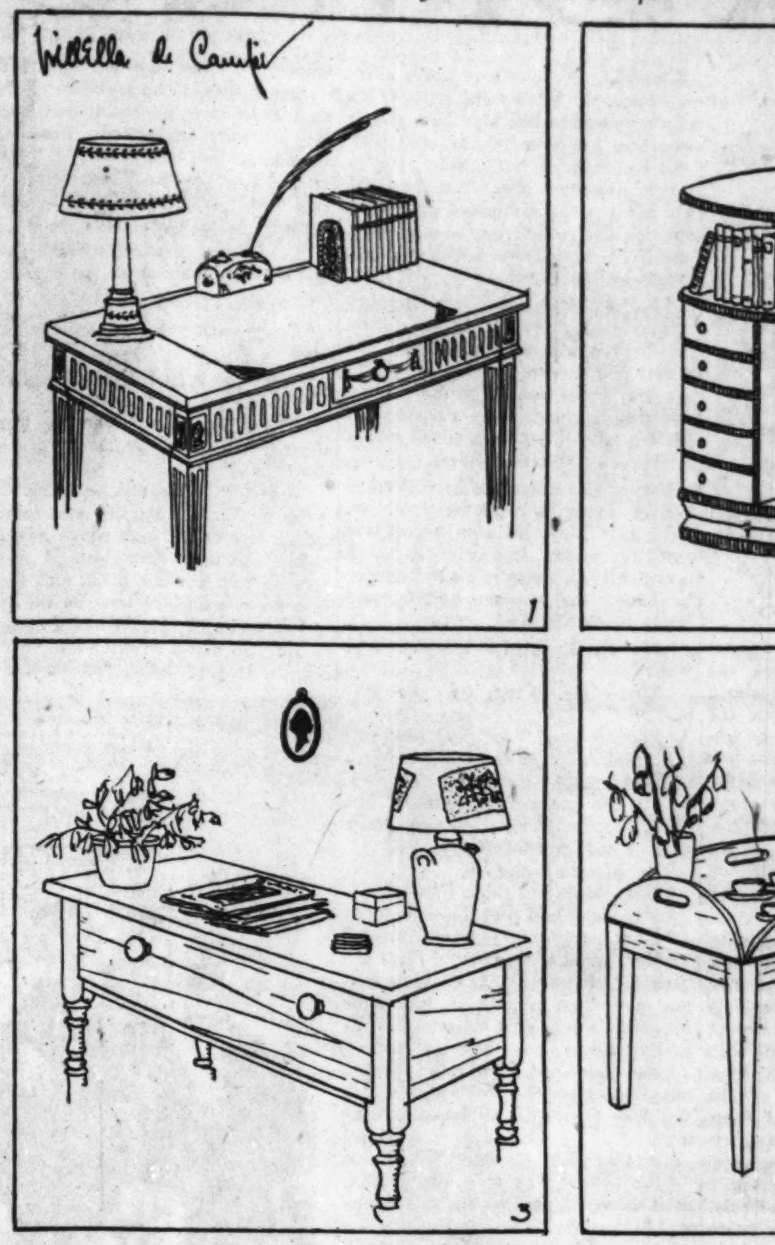
Convenient Tables

—By WillElla de Campi—



These tables are ingenious as well as decorative.

A Room Would Be Bare, Indeed, Without Places to Hold Lamps, Books, Flowers, and All the Little Incidentals that Are Always Accumulating.

WillElla de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problem pertaining to home furnishings. Address your letter to WillElla de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

DID you ever try to visualize any room in your home with all the tables taken away? With the tables missing many of the small accessories so essential to the decorative appearance and comfortable quality of the room would be utterly lost to all intents and purposes. Bowls of flowers, colorful and useful smoking sets, delightful lamps and shades, interesting little boxes, plants in their gay flower pots, all must be supported by the right kind of table. Amazing, isn't it, the difference tables can make in the pleasant composition of any room?

What a great variety of needs they can fill! Pairs of small tables, placed at each end of a sofa, besides being useful add a fine sense of good balance. Nests of tables, though an old, old story, are always practical, especially if they have glass tops which cannot be harmed by stray drops of liquid or carelessly handled cigarets. They may be had, of course, in various kinds of wood, in natural finish, to go with other pieces used in the room, or they may be lacquered in any color which might be needed to give a note of gayety.

Then there is the ubiquitous dropleaf table, always a boon to the apartment house dweller, because it takes up no room to speak of when the leaves are let down, but affords ample top surface when they are raised. Another type which may be had in many sizes, and which proves to be a godsend in more than one case, is the tip-top or tilt-top table. With its top at the vertical angle, when not actually in use, it is a lovely bit of decoration, and when needed it is always ready to hold the cocktail tray without first having to be cleared of odd boxes, lamps, or other small objects.

Tables for use beside the bed can be obtained in many different period styles. Small ones with one or two convenient drawers are most desirable, since they require little space, at the same time affording a storage place for the many little things which, if left on top of the table, invariably produce a cluttered appearance.

Ever so many of the fascinating tables shown in the furniture and specialty shops today combine one or more purposes. Several of these are pictured in the accompanying illustration. The first is a little French console table of the Louis XVI. period, which is used as a writing desk in a charming guest room. There is a long drawer in which the stationery and other appointments are kept. On top of the table there is a large desk pad of peach colored, blotting paper with old ivory tooled leather corners. A few books are held in place by matching tooled leather book ends. A Dresden inkwell and an ivory and gold table lamp with a peach colored shade complete the equipment.

Figure 2 shows a table in contemporary style which combines the uses of a table and book holder. It is made of applewood and is most decidedly useful as well as decorative. Contrasting beautifully with the wood is a dull turquoise jar of crackled pottery which is the only thing placed on top of the table. The little drawers provide a convenient resting place for cards, score pads, and the numerous little odds and ends which have a way of collecting in almost any room to the detriment of good appearance.

A reproduction of an old pine table, figure 3, is used in a novel way in a simple American room. The front of what was originally a deep drawer is hinged so that it may be dropped down to disclose a complete radio! Quite a solution for the problem of creating harmony between the modern radio and the old time atmosphere of an Early American room. The table top here is left free to hold a blue pottery lamp with a floral print shade, a few current magazines, a bowl of flowers, and a pewter smoking set.

The fourth table in the illustration is particularly appealing. It is an English butler's tray, made of mahogany and mounted on legs. It may be easily brought in with leaves up, carrying the after dinner coffee service or tea set. Then, when the leaves are let down, the generous oval allows ample space for the addition of extra cups and saucers, etc.

These are just a few of the many delightful tables which may be bought at excitingly low cost, and which fit in so admirably with our modern mode of living. A happy thought they are, too, for Christmas presents which would last through the years.

Well Learned Job.

When I was 16 I had a temporary job clerking in a general merchandise store in the town in which I lived. I was very tired at the end of the first day and all night long I dreamed that I was measuring off yard goods. When I awoke the next morning I found that I had folded up all my covers and placed them in neat piles on the floor beside my bed. A. E. C.

Morning Brought Reality.

I am employed in a grocery store. One night I dreamed I was pulling bananas from a stock when a tarantula jumped at me.

Next morning a customer asked me to fix him a lunch. While I was making the sandwiches he pulled the bananas. Suddenly he called me. I went to him and there on the stock was a large tarantula. F. R.

Runaway Son.

My oldest boy, Kenneth, a high-strung, sensitive lad, ran away from home because of conflict with his father over his musical ambitions. Heartsick with worry, we seemed unable to locate him. One night I dreamed that I saw him playing a piano before a crowd of people. I watched him and heard him and knew then that he was alive. The next day we received a wire from a friend of ours who had gone to a distant city on a business trip, saying that he had seen Kenneth the night before playing the piano in a small movie house. His father went after him and he was allowed to pursue his studies. A. T.

Told in a Dream.

When my brother left home to go on a tramping trip around the world, he told the family not to expect to hear from him until he returned. One night, after he had been gone about three years, I had a dream about him. I saw him walk up our front steps late at night when we were in bed and knock on the door for admittance. Getting no response, he lay down on the porch by the door to wait until we were up.

The next morning I went out to get the morning paper and there was my brother sound asleep in the porch swing. G. G.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

The Grand Old Man

By Paul Deresco Augsburg

A School Girl's Essay Placed in the Corner Stone of the Old Bank Helped Change the Life of an Old Man, Who Found His Happiness in That of Roger and Peg.

ROGER ERSKINE leaned against the wall of the Farmers and Merchants bank and idly jabbed at the corner stone with the back of his shoe. The date on the corner stone read 1889, and under this date was carved the name, Oliver Mills Pres. Man and building had grown old together; man and bank had prospered with the years; and now, at the age of eighty-four, Oliver Mills was not only Lawrence City's wealthiest citizen but its most distinguished, too.

When the old man went riding of an afternoon he looked upon his city as a landed lord would look upon his vast ancestral acres. These busy townsfolk were his tenants and he their benignant squire. He liked to stop and talk with them, to give them large though vague advice, to feel their admiration. "Ollie Mills is a great old fellow," "There goes the biggest man in Lawrence City" . . . he could almost hear them say these things. Sometimes he dropped in unannounced at a chamber of commerce luncheon; they never failed to give him a hand and call on him for a speech.

Today was the old man's birthday Roger would interview him for the Daily Journal and write pretty close to a column. It had become an annual custom. Last year, in writing his interview, he coined the phrase "grand old man of Vernal hill," which had caught the public's fancy. Now toastmasters introduced him by it, while the old man beamed with pleasure.

Roger, leaning against the bank, scowled at the passing traffic. Far from his thoughts were Oliver Mills and the things he would soon be writing. Roger pondered a tougher theme: how would he ever earn enough to marry the old man's grandchild?

Not that Peggie Tilden was actually his grandchild. Her mother, before wedding Mills' son, had been a Cleveland divorcee. Lawrence City was a little shocked at first, but when one is as beautiful as the former Mrs. Tilden one crushes disapproval. With Mrs. Robert Law, the old man's only daughter, she moved in a stratum above, apart, at the top of the social levels And above, apart—in theory at least—moved the child of her other marriage.

"I'll have to rob the bank," thought Roger.

A horn sounded. It was Jimmie Kurtz, the Journal's camera man, in his venerable old style flivver. Even Jimmie with his flivver was more prosperous than Roger; and here Peggie could ride in a limousine if she ever grew tired of her sports car!

He glared at the bank as they drove away, and his eyes caught the date on the stone. Eighteen eighty-nine; he'd mention it to old man Mills and get him reminiscent. Roger's mother had said something once about taking part in the laying of that stone. He'd remind Mr. Mills about it.

Up Vernal hill chugged the ancient car, its breath getting short and labored. Roger diagnosed its grunts and glanced at the old man's mansion, still above them on the heights.

"Quarter says you don't make it."

"The hell I won't."

"My quarter says no."

"All right; your quarter's a liar."

Dump or Joint?

A hundred yards farther, ten minutes later, Jimmie handed over two dimes and a nickel and they finished the climb afoot.

Through the impressive ornamental gate, up a path which led past well kept flowers, they trudged towards the wide veranda.

"Some dump," said the photographer.

"Pardon you for being ignorant. That's a joint."

"How'd you like to live in a joint like that?"

"I intend to some day."

"On what the Journal's paying you!"

"No, O no." Roger halted and placed a hand on the other's shoulder. "Jimmie, old man, I don't mind letting you in on a little secret. I know it's safe with you. I'm going to sneak up on an oyster and slip him a pearl when he's fast asleep. Then I'll hang around till he has children. That, Jimmie, is biology. You'd be surprised what you can do with biology. Many people are."

He gripped Jimmie's arm and spoke in an earnest whisper: "Now in a moment you'll be face to face with Oliver Mills. He'll tell you he got up at six o'clock and shaved himself and then took a brisk walk before breakfast Don't let that frighten you. His bite is seldom fatal."

But first they came face to face with Mrs. Law, his daughter. She stiffened when she saw Roger and her voice was coldly brittle:

"The man from the Inquirer already has been here. It's a pity you couldn't have come at the same time."

But that wasn't why she was so ungracious. Roger knew, and his face was smileless. It was all because his mother had been Nellie Searl before her marriage—Nellie Searl, whose father was a mystery; Nellie Searl, the child of scandal. No one ever spoke about it now; and there were only a few righteous women like Mrs. Law, women who had grown up in Lawrence City, who had snubbed Nellie Searl as a little girl, that gave it any thought at all For many years had passed since then, and Nellie's mother was in her grave, and Nellie herself was a widow with a grown legitimate son.

"Morgan, tell Mr. Oliver that two employés of the Jorunal wish to see him." Only Mrs. Law would have had a butler in a town like Lawrence City—a prosperous, rapidly growing town, but still neighborly and simple. "If he is not too tired," she added with a disapproving glance at Roger.

Oliver Mills would not have thanked her for saying he might be tired. He came in briskly, his step almost too patently agile. Immaculately clad, neatly razored, a rose in his buttonhole, he hailed the reporter heartily and firmly shook his hand.

"My boy, I'm glad to see you. And you."

"That's Mr. Kurtz, our photographer."

"Photographer!" he cried innocently. "Now what in the world can you young scamps be up to?"

"I'll bet you couldn't guess! Mr. Mills, you're looking younger than ever. I want to congratulate you."

The old man beamed.

"How old do you think I am?"

"Not a day past seventy—if that."

"I am eighty-four years old today."

"No!" grinned Roger. "I don't believe it." It was all like the first routine moves in a game of checkers. Now Mr. Mills would give his rules of longevity. Roger knew them by heart:

"Eat plain food, drink lots of water, smoke not more than two cigars a day, and face God with a blameless conscience."

"So that's how it's done!"

"It's worked with me. Young man, what time did you get up this morning?"

"Eight o'clock," said Roger, and old man Mills looked delighted.

"I was up at six! I shaved myself and had a fine walk before breakfast."

"Gosh!" gasped Roger. It was still like a game of checkers.

Through the Years.

They took his picture out on the lawn, and then, as was his custom, he began interviewing the reporter.

"Young man, how old are you?"

"Twenty-four."

"How much money do you earn annually?"

"Well, fifty-two times forty—about two thousand dollars roughly."

The old man nodded and shot his next question: "How much have you got in the bank?"

Roger fished the pass book out of his pocket.

"Sixty-two dollars and thirty-six cents. But that doesn't include twenty-five cents I just cleared speculating in motors. A hundred per cent clean up on a quick investment. That's not bad, Mr. Mills."

"When I was your age," the old man announced, "I earned twenty-two dollars a week and had over nine hundred dollars drawing interest. Let me give you some real poetry to remember: Court Lady Liberty with might and with main, and your devotion will prove your gain. You know what I mean by Lady Liberty? She's stamped on all the dollars."

"O!"

"A very fruitful lady."

"Like my pearl bearing oyster," Roger winked at Jimmie.

"What's that you say?"

"She's very lovely and fruitful."

He mentioned the corner stone to Mr. Mills. His mother was a schoolgirl when that corner stone was laid. She had written the prize winning essay which was placed inside it. Perhaps Mr. Mills recalled the girl. He had offered to start a savings account with a five dollar deposit for the best essay on "Thrift," and Roger's mother had won.

"Her name was Nellie Searl," he finished defiantly.

"Yes, I remember little Nellie." Old man Mills spoke so kindly that Roger's heart felt warm to him. "I can see her as plainly, all in her Sunday best and her little pigtails. Everybody was grown up except Nellie, but she stood there like a sweet little angel and placed her essay in the box. A very good essay, too; it showed lots of worth while thought."

The old man's eyes were far away, looking back across the fading years.

"That was a long time ago—forty years come September. Soon we'll be tearing the old building down and putting up another. Lawrence City's growing fast. We thought the old building would last a hundred years when we planned it. A hundred years—and here it's already too small for our town! We're going to tear it down and put up another."

"When?"

"In a few months now. It's well nigh settled."

Roger, dropping his easy manner, became alert and active. What was to have been a platitudinous interview with a patronizing old man had suddenly developed some front page news. A bank building to match the city's progress! That was a piece for his paper.

Eight cylinders murmured in perfect rhythm, polished wire spokes glistened in the sunlight, and with a sort of flourish a green and yellow sports car halted in the driveway. Roger's heart beat faster at sight of the girl who drove it. It always beat faster at sight of Peggie. Sometimes just to see her hurt him, she seemed so much like a dream from which he would suddenly, rudely be wakened.

Now he crossed the lawn to the gleaming sports car.

"Take me down to the Journal, Peg? I want to catch an edition."

"Sure will, darling."

"The photographer's flivver's got T. B."

"I'm glad it has. I was hoping I'd see you."

The car sped around the loop of the driveway. Roger saw old man Mills staring at them in amazement. It was the first he knew, no doubt, that Roger and she were acquainted. From the veranda another face stood out. "Margaret!" called a scandalized voice, but Peggie only smiled and waved to her step-aunt, Mrs. Law.

They passed the ornamental gates and went smoothly down the hill.

"Love me?" said the girl.

"Crazy about you," came the fervent answer.

"Were you a good boy last night?"

"Studied till two."

"That's too late. Mamma won't stand for it. Her boy must have his sleep."

"Peggie!" he groaned, watching that lovely profile. He had the same frantic feeling of a dream from which he'd be rudely wakened. Sometimes it came between him and his book, and cases in law would dissolve away in the fear of losing Peggie. How could a nymph so alive, so quick, wait for him to become a lawyer? Some day she'd flit and he woudn't blame her. Some day she'd meet a man worth while.

She slapped his wrist.

"Bad boy must sleep. Now, no one's looking." Impulsively she turned her face to his. "O, Roger! . . . Wipe off the lipstick, honey."

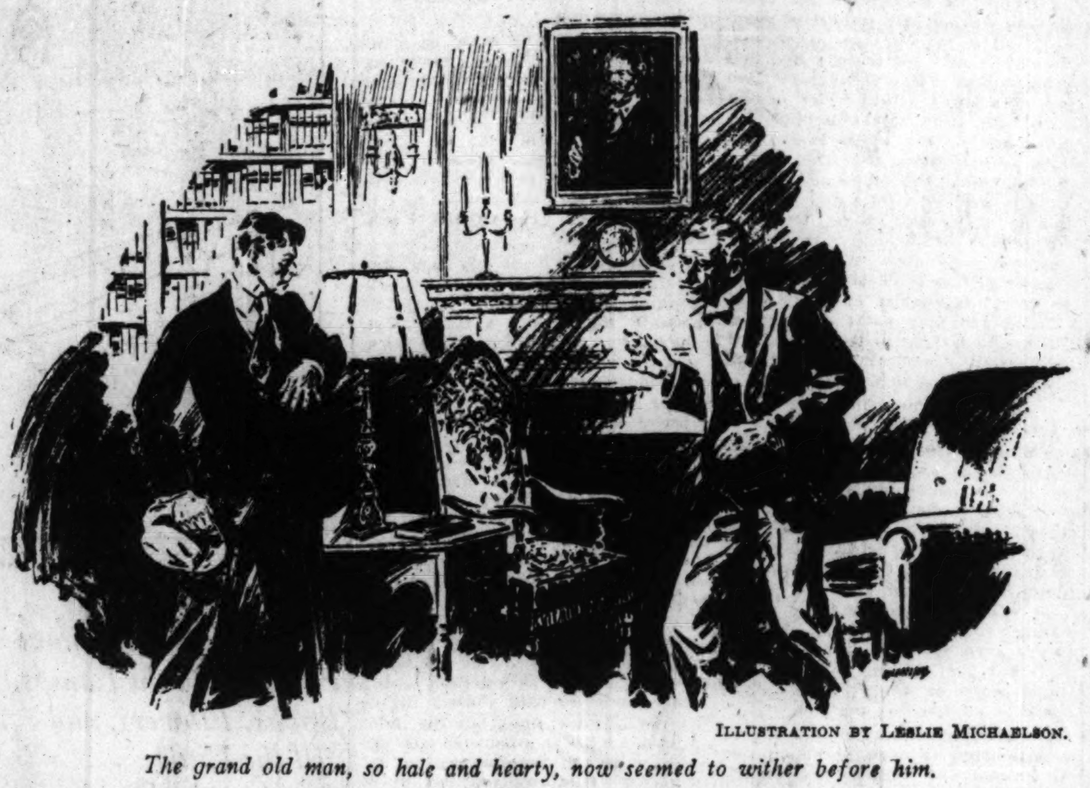

ILLUSTRATION BY LESLIE MICHAELSON.

A Landmark's Passing.

It was not long before wreckers were busy at their task of razing the building. Whenever a Mills said "Move!" things moved. Lawrence City had thrived under their propulsion; Mills drive and Mills money had started a score of industries in motion.

The old bank went down like a beaten bully. At last the corner stone stood alone and they paused to remove its contents. Here was a time for ceremony befitting a landmark's passing. Things had been sealed in that corner stone and lain there for forty years. Forty years! Wars had raged and panics been weathered; folks had died and carefree children grown to middle age; the horse had gone and through the skies flew other birds than feathered . . . and while all this happened those things had lain there like Rip Van Winkle sleeping.

When Oliver Mills arrived in his limousine a sizable crowd was gathered at the corner. Workmen stood about, rather ill at ease with so many silk hats around them. The mayor was there, the president of the chamber of commerce, the Mills' pastor, smiling and bland, and all the old man's family.

Nor was the gathering devoid of ladies. The sight of their bright wraps and colorful hats gladdened his eyes, for he liked what he called the fair sex They always made a fuss over him—especially the young ones. The prettiest girls in town would kiss him and say he was their boy friend!

But one woman he looked for in vain in that throng.

"Where's Nellie Erskine? She ought to be here. She put an essay in this corner stone—just a little girl in pigtails. Hello, there, my boy. Where is your mother?"

"She couldn't make it, Mr. Mills. She's not feeling well. She's awfully sorry."

Again Roger felt a warmth of liking for old man Mills. He was so obviously disappointed.

"O, that's too bad, too bad. I wanted to have her here more than any one. She was just a little girl then, with her Sunday best clothes and her pretty little smile. I've never forgotten the way she looked. Just like a little picture."

Quiet settled down on the waiting crowd. The Mills' pastor was saying a prayer. That had been the old man's idea, for he was a faithful churchman. Like birth and death, the corner stone had been sealed with a prayer, and now, with the old structure's passing, a benediction was fitting.

At last a workman broke the cement and the copper box was opened.

"Mr. Mayor, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen, my fellow citizens"—the old man paused, looking around at all those faces, complacently aware of the fine figure he was cutting—"forty years ago I stood on this spot, a man still in the prime of life, not the withered old husk you see today." A rose smiled in his button hole, his bearing was firm, and his voice, he knew, suggested healthy vigor. "Remembering that man, my friends, I almost shudder at the thought of what this copper box will show you. For my photograph is in there; I was president of the bank then, and my photograph was put in that box and has been there all these many years while I grew old and feeble. In a minute you'll be gazing at it. And from that photograph you'll look at me and say to yourselves, 'Poor decrepit old codger, why doesn't he keep himself hidden away? Why does he——'"

"No, no!" laughed the mayor, and most of those present burst into smiling applause.

Oliver Mills looked happy.

"Well, I have done my best to keep fit and active. And to all you youngsters, my good friend the mayor included, I might take this opportunity of passing on my secret for a long and healthy life: Eat plain food, my children, drink lots of water, smoke not more than two cigars a day, face God with a blameless conscience—and live to be a hundred!"

The first object to be drawn from the copper box was the list of bank employés. Oliver Mills looked dolorous as he called the roll and only a few responded. So many had passed, as he solemnly said, to their just reward in heaven.

But he brightened when his picture appeared, and his eyes sparkled at sight of the golden coins with the mint stamp of 'eighty-nine. The photograph was a stern, fearful likeness, after the forbidding fashion of that day. The eyes had tried to outstare the camera; he had a full and rather aggressive mustache, and his mouth was pressed in a firm, straight line, as though he had just said "eight per cent" and would never yield a fraction.

The photograph went from hand to hand.

"Not a bad looking fellow in those days," said old man Mills.

"Hello! here's Nellie's essay." He glanced around for Roger. "My boy, you'll have to read your mother's essay for her. It was a fine piece of work; it's well worth hearing."

From the Copper Box.

Roger felt queer as he glanced at the inscription on the envelope: "An Essay on Thrift," by Nellie Searl, in the large, careful hand of a schoolgirl. Nellie Searl, the child of scandal, whose father was a question. What a fair, square fellow old Mills had been to honor her in that stiff-necked day when folks were so self-righteous! How his own daughter, the present Mrs. Law, must have squirmed at such a recognition of the pretty, despised little Searl girl! How she was bridling even now!

He broke the seal and took out the essay.

"'People should be very thrifty,'" he began, "'or else there will not be anything to eat on a rainy day. It is a sin to waste——'"

Some of the spectators were standing on a pile of old lumber, and suddenly it had shifted. During the interruption Roger glanced through the rest of the piece. He looked at the last page and was startled to see that the writing had changed. There was a name at the bottom: Martha Searl. Why, that had been his grandmother! He skimmed the page:

> When this comes to light, I and all others living today will have passed into the hereafter. What I say will harm no one . . . and this my confession . . . My beloved little daughter's father, whom I have always loved . . . This is the truth, in God's name.

> MARTHA SEARL.

His jaw tightened; he could feel his temples throbbing. The confusion had subsided and they were waiting for him to continue. "'It is a sin to waste your substance,'" he went on in a voice which he thought must sound strained and awkward.

When he had finished the essay he thrust it, with the written confession, into his inside pocket. Old man Mills was taking the occasion to offer some supplementary remarks on thrift:

"A dime in the bank is worth two in the purse."

"Yes—to the banker!" Roger snapped and heard a gasp from the crowd.

He pushed his way out and hurried to the Journal office where he wrote a perfunctory account about the opening of the cornerstone. Later Peggie telephoned; what had come over him anyway, to make him speak so sharply? He gave an evasive answer. She wanted him to go riding with her after dinner—"and then you can get to your books." But he said he wasn't feeling well and asked her to excuse him.

"A Holy Hypocrite."

Shortly after eight o'clock he rang the bell on the top of Vernal hill. Walking up the hill, after leaving the carline, he had seen Mrs. Law and her husband riding down in their limousine, He was glad to have them out of the way, for they had shared the mansion with Oliver Mills ever since the death of his wife.

In the library, while he waited, Roger stared at a portrait over the mantel. He had seen it before, the old man's father, who had been a carriage maker. A harsh, stern face; those eyes, thought Roger, would have gleamed with satisfaction at the sight of witches burning for their traffic with the devil. A humorless face, but strong with purpose; his lips had just said "Ten per cent" and would not yield a fraction.

"Well, well, my boy! I'm glad to see you. I hope your mother's better."

"O yes, grandfather! Your daughter's better!"

Old man Mills just stood and stared.

"You know, I suppose, that I'm your grandson. Of course I was never presented!"

At last the old man found his voice. He cautioned him to be quiet.

"Scared somebody else will find you out! You needn't worry, Mr. Mills. I'm just as ashamed of the relationship as you are. I can see myself boasting that you are my grandfather! O no, you needn't worry."

The old man looked so confused, so stunned.

"I—I don't understand," he faltered. "How did you know? Not even Nellie— This piece of paper?" He took the confession wonderingly and felt for his reading glasses. "I can't make out the words without them. What does this say? Where did you get it?"

"It was in the corner stone with the essay. It was written by Martha Searl. Do I have to tell you who she is?"

"No," he said simply. "I knew Martha Searl better than any one." He looked his grandson straight in the eye. "She was the only woman I ever loved."

"And how! O, I don't mind your having affairs. Grandsons usually happen along when they're well over, anyway. It's an old biological custom!"

"The only woman I ever loved," old man Mills persisted. "But they wouldn't let me marry her. My father—"

Roger paid no attention.

"I just want you to know that there's one person who knows what a holy hypocrite you are. Your unofficial grandson knows. All your sanctimonious chatter!" He mimicked the old man's patronizing recital: "'Eat plain food, drink lots of water, smoke not more than two cigars a day, and face God with a blameless conscience!' Why didn't you add: 'and keep your closet door locked?' O, you're a lovely hypocrite!"

The grand old man, so hale and hearty, now seemed to wither before him.

"You don't understand, Roger. There wasn't anything we could do. Martha—Martha understood. There were so many things to consider. There was the bank and the church and my family to consider. It wouldn't do. She didn't want me to say anything. We had to keep it a secret."

"Yes, I understand. Business! 'A dime in the bank's worth two in the purse'! You might not have this fine house now or get interviewed on your birthday. You couldn't tell everybody how you face God with a blameless conscience!"

"You don't understand," the old man pleaded, and now his voice was trembling. "I always provided plenty of money. A trust fund with a bank in Chicago. Right up to the time your mother was married——"

"And your official daughter holding up her nose, just as if my mother was tainted! Pah!" He picked up his hat and strode towards the door. "Don't worry, Mr. Mills, your secret's safe all right, all right. I won't tell any one—even mother. I don't know how she feels, of course, but I'm like you: I'm particular who I acknowledge as my kin. It must be hereditary!"

"Roger——"

But he had closed the door.

Looking His Age.

As spring came around people began to notice how Oliver Mills was failing No longer was he the grand old man. the landed lord beloved of his tenants. pausing to beam benignantly upon the common people. He no longer dropped in unannounced at chamber of commerce luncheons.

He looked his age. The alacrity was gone from his step. He did not demur when the family chauffeur gave him a hand when he entered the car. He did not wear a rose on his coat or stop to chat with people.

"The old man's days are numbered and he's taking it pretty hard. Too bad. A grand old fellow, Ollie Mills."

On the wide veranda he sat in the sun, looking across the terraced lawn It was Sunday—church time—and all his life he had been an active Christian But now he no longer went to church Somehow he didn't want to.

At the gate Peggie Tilden was saying good-by to some one with whom she'd been walking. The old man's eyes were still very good, except for reading and writing. He recognized her and he rather thought that he recognized her companion. Now she came up the walk, gay as a flower in her colorful dress, even though the day was Sunday He brightened with pleasure as she approached.

"Hello, darling."

"So you've come to pay the old man a visit."

"I came to hold hands with you. This weather makes me that way."

"You look mighty pretty, Margaret."

She bent down and kissed him, and old man Mills was pleased and pitifully grateful.

"Wasn't that Roger Erskine I saw you with at the gate?"

"None other, darling. How's my sweetie feeling today?"

He didn't answer, but asked instead: "Are you in love with that young scamp?"

"Yes, I'm in love with that young scamp."

Just in the way she said those words, so lightly laughing gay as a bird, carried him back half a hundred springs, and another girl was beside him.

"You want to marry him?" the old man wondered.

"I'm going to."

"Does your mother know?"

"No, but she will."

He hesitated, thinking things. The question came without his wanting. Some perverse urge made him ask it: "You know about his mother—and his grandmother?"

"Yes, what of it?"

"I—I just wondered."

"Because somebody wasn't man enough to marry her," she said tartly, "how does that make Roger any different?"

Old man Mills felt a stab of pain.

"Maybe he couldn't marry her," he suggested timidly. "Maybe he was married already—unhappily married."

"Well, divorces aren't so hard to get."

"But in those days——"

"O, those Puritanic old days! They make me tired!"

"People thought differently about divorce. About lots of things."

"They make me tired."

Suddenly Oliver Mills felt sick and older than ever and wretched. If only she weren't so scornful! Why, this pretty child for whose love he yearned—if she knew the truth she'd despise him. She despised him now, despising that man who had failed to marry Martha. Unknowingly she despised him.

"Perhaps they were very much in love," he pleaded, for the sweetest thing in all his life was turning sour within him.

"Darling, when people are very much in love, nothing in the world can stop them. I'm afraid you're just old fashioned."

"And you're very much in love, Margaret?"

"Mmmm," she smiled.

"Nothing will stop you?"

"Absolutely not."

"You have an old man's blessing daughter."

"You're an old peach."

"An old man's heartfelt blessing."

Confession.

He had his luncheon early—just a nibble in the pantry, for today he didn't want to sit through Sunday dinner with the Laws. They would tell him how every one had asked about him after church, what the sermon had been, how much the collection, for his son-in-law was treasurer.

He preferred to be alone today, to sit alone and try to recapture his life with Martha Searl. Usually he retired early, but tonight he felt too restless The magic of spring was in the evening the scent of spring was in the air, and the old man's heart was troubled. He had had two cigars; he would smoke another. He came carefully down the staircase.

"Why, father! What are you doing up?"

"I thought I'd come and get a cigar."

"You've had your two."

"I know I have," he said doggedly. There was something sharp about his daughter; sometimes she reminded him of his own father, that harsh, stern man whose word had been unswerving law He glanced around the library, at his son and his son-in-law, at the handsome woman who once had been a divorcee in Cleveland. "Why, what's going on here? Is the bank——?"

"No, father. The bank's all right."

"Well, what?" His daughter's manner made him stubborn.

"Nothing, father. You wouldn't understand."

"So that's it! I'm so old and decrepit that I can't even think any more. Well, I want to say——"

"O, tell him, Sarah," said Lander Mills. "Why shouldn't he know? He's one of the family. I'll tell him myself It's about Margaret, father. She's getting some scatter-brained, romantic notions and we're just discussing what to do."

"I found out today that she's been seen again and again with Nellie Searl's son."

He looked at his daughter, so disdainful and indignant, as if the very syllables of Nellie's name were loathsome.

"You mean Roger Erskine, the reporter for the Journal?"

"Nellie Searl's son," she nodded. "It's got to stop. Either Natalie or I must take her to Europe. We'll start for New York tomorrow."

"Tomorrow! Why?"

"Why! Would you like your grandchild to marry the son of Nellie Searl?"

"What's the matter with him?" asked old man Mills.

"Nellie Searl, whose father was likely a tramp—for all we know, a thief! Margaret's a very willful girl. She's got to be taken out of temptation."

But Oliver Mills had ceased to hear. His gnarled old hands were tightly clenched, his pulses pounding; his breath came fast. As soon as he spoke his daughter knew that he was still her father. The parent was speaking, not a failing old man who went doddering towards his grave.

"I've heard enough. You listen here. You're not going to spoil that girl's life the way mine was spoiled. There's too many of you meddling middle aged fools running loose. You see that man up there? He meddled me into a marriage with Anson Waldout's daughter I was in love with some one else, but that made no difference to him. He and Anson Waldout were in business together, and Anson Waldout thought I was the husband for his daughter, and my father thought so, too. They forced me into it. Well"—he glared from the portrait to his sons and daughters legitimate—"you're not going to do the same by Margaret."

Mrs. Law's voice was placating.

"But, father! After all, Nellie Searl——"

"I heard you, Sarah. Daughter of a tramp or maybe a thief. Well, you are, too, then. I'm her father!"

Militant, Vigorous.

At first she refused to believe it. His mind was failing; he was romancing in his dotage; senility was making him imagine things. She didn't want to believe it. But her brother Lander showed plainly enough that he believed, and so did Mrs. Law's husband. Old man Mills was too convincing. Despite herself, she had to admit that this terrible thing was true.

"You monster! O, you shameless monster!"

"Now, Sarah," her husband started to remonstrate; but she was the spiritual descendant of that harsh, stern man on the wall above the mantel. Her eyes, too, would have lighted up at the sight of witches being burned for their traffic with the devil.

"Standing there calmly admitting your filthy past! Admitting it to me, contaminating me! And no more shame than—— O, you beast!"

"That's enough, Sarah," the old man glared.

"Enough! I should say it is enough! I'm surprised you have the brazenness to stay in this house."

"It belongs to me."

"And to look a righteous woman—or man—in the eye."

"Sarah," cried her husband, "you've said too much. I forbid you to speak."

"Won't do any good," old man Mills observed, and his daughter-in-law had to hide a smile. "I don't care what you think, Sarah; I'm not a monster. And neither is Roger. We're talking about him . . . and Margaret. She loves him; she told me she did today. If she wants him, I say you've got no right to meddle."

"But Margaret can do so much better," her mother ventured, smiling ingratiatingly at Oliver Mills. "After all, he's only a reporter. He can't earn enough to keep my child in dresses!"

"He had sixty-two dollars and thirty-six cents in the bank on my last birthday. He's doubtless saved some more since then. It's a good start. Besides, he's studying to be a lawyer."

"But that takes time. Meanwhile a trip would——"

"Meanwhile," the old man interrupted, "I'll see that he doesn't need for a budget. Roger is my grandson, and I still have $1,136,014 left to dispose of!"

Militant, vigorous, a woman aroused in her righteousness, she blazed her challenge at old man Mills and stalked off like the spirit of vengeance.

A Day in Spring.

The following day he rose before five. He had not shaved himself for several months, but this morning he got his razor out and carefully scraped his cheeks and chin. The brisk walk had also been discontinued. Today he resumed it—as far as the garage.

"Did Delia give you my message?" he asked the waiting chauffeur.

"Yes, Mr. Oliver."

"Did you deliver it to my granddaughter?"

"Indeed I did, sir."

"What did she say?"

"She say don't you worry; she be ready."

The old man looked at him and chuckled.

"See if you can find a nice rosebud for my buttonhole. But don't take long about it. We've got to be off before they're up."

The rosebud was there, still fresh and smiling, when the eager reporters found them. They were sitting in a quiet little restaurant, having breakfast. A belated breakfast, for it takes time to rout a county clerk from his bed, to drive him to his office for a license, and then to get a pastor up and functioning at his business. Though both stepped promptly enough, be assured, when Oliver Mills said "Move!" to them.

He was beaming now and very happy. On one side sat Roger, patting him on the shoulder as he told his fellow reporters how Oliver Mills had been best man. On the other side was Peggie, calling him a sweet old darling, the grandest grandpa that ever lived.

Once more he looked and felt he was the grand old man of Vernal hill. It was a day in spring, and this young couple adored him, and all these newsmen liked him. He would have told them the truth about Nellie Searl, if Peggie hadn't stopped him. It was a family matter, she told him, smiling. She understood and sympathized, for today he had helped to give her the happiness he himself had lost.

He moved with alacrity when they went outside to pose for the cameras. One of the reporters remarked about it.

"How old do you young scamps think I am?"

"You don't look a bit over seventy, sir."

The old man chuckled.

"I'll be eighty-five next birthday."

"Gee whiz! How in the world do you do it?"

"Well now, I'll tell you. I've got a rule for you boys to follow. Here it is—are you ready? Eat plain food, drink lots of water, smoke not more than two cigars—— By George, do you know what I almost did last night? Nearly smoked a third cigar and spoiled my lifelong record!"

Wedding Day

"She's my own. I'm her mother—and I never had her in my arms. . . . . I never meant to give her up. I meant to hold her and play with her and teach her to talk." Romantic short story by EDWIN BALMER:

Next Sunday

HERE ARE THOSE AMAZING "PEP UP" SALTS
So Many People Are Asking About

They are ordinary JAD Salts, and thousands of people tell wonderful tales about them. Everywhere you go, people are taking them and singing their praises; especially folks who have to work hard or long hours and those who know they shouldn't drink alcoholic beverages, yet do.

Fat or overweight people take them to reduce moisture weight in the body and to end that puffy feeling most overweight people have.

What they do is this: Clear up the Systemic Poisoning that makes you feel so miserable most of the time. Clean out those mean, intestinal poisons that often go to the kidneys and form pus and trouble. 30 minutes after taking, you feel those poisons go. No more dull headaches, no more dragging yourself around "half-sick" most of the time. You "pep-up" and pack a new wallop in a hurry.

You take a spoonful in a glass of water a half hour before breakfast, a sparkling, wonderful drink. For these salts are a product of citrus fruits and grapes, with just the right touch of lithia to make them marvelous to take.

So that nobody will be fooled in buying them, you get your money back if they don't make you feel finer, snappier, more vigorous and interested in life than ever before. Get at any corner drug store simply by asking for ordinary JAD Salts. You'll be glad that you did.

John Vanderlyn's Adventure

by Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

What Has Gone Before:

JOHN VANDERLYN, a young American, is visiting at the villa of the Marchesa Trescobaldi, near Monte Carlo. The marchesa takes her guests, Col. Bruce, Joan Peveral, an English girl, and John, to an Arabian fortune teller down in the town. The Arab tells Vanderlyn that he is going to have an adventure with death and that he will not return to America until after he is married and his wife has borne him three children. On the road back to the marchesa's villa the guests come upon and rescue two women, victims of an auto wreck. The younger of the two is a Russian, named Dina Hitrowo, and the other is her aunt, the Countess Gregorovitch. Vanderlyn is greatly attracted to the girl, but she leaves without bidding him good-by. He goes to Monte Carlo in search of his lost passport. He sees the girl playing roulette in the casino, and takes her and her aunt to dinner at a weird place known as "The Thieves' Kitchen." He finds his passport in his pocket, but cannot account for its reappearance. The marchesa invites her guests and Dina to a fancy dress party.

INSTALLMENT VII.

One Girl's Secret.

THE night of the fancy dress fête, about to be held at Cannes, had followed one of those perfect, limpid, warm days which go far to recompense the visitor to the French Riviera for the oft-time chilly hours which must be endured there even when the sun is shining. And now the evening promised to be warm and still, so the party gathered together at Belle Colline felt in high good humor.

"Why don't men always dress like this? I mean in the evening and on festive occasions!" exclaimed the marchesa.

She herself was attired in a costume copied from that worn by one of Velasquez's infantas, and, as she spoke, she looked mischievously round her dinner table.

To her right sat Lord Mansfield—a splendid Henry VIII. The florid peer had thrown himself with zest into his "dressing up." In fact, he had actually motored into Nice and bought (by the ounce) some heavy all gold jewels. He had also managed to cajole and bribe a hatter into making him a very fair copy of the headgear shown in Holbein's best known portrait of the many wived monarch.

Theophilus Dove had chosen, with the taste which was inherent in him, a charming dark brown costume from a painting by Watteau. Col. Bruce wore the black hose and crimson doublet of a duelist, copied from a noble eighteenth century portrait in the Louvre. As for Bertie Langford, he called himself "Byron," though his 1830 attire was supposed to be that of a French romantic. John Vanderlyn, in a beautiful, he was told a genuine, naval uniform of the French navy of 1804, looked in some ways the most striking of the masculine group of masqueraders.

The ladies had been to some pains to appear as unlike each other as possible. Lady Mansfield was a pale Henrietta Maria and, by her lord's order, she wore the false pearls supplied with the costume and no real jewelry at all except her rings.

Joan Peveral, to the disguised horror of her hostess, as also of the Parisian woman who was hiring out the fancy dresses, had elected to be tonight an incroyable. So she seemed a queer mixture of lad and lass.

As for the stranger in their midst, Dina Hitrowo, she wore a pale pink silk muslin crinoline and looked more than ever like a very beautiful and very young Empress Eugénie. Vanderlyn, who sat just opposite to her at the oval dinner table, thought he had never seen any woman of any age look so ethereally lovely. And the English girl, who was always generous when a rival's appearance was in question, cried out suddenly towards the end of the meal, "You look just 'it' tonight, Miss Hitrowo. It was clever of the marchesa to choose that dress for you!"

While they were having their coffee and cigarets, Vanderlyn muttered to Dina, "I'm having my auto out tonight—I hope you will let me drive you." And he saw her give a slight gesture of assent.

And yet, he could not have told you why, he felt that she was unhappy this evening. There was a dark, somber look on her face. He felt that something was troubling her deeply, and he wondered whether she would tell him what it was.

Unwelcome Words.

A few moments later they were all gathered together on the perron of the château, in front of the sanded space where stood, as Vanderlyn noticed with dismay, but two automobiles, that of Lord Mansfield and his own.

"I'm sorry to say something's gone wrong with my car, so I think Dina, Mr. Dove, and I had better go with Lord and Lady Mansfield. You, perhaps, will kindly take Joan Peveral and Bertie Langford, Mr. Vanderlyn?"

Such were the unwelcome words that fell on the American's dismayed ears.

He heard himself answering, with a fair show of cordiality, "Why, of course; that sounds a good plan!" the while he was cursing himself inwardly for not having had the courage to go up to the marchesa some time that day and say that he wished to motor the Russian girl to Cannes alone this evening. Unfortunately for himself, he had come to the point—he still called it his friendship with Dina Hitrowo—which made him shrink from doing anything that would cause them to be watched and commented on, even in the kindest way, by the marchesa and Col. Bruce. He knew, as well as if he had been told it, that those two had no secrets the one from the other.

Slowly he went down the steps leading to the carriage drive, and then he turned and gazed at the girl who now filled all his waking thoughts.

Her face was like a lovely mask. She might not have heard what her hostess had just said.

Joan Peveral was obviously delighted. "What fun we'll have!" she cried. "I love your kind of car, Mr. Vanderlyn!" She ran after him, a gay, fantastic looking figure in her incroyable costume.

"I don't know why we should continue to be so formal with one another! I've longed to call you 'John' ever since you arrived! So I hope you won't mind calling me 'Joan'!"

"Of course I shan't—Joan."

But his tone was lukewarm, and she gave him a quick, rather cynical look. Vanderlyn felt a fear, a fear that was growing into active distaste, of this English girl. And yet she was always exceptionally nice to him, and more than once he had felt that she wished that he and she should be really "pals," as she would doubtless have expressed it. He had cynically asked himself more than once whether she thought him in a position to offer Bertie Langford the kind of job that brings with it a good salary with very little work. If so, she was singularly mistaken.

"We'd best lead," she said briskly, after she had ensconced herself in Vanderlyn's car. "I think I'm the only one of you all who knows exactly where the villa we're bound for is situated at Cannes. It's tremendously high up, near the top! And one goes through the most splendid avenue of palms to get to it. If I were a millionaire, that's the one place I'd like to possess on the Riviera! It's right away from any other house, with marvelous views over the coast and sea, and yet within three minutes of all the fun down in the town."

Then she called out, in a much sharper tone, "Now, Bertie? Don't be all night!"

She slipped her hand through Vanderlyn's arm and murmured, "I wish we could stick him in the dicky behind, but I suppose that's impossible? It would hurt his poor little feelings too much!"

At last Bertie Langford came down the steps and stepped into the car on Joan Peveral's other side.

Stupid Chaff.

As the car swung round, its three occupants obtained a sudden brilliant view of the group still standing under the well lighted perron.

The marchesa, in her gray and pale yellow court dress, looked exactly like the Spanish Infanta who had been one of her remote ancestresses. By her side stood Bernard Bruce, in black hose and crimson doublet. He was still a splendid sinewy figure of a man, recalling, so Mr. Dove suavely told him, a famous portrait by Moroni. Lord Mansfield and Lady Mansfield were each, in their so different ways, obviously "dressed up"—and recalled stage characters. And then, standing rather apart from the others, stood Dina Hitrowo, wearing a black domino over her pale pink crinoline, and low, straight cut across bodice.

She looked curiously unlike the others, and that from every point of view. It was as if she had stepped out of a forgotten and a less sophisticated world.

"How exquisite that girl looks tonight," said Joan Peveral lightly. "And yet I feel, all the time, as if she was hiding something of which she is bitterly ashamed. Yet she looks such a good little thing! I caught her scowling when naughty old Theophilus tried to squeeze her hand under the table. But there! I can't make her out at all. There's certainly something queer about her; she's to me almost sinister; like a dainty little ghost, rather than a flesh and blood creature."

Vanderlyn, driving quickly down the winding road, was putting on speed, and the girl by his side exclaimed, "I say—aren't you going rather quickly, John? It's getting dark, you know. One never knows on these roads what one may suddenly come across. They never have lights at the back of their carts; oil has become too expensive since the war. They'd rather risk an easy death.

"There can't be any carts here," he said curtly. "This road leads only from Belle Colline down on to the Route Nationale."

"But things are always coming from, and going to, Belle Colline, at all hours of the day and night," she persisted. And he slowed down somewhat.

"What do you think about Dina Hitrowo, John? I wish you'd tell me."

"I don't know that I think of her at all," he said in a quiet, indifferent tone. If this odious girl thought she was going to get a rise out of him she was mistaken.

"Why I thought that you were her special friend?"

Then she raised her voice, "Bertie? Weren't you saying yesterday that John here and that Russian girl had become great friends?"

"It was you who said that," he shouted back.

"You're not offended with me, are you, for asking you that, John?"

Vanderlyn pretended, this time, not to hear the question.

"Asking me what? I can't hear," he called back crossly.

How he hated her for this stupid chaff!

"Do slow down. There isn't any real hurry." And, reluctantly, he obeyed her.

"I was talking of your friend, Dina. One can't get anything out of her. I tried to, just now, when we went upstairs to powder our noses. I asked her if she had ever been to a fancy dress affair like this. She actually answered that she didn't remember! Now that's absurd. No one could ever forget going to a fancy dress ball. I've been to at least six in my life, and I remember them all quite well."

And then Bertie Langford said rather quickly, "That poor gal looks to me as if she'd had a bit of trouble in her time. She don't look exactly happy, eh?"

O, how glad Vanderlyn felt as he joined the procession of cars in the great palm fringed avenue of the Villa Bellevue. They drew up first, with Lord Mansfield's car just behind; and soon the whole party was standing in the circular hall which formed the center of the huge building.

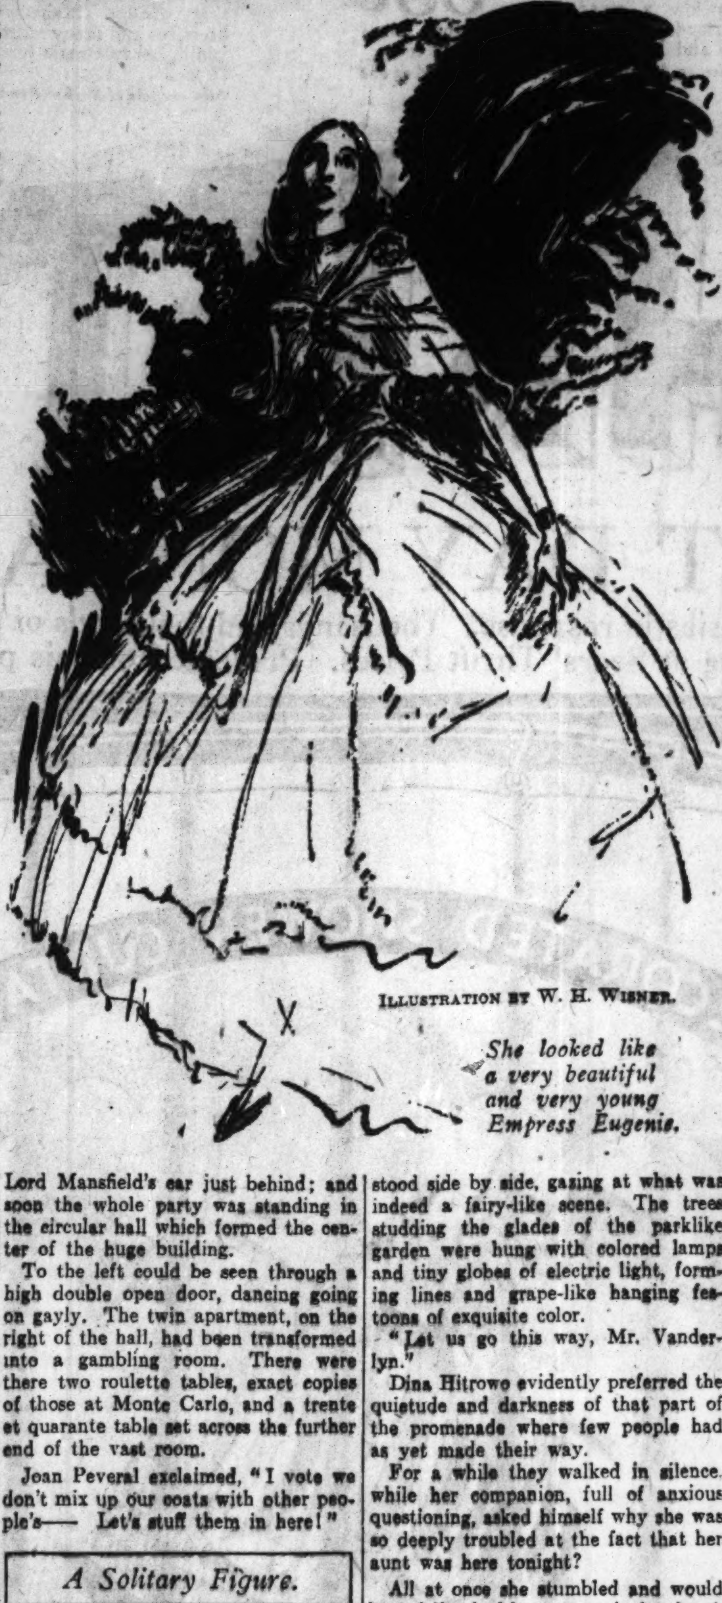

ILLUSTRATION BY W. H. WISNER.

She looked like a very beautiful and very young Empress Eugénie.

To the left could be seen through a high double open door, dancing going on gayly. The twin apartment, on the right of the hall, had been transformed into a gambling room. There were there two roulette tables, exact copies of those at Monte Carlo, and a trente et quarante table set across the further end of the vast room.

Joan Peveral exclaimed, "I vote we don't mix up our coats with other people's—— Let's stuff them in here!"

She walked across to a corner where there stood an oak chest. Lifting its lid, she flung her silver coat into it, and, after a moment's hesitation, the three others, the marchesa, Lady Mansfield, and Dina, followed her example.

"Now then, Bertie boy?"

The Incroyable slipped into the Romantic's arms, and even before they were actually in the ballroom he and she were dancing merrily together.

Vanderlyn looked fixedly at Dina Hitrowo. She stood—in this gay, garish scene, so full of life, music and laughter—a solitary, almost tragic looking figure. It was as if her thoughts were far, far away. So far away, indeed, that she started when the marchesa touched her lightly on the arm with the words, "Wouldn't you like to dance, my dear?" beckoning to Vanderlyn as she uttered the question.

"No, I would rather not dance." The answer, if in a gentle tone, was very decided.

Lord and Lady Mansfield were drifting towards the gambling room, he with what he would have called "his weather eye," very much open in quest of youth and beauty. The two other couples followed them, and then Col. Bruce and the marchesa moved away together.

Vanderlyn and Dina walked up to one of the roulette tables. "Would you like to play?" he asked.

She made no answer to his question and, with a slight feeling of disappointment, he took her silence for assent.

The roulette table was surrounded by a brilliant, chattering crowd, and he observed, "We shall have to wait a few moments, I'm afraid, but I'll soon get you a chair."

And then, all at once—he was watching her intently without appearing to do so, as he always did when they two were together—he saw a look of terror come over her face and she shrank back as if she had been struck.

Following the direction of her eyes, he saw that the Countess Gregorovitch, dressed in a Spanish lace dress and mantilla, was sitting at the table. Opposite to her was the dark, forceful looking man—almost, Vanderlyn felt inclined to call him her accomplice—to whom he had taken so instantaneous and violent a dislike the day he had gone over to Monte Carlo to find his passport, and whom he had last seen gazing out of a window of the Villa Bella Mare.

Dina's voice was low, but he caught every word of the urgent appeal. He could see she was violently perturbed, nay, more, for a reason he could not divine, terrified.

Why Not Tell Her?

"If the countess sees me, she will want me to play the system now. I thought that tonight she was going to a friend who is giving a roulette party. I—I am astonished to see her here."

As they moved away, Vanderlyn saw a couple disappearing through a long French window which seemed to lead into the garden.

"We can get out of the villa that way," he said reassuringly. And then, "Perhaps I had better get you your cloak; you may feel cold out of doors."

"No, no!" she cried hysterically, "I shall not be cold. Let us go out now, at once!" And a moment later he was following her down a row of stone steps into the dark garden.

"Let us go this way, Mr. Vanderlyn."

Dina Hitrowo evidently preferred the quietude and darkness of that part of the promenade where few people had as yet made their way.

For a while they walked in silence, while her companion, full of anxious questioning, asked himself why she was so deeply troubled at the fact that her aunt was here tonight?

All at once she stumbled and would have fallen had he not caught her hand.

"Do take my arm," he said solicitously. And as she obeyed with a murmured "Thank you," he felt that the hand she had laid lightly on his coat sleeve was trembling.

They were following now a path which terminated in a summer house, of which the domed roof rose in a sharp arch against the star-powdered sky.

"Shall we go into that pavilion and sit down?" In spite of himself the voice in which he uttered that commonplace question was threaded with tenderness.

Now, he felt, was his chance. A chance that might not come again, of being really alone with Dina Hitrowo, and of trying to wrest, he felt sure, her innocent secrets from her.

She made no answer to the question, but they walked up a few steps to find themselves in a curious little air parlor hung with Venetian blinds, of which only one large, now open, window let in the sky and air.

Rugs had been laid on the floor, and two chairs had been drawn to the wide opening from which could be seen, like a map, laid out in long lines of twinkling light below, the town of Cannes, the famous sea walk called La Croisette, and the sea dotted with pleasure craft. But all this Vanderlyn saw but dimly, for he was trying to find words to say what was in his heart.

He felt, in a sense, happier now than during any hour since he had first met Dina Hitrowo; for there seemed something different, softer and more confiding, in her attitude to him tonight. She was no longer throwing up intangible barriers between them. She had not even withdrawn her hand from his arm as they stood, she, too, gazing with unseeing eyes, at the dark panorama of sea, sky, and earth spread out below them.

"Listen to Me!"

Looking at the delicate outline of her face, he told himself that, short as had been their acquaintance, she must surely know the depth of his feeling for her?

Surely she must know how she affected him? Surely she must realise that he was not only subjugated and entranced by her beauty but that he felt in her a spiritual quality—something which made an appeal to his soul as well as to his senses.

Why not tell her now that he loved her? When would another such opportunity present itself? True, he might, after leaving Belle Colline, linger on in the neighborhood, for he was his own master. And then he remembered two lines written with a diamond on the pane of an old Scotch house: "Yesterday returneth not. Tomorrow, maybe, cometh not. This is thine hour; miss it not."

Almost as if speaking his thoughts aloud, he said in a low, ardent tone, "I love you," and turning, he took her hand.

She wrenched it away and faced him. "I thought," she said in a trembling voice, "you were different from other men, Mr. Vanderlyn. I thought by what you said the other day that you wished to be my friend. But I see now that you are like every one else of your kind." There was both pain and contempt in her low voice.

He remained silent, angered, and surprised as well.

She began speaking again, and with rising excitement. "I quite expected you to say what you have just said to me the night we first met——"

"Do you mean after your accident?" he asked, bewildered.

"Yes, I mean the night you took me in your arms and carried me up that great white marble stairway. And then? O, God! if you knew the relief, the almost joy, that came over me when, instead of saying that you loved me—you behaved as if I were your sister—a woman, a girl, of the kind all men respect."

She was breathing quickly, her voice full of unshed tears.

"Again the next morning, when we were sitting by the tennis court, I said to myself, 'Will he remain kind or will he insult me?' And again you were kind and—and good to me! I said to myself that day, 'What they say about American men, then, is true? They are taught to reverence all women—not only one woman here and there. They are not like the French, like the English, like the Italians.' But I was a fool to think that! I see it now. You had the decency to wait just a little longer than most men would have waited, and for that I thank you."

Turning quickly away, she would have left the pavilion had he not taken her arm and held her back forcibly.

"Listen to me!" he exclaimed. "What I said to you just now was the truth, Dina. My heart has been full of you, and only of you, ever since we met. After all, what does time matter? What is time? Have you not known an hour go like a moment and an hour seem as long as a day?"

"That is true!" she answered slowly.

"Then let us take it that I have known you for a very long time! And again let me say 'I love you'—and allow me to ask you, now, to be my wife."

"Your wife?"

There came a soft, an incredulous note, in the tone in which she repeated those two words.

"Of course—my wife."

"But you know nothing about me, Mr. Vanderlyn! Why, even I know more about you than you know about me!"

"I know you," he said fervently. "And that knowledge is enough."

"Does that mean that you would never long to ask me any questions as to my past life? As to why, for instance, I am living now with people I detest, and of whom I am horribly afraid?"

He hesitated. Then he said frankly, "I naturally long to know anything you are willing to tell me of your past life. But I promise never to ask you anything concerning what you may wish to keep concealed forever from me."

He made that momentous promise in a firm voice. And yet, for he was no fool, there did come over him a feeling of recoil and even of doubt.

"I cannot accept such a sacrifice." And she spoke in a very quiet and collected way now.

All his fervent belief in her came back. "It will not be a sacrifice!"

"You deserve some return for your goodness to me, and I have made up my mind to tell you the truth."

"You need not do so. I trust you."

Yet he uttered the assurance in a voice that sounded strange even to himself.

Torturing Suspicions.

She turned and faced him. Then, slowly, she said: "I will begin by saying that it would be folly for you to think of marriage with me. I admit, with shame, that I thought you were going to propose something very different from marriage just now. But love, my poor friend, 'the clap of thunder,' as the French call it so truly, does not last."

"I have known it to last," he answered. "I have a case of true love, lover-love, before me now. I mean the Marchesa Trescobaldi and Col. Bruce. He fell in love with her at first sight; it was 'the clap of thunder,' and he loves her as devotedly now as he did then—after seventeen years."

She answered at once: "That is very beautiful. Also very rare; and it could not be so if either had any deep secrets from the other. Now, I have secrets that do not belong to me, and yet they are closely concerned with me."

Agonized suspicions filled Vanderlyn's brain in a turgid flood. Torturing possibilities as to what might have been this fragile girl's life with that strange, sinister woman, who more than once he had felt tempted to believe a mere adventuress, rose before him and would not be denied.

If the dreadful thoughts that now crowded into his mind were true, then Dina Hitrowo could not be the pure being he often felt so sure she was.

Could he, even so, give her up? Again and again, among civilized mankind, men have married and been happy with women whom all humankind at one time despised.

Then he remembered the way in which the marchesa always spoke of Dina—with what pity, tenderness, and, yes, respect.

Could she, so entirely a woman of the world, be utterly deceived in one of her own sex? For all her gentleness she knew much of the ugly side of life. Then he reminded himself, with a kind of agony, that Col. Bruce did not like Dina; that he evidently felt vague suspicions as to which, no doubt, he would not care to put a name.

He also recalled the way in which Theophilus Dove had spoken of the girl now standing by his side. The lascivious old man had described her as one of those southern women who kiss with their eyes as well as with their lips. . . .

And yet? And yet Dina Hitrowo had never shown even the slightest—he sought for a word and at last found it—familiarity, when with him; in that unlike many girls who would have been described as quite "nice girls," whom he had come across in his thirty-three years of life.

Though all these tumultuous torturing thoughts had rushed through his heart and brain far, far more quickly than it takes to write the words down, his silence had seemed long to Dina Hitrowo.

"Let us go back to the villa—and forgive me for having made so great a mistake about one who has shown himself so willing to be a friend to me."

There was something hopeless and very, very sad in her composed voice. It was as if she had suddenly become exceedingly tired.

"I am very touched," she went on with a certain formality, "at your having said that you had thought of me as your wife. You did me a great honor. But neither of us would be happy with the other. I should feel perpetually ashamed that you knew so little of what I have been, and of what I am really like. And you? If you no longer——"

Shaken to the Soul.

"Yes?" he said sorely, "if I no longer cared, you mean?"

"If you no longer had that feeling for me which you call 'love,' then you would begin to hate me. You would say to yourself 'Who is this woman?' And the answer would be—'She is a stranger.'"

He took her hand in his, and this time she did not repulse him.

"Why should you not tell me, Dina, what there is to tell?" he said urgently. "If you knew the meaning of the word 'love,' you would understand that there is nothing, nothing you could tell me—that would change my feeling for you!"

"That is not true!" she cried. "I wish it were. But it is not true. There are many actions a woman can commit which would fill you with scorn. A man always thinks that there is only one crime—if it is indeed a crime—that a lover cannot pardon! That crime, Mr. Vanderlyn, I have not committed—but it is not goodness—it is repugnance, absence of temptation—" she was speaking slowly, with painful hesitation—"that has kept me from committing that common human error."

Vanderlyn's heart gave a bound. How could he have doubted her for one ment to be anything but pure? P as driven snow. Mentally he ab himself before her.

From one extreme he went to other. Dina, surely, had nothing to ashamed of; it was of her aunt that was ashamed.

No doubt the older woman was masquerading as a Russian woman rank. For one thing he had been prised that the countess knew no English; for another, she had none of suavity, the ease of manner of a lady. He remembered that though is the fashion to talk as though in Russia there had only been two the nobles and the serfs, that was ly far from being the case. There innumerable intelligent people of professional class; and it must be great temptation to some of these, in exile, to pretend to be what they were not, and so excite the pity the interest of those who, all un sciously, are snobs.

But now the girl was speaking "Love to a woman?" It was as if was addressing herself—"That perhaps does not mean as much as a man lieves it does—as he has been taught it does. It is not difficult, to some least, to remain virtuous. But there are vile things that no man would his wife to have done, and that would destroy all his respect for her."

He said in an oppressed tone, "Cou you give me some idea of what mean by those words?" And then tried to speak more lightly. "Come, come! You can't have done anything so very terrible?"

"Yes," she said deliberately, "I have done terrible things, my friend. Even since I have known you, I have done things that make me sick with shame."

"D'you mean in less than a week—within the last few days?" And in spite of himself there came a note of fear into his voice.

"Within the last week I have done things of which I am bitterly ashamed, and which—" she covered her face with her hands—"it would be agony to me, were you ever to discover!"

Once more the unhappy Vanderlyn felt shaken to the soul. He recalled with horror certain looks that certain passers by had cast on the three of them, when he, Dina, and the countess had left the casino for that illicit gambling house.

What kind of life had the girl been forced to lead in that hidden villa down by the sea by the horrible woman who called herself the Countess Gregorovitch?

Round Robinhood's Barn

—By Gladys Huntington Bevans—

The Indirect Method of Child Guidance Is Really the Shortest Way to Success.

GIVING a talk to a group of mothers, plus a cold, made the work pile up this week. So, one evening late in the week, when the calm that comes to a household after the children are asleep had descended, I sat down to write our Sunday article. Suddenly it dawned on me that the gist of the talk I had given was really a Sunday article already. So here is part of it, copied from the notes:

You probably know that I receive many, many letters every day, and that nearly all of them are letters which ask for some sort of help or advice. And when these letters number in the tens of thousands it is possible to get a definite idea of what parents' problems are and how eager they are to solve them intelligently.

In the light of all those letters my first thought was, What would be a really helpful thing to talk about—not just one thing, like obedience, or truthfulness, but some more general subject? Isn't there something that would serve as a clew in this fascinating mystery game of child guidance that we mothers are playing?

So the other night, after the lights were out in the young bedroom, and after I had straightened up the bathroom [I suppose your children are perfect that way!], and had mopped up the puddle that was the overflow from an imitation of a porpoise, and had wondered how holes in sox could possibly be so big in one day, and after I had called in puppy from chasing imaginary black cats, and given the tiny wisp of black fur that we call our kitten its night feeding, I sat down to think. And I asked myself, What piece of general knowledge could I pass on to mothers that would really be of practical value?

The Indirect Method.

And I decided that one of the greatest helps, one of the best clews to intelligent child management, is a guidance by indirection. I decided that life would be much happier and easier for many mothers if they realized that the indirect approach to solving behavior problems is quickest in the end—that is, that the longest way round is eventually the shortest way home. For indirect methods are the keynote of the new child training and the ones most successful.

Of course I don't mean to say by all this that there's never a time to be direct. There are times to be direct and times when we can deal with a situation on the spot and get the results we want. There are things we can even talk over frankly with the children themselves—and that's certainly direct enough. There are many occasions where common sense dictates a simple, forthright remedy.

But taking child management as a whole, the best and most modern approach is the indirect one. We go behind the scenes of a child's life, off into the shadowy wings or down below the stage and find out what is amiss. We change the background, reset the scene, and behold our small son or daughter, or our big one, comes out upon the stage of life and acts a normal, happy part.

Of course, that isn't in line with the old ideas which, on the surface, are much more direct. A spank for a misdemeanor, a punishment for a fault, a scolding, a don't for this and a don't for that, are all quite simple and to the point. But they don't in the end get you anywhere worth going. I have so much evidence of that.

Seek the Motive.

I think one of the biggest things that the modern methods of child guidance has done is to make people realize that subtlety of human behavior, and to make them recognize the fact that you have to get around in back of an action, that you must work on the motive to get really lasting results.

To people who have never had any experience, this indirect means of straightening children out seems like going around Robin Hood's barn when going straight ahead would serve the purpose as well. But when you have once seen the wonderful results, you realize that the new way is a thousand times more efficient than the old, and that it makes the job of being a mother indefinitely more interesting.

So many examples of what I mean come flocking into my mind that I hardly know which to begin with. Let's take first one of the things that drives so many mothers of small children frantic. This matter of the baby touching everything at home, especially abroad. His mother says, probably fifty times a day, "Don't touch, baby." She slaps his hands. This is a direct remedy. But as soon as her back is turned he begins all over again. Why? Because his world must come to him through his fingers, because his sense of touch is thirsty.

Satisfy the Instinct.

The way to cure him of meddling and destructiveness is by satisfying this instinct to feel texture, and shape, and weight by allowing him to handle every possible thing in the house himself, and by holding the most fragile or dangerous things yourself for him to touch and look at, then putting them out of reach. Incidentally, did you ever take up your baby or little child at this age and carry him around the room on a tour of inspection, letting him look at and perhaps touch the things way up out of reach, but so enticing to him?

I've seen lively, vigorous little children given the run of a house in the way described with scarcely a "don't touch" ever said. I know from personal experience that this method works.

One last word and I'm through. The suggestions that I have made to you today have not been based merely on theories or academic knowledge. They are practical, workable ideas and I have proved them myself. So if you haven't tried this indirect method before, try it now in your management of the children. And I'm sure you'll find that, though it seems the longest way round, it's really the shortest way home.

Illinois Girl's Lucky Day . . .

FOUR candles! And each of them stands for a year of vigorous, hearty living. Blanche Guerin, of 4575 Oakenwald Ave., Chicago, is a typical Fig Syrup baby. Here's what her mother says:

"A friend recommended California Fig Syrup very highly. So when Blanche began to have so many colds, I got some. It opened her bowels promptly; made her rest better; and best of all, she has been free from colds for a long time, now.

"I have also used Fig Syrup with Blanche for upsets. It has kept her strong and vigorous. I recommend it as the children's laxative."

For fifty years, wise mothers have been secure in the knowledge that a child's headachy, bilious, feverish or fretful spells can be quickly and safely overcome by California Fig Syrup. Physicians recommend the soothing aid of this pure vegetable product to keep the bowels clear in colds or children's ailments; or whenever bad breath, coated tongue, listlessness or lack of appetite warn of constipation. California Fig Syrup helps tone and strengthen weak bowels—assists in building-up and energizing weak children.

The daring and impetuous heroes of "PERISHABLE GOODS" and "BLOOD ROYAL." . . .

CHANDOS and HANBURY

In a fascinating new story of adventure and romance—

BY ROYAL COMMAND

BY DORNFORD YATES

Daily Tribune Serial beginning in

Tomorrow's Tribune

YOU'LL meet once again the two dashing Englishmen who laughed at death—and survived perils and intrigues—in "Perishable Goods" and "Blood Royal," popular Tribune serials of the past two years.

Now they set out on another mad adventure—to rescue a fair lady imprisoned in a castle on the Austrian frontier.

The romance and gallantry of a past generation combined with the recklessness and glamor of modern youth make "By Royal Command" one of the most refreshing and exciting tales you've read in years.

Don't fail to follow the fortunes of these two bold adventurers—in "BY ROYAL COMMAND."

Here's the way "By Royal Command" begins!

INSTALLMENT I.

AN ALARMING TELEGRAM.

It is by George Hanbury's desire that this book has been made. Speaking for myself, I went into the business of which I am going to tell in much the same spirit as that in which a host turns out on a snowy night to bring in some one of his guests whose car has broken down. In a word, I set out in some annoyance, and once being in the venture I think every one will agree that I could hardly withdraw.

When, one spring evening in Wiltshire, I told my friend, George Hanbury, that before the summer was out my wife and I should visit Austria, he threw back his head and laughed.

"I suppose you know best," he said, "but now that you're married, I should recommend some less exacting vicinity. Deauville, for instance."

Though he spoke in jest, I felt the truth of his words. Three times I had visited that Austria seemed to be fated to be my cockpit. These encouncountry, and each time met with adventure of an uncommon sort. These encounters had not been free from peril, and when a man marries I think he loses the right to take his life in his hand. George had each time been with me, and I must confess that we courted what danger we found, or, at least, being in the quarrels, made no attempt to withdraw. Still the trouble was not of our making, and since outside that country our lives had been very peaceful, it was easy to look upon Austria as the lion's mouth. For that reason I would not have gone there, still less have taken my wife, but, as luck would have it, I could not help myself.

The year before I had the honor to marry Leonie, grand duchess of Reichtenburg, and though she had dropped her title and always showed her displeasure if she was treated as other than a commoner's wife, she had not parted with the duchy which she had quitted to marry me eight months before. The duchy lay in Carinthia, and though its great house was gone, a hunting lodge, lately restored, made a fair residence during the summer months. While much of the property was wild there were some ten or twelve farms, and since there was no bailiff I think only an indifferent landlord would have been willing to continue to stay away.

"We must go," said I. "Both of us. You see, there's the Anger estate."

George lifted his eyebrows.

"Headquarters Littai?" he said.

I nodded.

"Leonie hopes," I said, "that you'll come and stay."

"I'll come with pleasure," said George. "But I warn you that I shall go armed."

"You can wear chain mail," said I, "so long as you came."

George smiled. Then he fingered his chin.

"And I'll tell you another thing. I'm not going to Reichtenburg."

"Make your mind easy," said I. "Reichtenburg's off our map."

Of our two guests George Hanbury was the first to arrive, and though we had been very happy, the light of his pleasant countenance did our hearts good.

George was a man of my age, that is to say, twenty-six, fair and blue eyed. His manners were easy, he wore a lazy air, and his nature was gay; his wit was as quick and ready as mine is slow, and his friendship was like a rock which no weather, fair or foul, can ever change. To Leonie he was devoted, and she was most fond of him, and I think our relation went far to refute the proverb that three is not company.

With George came Rowley, his servant. The latter and Bell, ex-soldiers, had served us for some four years and had shared the adventures of which I have spoken above. They were true men.

If the lodge was retired we lived in luxury. Jameson, an English butler, controlled a most willing staff; six decent saddle horses stood in the stalls, and since George had come out by road, we had two cars. The handsome country we had very much to ourselves, and, as we were all fond of fishing, hardly a day went by when we did not prove some water, while, if the estate did not claim us, we usually spent the day by the side of some stream.

So for two careless weeks. Then came a telegram to set our nerves tingling and shatter our peace of mind:

Leonie Chandos Littai
Dare not come
Marya.

The day was Monday, and on Wednesday we were to have met her ten miles our side of the frontier of Reichtenburg.

GOOD MORNING!

"Hell's Angels," the long awaited air spectacle that cost its maker, Howard Hughes (who, rumor whispers, may be the next husband of Billie Dove), $4,000,000, has at last arrived in town.

Mr. Hughes gets royalties from an oil drill, invented by a relative, I understand, and can well afford to spend $4,000,000 on a picture. He disbursed $50,000 for publicity, so the story runs. I am told that on the night "Hell's Angels" opened in Los Angeles Mr. Hughes found himself two mountains, covered them with smoke and turned 150 Klieg lights on them. That one little stunt cost him plenty, but he liked to do it and folks' eyes popped when they saw the mountains, and everybody within a radius of a couple of hundred miles said:

"LOOKit!"

They would!

Three Years in the Making.

"Hell's Angels" has been some three years in the making. It was started as a "silent" and then remade for the talkies. The air sequences—and there are many of them—are grand, spectacular, wonderful, daring, exciting, thrillingly beautiful and technically, amazingly informative. Some of the shots among the clouds are too real to visualize with comfort. You see war as war was when Von Richthofen's "circus" met the allied aces and battled them in the air. I have never beheld anything like the formation flying in this picture, nor, I think, have you.

For this part of the film Mr. Hughes had built a Zeppelin, half the size of the Los Angeles. During the action this cracks up and comes down to earth a blazing, fiery furnace. Magnificent and terrible! The Zeppelin is an awe-inspiring thing as it sails through the skies and toward you. For these scenes a large screen will be used at United Artists' theater.

There has never been anything to compare even faintly with the air stuff in "Hell's Angels." There are examples of physical daring that make you shudder. One camera man died of heart failure during the making of the film.

Story Not Remarkable.

The story woven around the air maneuver is not remarkable. It is interesting, but not grippingly so, and there's nobody in the cast who gets under your skin. James Hall and Ben Lyon, as brothers—one brave, the other bearing a yellow streak—do nice work, but arouse within you no decided emotions of any sort. Jean Harlow, as a heroine, who is also a villainess, inspired me with a strange aversion. She is a platinum blonde, rather fascinating to look at—like a yellow cat—and no great shakes as an actress. Helen is idolized by brave Roy, and proven unworthy of any man's devotion by Roy's brother, Monté, and others. All rôles are capably handled. Direction is superb. Especially to be commended is the attention paid to detail. The tale has a brave and tragic finish. Our gratitude to Mr. Hughes for omitting marshmallow sauce from the finale!

Please make up your minds to see "Hell's Angels." It's worth while.

NORMAN FOSTER, Claudette Colbert's husband, will play opposite CLARA BOW in "No Limit." . . . Friends of CONSTANCE TALMADGE declare they've seen her looking at baby clothes in the shops. . . . ROBERT WARWICK, one time matinée idol of the stage, will make his talking picture début in "The Queen's Husband." . . . GLORIA SWANSON has been invited to make a concert tour of the United States and Canada, next fall, by the National Broadcasting company. . . . MARY PICKFORD and DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS are said by Photoplay to be "mingling more and more with us common folk" in Hollywood. They used to be so exclusive, you know. . . . MAURICE CHEVALIER will, it is said, make a tour of twenty one-night stands. Idea is to have him travel with a band. Band will entertain first, then forth will come MAURICE to sing and smile and O, la, la. . . . When LAWRENCE TIBBETT was a student at the Manual Arts High school of Los Angeles, he had thumbs turned down on him when he aspired to sing in the school's glee club. . . . A MICKEY MOUSE cartoon was banned in Ohio because one of Mickey's playmates, a cow, was depicted as reading a copy of "Three Weeks," and, ruled a German censor on one strip, "The wearing of German military helmets by an army of cats which oppose a militia of mice is offensive to national dignity. Permission to exhibit this production in Germany is refused——"

Film Celebs Get Sharp Digs from Coast Writer

United Artists vs. Fox Row Continues.

By Rosalind Shaffer.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, CAL.—[Special.]—The big battle between United Artists and the Fox theaters started out to be a business row, but now the thing has gotten around to a lot of interesting personalities. Everybody has felt free to guess what was behind the row, but one Los Angeles columnist let loose a lot of inhibitions in an open letter to Joe Schenck. Schenck, head of United Artists, claims that the Fox theaters offer so little for his films that he will show them "in barns, or tents, or armories," but in no more Fox theaters.

The sarcastic digs by the local columnist have caused a lot of ohs and ahs from Hollywood folks. Here are some of them. After starting out on the roster of United Artists stars, the columnist says that Ronald Colman and Gloria Swanson are really good; that Norma Talmadge's inadequate voice eliminates her, that Eddie Cantor will fade out with the passing of musical pictures, that D. W. Griffith is so sentimental and romantic and southern that he is obsolete, and that Mary and Doug, "with their smug optimism, are all through an era demanding clearer realities."

Frightful Irony.

"It is gallant of you" (addressing Joseph Schenck) "in your desperation to defend your gallery of antiques, but do not really pretend they approach present day stars such as Dressler, Chevalier, Arliss, Garbo, Groucho Marks, Chatterton, Harding, Joe E. Brown, Joan Crawford, and the latter's husband, Doug junior."

Herein is a frightful irony. "Doug senior was never an actor; he is a poetic acrobatic dancer but frigid as an old maid in expressing the emotions of human conflict. His son is far his superior in spirit, intellect and sensitiveness." And "Chaplin is the only genuine genius at United Artists."

Probably never before in what Arthur Caesar describes as "This land of yes and nod," has there been such a printed onslaught on the lares and penates of Hollywood; never before have the old gods been offered such an affront in a town where all criticism or films is favorable.

Jeanette MacDonald, beautiful singing star of "Love Parade" and "Monte Carlo," has been signed by Fox after Paramount let the expensive and exquisite lady go. The funny thing is that Fox signed her because of her comedy acting in "Oh for a Man," and acting is just what Paramount thought she could not do.

A Laugh on Lasky.

Comedians are seldom what they seem. There is the case of El Brendel and Charles Murray. El is really German, though admiring Swedes ask him what part of Sweden he came from. He tells them he's German and they think he is high-hatting them. Recently he discovered that one of his grandmothers really was Swedish. Charley Murray, always known as player of Irish comedy rôles,

Flaws in Civic Opera House Are Placed Under Spotlight; Bring Suggestions for Improvement

By Edward Moore.

THIS is about the time of the operatic season when people begin to grow eloquent over what is the matter with Mr. Insull's great opera house over at 20 Wacker drive. From all I have been able to hear during the last week or so, there is quite a lot.

No human institution is perfect, unfortunately bromidic, unfortunately true. At the same time, before any campaign of pronounced fault finding is started, it is advisable to remember all over again that if it had not been for the Insull régime, there would not be any opera house at all, and the Chicago opera company would have been out of existence for several seasons back.

In this connection, there was a certain degree of emotion the other day in reading a clipping from a New York newspaper to the effect that there was a general belief that Chicago newspapers had been too easy on the Civic Opera company. This ought to be credited as the great bit of journalistic humor of the year. It is even more pointed when one considers how often the operatic organization has made it plain, has even put it in words, that no criticism, no amount of criticism, would have the slightest weight in changing its own opinions or its own decrees.

Entrance and Exit Woes.

As a matter of fact, this is all the better for the critics. It permits them to speak their minds as fully as they desire without putting the slightest responsibility upon them for a tactical move that might go wrong. The more one thinks about it, the more ideal their position seems to become.

As one goes about picking up objections from patrons, they seem to fall under several heads. The first is the difficulty of getting to and getting from the opera house. It is not its position, because in this day of electricity and gasoline, the actual site does not make much difference, but the discharging and loading of cars. It is a trying operation to get into the opera house and a more trying one to get away from it.

The objection is valid, and, at least for this season, insoluble. They say that when the city plan of the double decked street has been completed, giving two levels for cars, it will be better. But there is one condition that could be changed right away. It refers to the rule preventing any taxicab to park within hailing distance of the door.

So far the opera company continues to be benign enough to permit a patron to come to the opera in a taxicab. When he leaves, however, he is forced to go out into the street, no matter what the weather may be, and pick up a cab as best he may, with his companions following as best they may. This puts an extra and vexatious burden upon those who greatly outnumber and will continue to outnumber the luckier patrons who maintain their own chauffeur driven cars.

Boxes Invisible.

The next objection is that once inside the opera house, the boxes are invisible to the greater part of the house, and the boxes and their occupants are an important part of the show. This is also true. It is coupled with the further objection that the aisles run from back to front, with no provisions for side exits, all of which makes visiting between acts subject to a long walk and in other ways considerably more difficult than necessary.

In other words, something has been done to take away the gala and joyous atmosphere of an opera season. Only the performances have been left as means of attraction, and with all deference to some exceedingly meritorious performances of the present season, it is still true that there is more to an opera season than singers and orchestra. Even the lighting is kept in so unbrilliant a scheme that it muffles some of the gayety.

Pleasing Two Groups.

Now, it is an easy thing to make suggestions, and it is the easier because, as just pointed out, not the slightest responsibility can attach to me for making them. So here is a suggestion or two.

About a third of the way back from the stage on the main floor remove a few rows of seats and put in a line of boxes extending all the way across the house, keeping them on the main floor level. Cut a side aisle across in front of them and another behind them. The present box floor can be retained, or, if necessary, turned into a mezzanine floor of seats.

It will bring the box holders and the lesser but necessary seat holders in closer proximity, something that apparently both desire. It will make social intercourse between the acts easier and more pleasant.

In fact, it has every advantage except that it will take a certain number of seats out of the financial scheme. But as a large unsold section in the rear of the main floor has been one of the melancholy spectacles of most of the season so far, something that it is hard to believe is altogether attributable to economic conditions, this disadvantage is, for the present, more apparent than real.

Two Operas Added.

In any event, turn up the lights in the theater. The present system is restful, but restfulness and gala spirit are not identical. Gala spirit means stimulation. Incidentally, the stage lighting does not err on the side of brilliancy. Neither have any very effective steps been taken to correct the loss of vocal brilliancy when the artists get too far up stage.

So far, most of the objections have been to the house rather than the

Gotham's Talkie Mills Grind Out Lots of New Ones

Film Business Appears on the Up 'n' Up.

By Tom Pettey.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—There is something about the production of movies in a big city that takes a large slice of the glamour out of the business. Take New York's biggest talkie factory, over in Astoria. It is one of the finest and most complete sound studios in the world and is operating at a capacity rate these grimy, rainy, dreary November days. Glittering tales of romantic nights, stories of the mad life of the underworld, flashes into the careers of kings of the business world, laughter and tears, the pearls and the dregs—movies—were being ground out behind stone walls, while people a block away could not tell a casual visitor which was the talkie factory and which was the chewing gum factory.

New York's talkie mill is only a subway jump from Times square. To get there one rolls across heavily burdened Queensboro bridge, glances down at a prison island, passes factories, warehouses, cheap boarding houses and rows of tenements. Once there, Paramount's eastern production plant looks for all the world like a modern, well equipped plant for the manufacture of almost any commodity except amusement. Inside is another world—a make-believe land.

Business on the Up-and-Up.

Right now business is on the up and up in Astoria's movie factory. Nancy Carroll's latest picture, "Laughter," has hit the road and the little star is busy at work on another, "Stolen Heaven." Meanwhile, still another picture is being planned for Nancy, for when the star has finished her current rôle she will step into the leading part of "Up Pops the Devil."

Among the featured players who have been and still are working at the Paramount studio is Fredric March. Remember, he was the young composer in "Laughter," who had such a devil-may-care air about him when invading a millionaire's home to steal the rich man's wife. Well, March is to play the part of a young author in "Up Pops the Devil." Miss Carroll is cast for the wife.

A Couple of Funny Ones.

Here's the hitch. In the stage play from which the movie is to be made, the wife is a member of the Roxy ensemble. She probably will have to become a dancer in Publix revues for the movie, as Roxy's and the Paramount theater in New York are rivals.

Fredric March already has a job which must be completed before he can take on a new rôle. He is appearing with Claudette Colbert and Charles Ruggles in an original story by Austin Parker. The title has just been changed from "Strictly Business" to "Sex in Business," for reasons—well, you know why.

The movie world is so full of byproduct yarns that it is hard to write about serious matters. Here are just

German Play Cuts Close to Heart of Life

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Germans are vivisectionists in the drama. They cut close to the heart of life and expose most of its other vital organs during the operation.

This is particularly true of the German drama that has been written, of recent years, to meet the demands of Max Reinhardt, who is both surgeon and showman. His circus theaters are clinics. His revolving stages elaborate dramatic laboratories.

This week in New York we had one of these life plays revealed by Herman Shumlin. It is called "Grand Hotel." Vicki Baum wrote it and W. A. Drake did the translation. "Grand Hotel" aims to draw together for thirty-six hours the lives and adventures of certain guests of a hotel in Berlin. They are persons whose lives would ordinarily have no common contact.

Glimpses of Lives.

We meet them first through the medium of the hotel's telephone exchange. As each of them puts in a call a flash of light reveals him or her standing in a booth talking. Thus, you come to know that Gruinskaia, the dancer, cannot or will not dance that evening; that Preysing, textile merchant, is worried about a deal he is trying to put through with Berlin competitors; that Baron von Gaigern, trading on his social graces, is mixed up in some mysterious business; that Flaemmchen, a pretty stenographer, has agreed to take Preysing's dictation that night and that Kringelein, a suburbanite bookkeeper, having consulted specialists and been told that he has but a few weeks to live, is turning all his assets into cash with the intention of making those weeks count.

With the telephones out of the way the lobby of the hotel is shown in colorful action, a lobby through which life flows ceaselessly and interestingly. One by one the people of the telephone booths are woven into the fabric of the play.

Interwoven Threads.

The desperate Kringelein gets a room next to the discouraged and defiant dancer. The adventuring baron, stalking the dancer's pearls, makes friends with Kringelein to better his chances as a thief.

Preysing, the merchant, bluffs through a conference with his suspicious creditors. When he beats them he decides to celebrate by taking Flaemmchen, the stenographer, on a joy tour to Manchester.

Another turn of the kaleidoscope and the baron, concealing himself in the dancer's room, is surprised by that lady. Excusing himself on the plea that his desperate love of her is responsible for both his intrusion and his association with thieves, the baron is forgiven and rewarded with the love of Grusinskaia, which restores her interest in life.

But now the baron, bent on following the dancer, must get money somewhere. He is robbing Preysing, the merchant, when that gentleman comes from his assignation with the stenographer. There is a fight and the baron is killed. For this the merchant must go to court to free himself of a charge of murder, and Flaemmchen, the stenographer, runs away with poor Kringelein, the bookkeeper, to help him finish spending his savings before he dies.

As the swinging doors close on the unhappy Gruinskaia, who goes to her next engagement worried for fear the baron will not follow, the lobby of "Grand Hotel" is again bustling with life and new characters are coming in to take the places of those passing out.

Strong Holding Quality.

They are trick dramas to a very considerable extent, these German dramatic exhibits. But because they do cut close to the lives they expose they build up a holding quality seldom equaled by more conventional plays.

Audiences have consistently remained in their places to cheer "Grand Hotel." Partly for the entertainment it affords, partly for the skill with which Mr. Shumlin has staged it, and partly because of the fine performances given in it by Eugenie Leontovich, Henry Hull, Sam Jaffe, Hortense Alden and Sigfried Rumann.

Miss Leontovich is the young Russian who was stranded in America seven years ago with a "Revue Russe" troupe. After that she worked her way through several chorus jobs to featured positions in "Candlelight" and "And So to Bed." New York has welcomed her as a discovery. Mr. Hull plays the baron, Mr. Jaffe the bookkeeper, Miss Alden the stenographer, and Mr. Rumann the merchant.

If the success of "Grand Hotel" does not set several managers scurrying for the rights to "Phaea," which was last season's Reinhardt success of similar pattern, I shall be much surprised, and a little disappointed.

Show Lasts Five Days.

Miss Lya de Putti, the continent's toast and Hollywood's disappointment, seeing she has announced her intention of having nothing more to do with pictures, tried her hand at the spoken drama this week and lasted five days. She came in on Tuesday with "Made in France" and went out on Friday with practically everything lost, save honor. The reviewers were unkind and there were no audiences.

Miss de Putti was not quite as bad as the experience would indicate, though she was pretty bad, largely because the farce in which she made her debut was a poor farce, being the one about the little French maid who wrote three of her American doughboy friends that she had borne each of them twins.

They arrive in France ten years later and lie themselves into and out of familiar complications from 9 o'clock till 10:30 when the twins are revealed as war orphans and Lya's meal ticket.

Miss de Putti, red as to hair, and crinkly as to eyes, speaks her stage pieces with confidence and tries desperately to be fascinatingly cute. But without help from an author, noth-

Guild Offers Russian Drama Without Gloom

Comedy of Czarist Regime Handsomely Staged.

By Charles Collins.

THE Theater Guild's staging of Turgenev's "A Month in the Country" is a pleasant specimen of Russian playwriting in a graceful old-fashioned style. If it had come out of England, we would call it Early Victorian. But since it relates to the reign of Czar Nicholas I., long before the emancipation of the serfs, you must invent your own literary label. Russian literature was then romantic, and Russian culture had a gay French veneer. The Muscovite soul, as found in this sentimental comedy, was not a dismal swamp of murky psychology.

So the average playgoer, who has come to believe that all hope should be abandoned when a Russian author holds the stage, has no reason to shun "A Month in the Country." Its melancholy is light; and its lovers' partings are merely sweet sorrow that do not convey a mood of depression. Turgenev was one Russian, at least, who did not use the harrow when he undertook to reveal the souls of his fellow countrymen. Nor yet the dissecting knife. In his time the drama and the novel were not psychological laboratories.

As produced by the Guild, which believes in glorifying the American stage with decorative mountings as well as by acting, "A Month in the Country" is not without its gayety. It is, indeed, the most handsome play in town, with its three brilliant settings—straight out of the library of the Moscow Art theater—and its charming wardrobe of costumes.

Visually, the staging of this piece represents the high water mark in the Guild's history, so far as Chicago is concerned. This is art theater work at its best. Sticklers for modernism might sniff at the lovely garden setting, on the ground that it is old-fashioned and operatic; but if it satisfied the Moscow Art theater, it ought to be forgiven by our young intellectuals who think it fashionable to despise perspectives. That vista of a Russian farming region, rich in the color and mood of the country, is a masterpiece in a style of scene design that corresponds to the theme and key of the play itself.

A Perfect Cast.

The casting is also admirable. Alla Nazimova and Earle Larimore are a glamorous combination for the leading rôles, and the others, especially Cecil Yapp as the scheming doctor and Henry Travers as the ridiculous suitor, are exactly as they should be. In assignment of rôles, in stage direction, and in artistic attention to every detail of costuming and background, the Theater Guild is setting the pace for the rest of the American stage.

The Guild's next play on its subscription program at the Blackstone will be of American authorship. It is "In the Meantime," by Claire and Paul Sifton. The cast will include Glenn Anders, Linda Watkins, Josephine Hull, Frederick Perry, Harriet McGibbon, Harold Vermilyea, Jack La Rue, Francis Pierlot, Maude Allen and Harold Bolton. The date of its appearance here has not been definitely fixed, and there will probably be a gap between the departure of "A Month in the Country" and its arrival. The play is now in rehearsal, and will have its first performance in Baltimore Dec. 1. Chicago will anticipate New York in passing a verdict upon this production. The Guild's theaters in New York are now prosperously occupied with "Elizabeth, the Queen," and "Roar, China!"

Melodrama Improves.

"Subway Express," at the Erlanger, is the first sign of originality that the so-called mystery melodramas have shown for years. The great success of "The Bat" had an unhappy effect upon this form of play writing; it established a pattern of bloodcurdling shrieks off-stage, uncanny tappings at window panes, and ghastly arms protruding from behind slowly opening doors.

Under the influence of this sort of stuff the mystery plays became fixed in a grotesque and farcical formula. They ceased to be melodramas worthy of adult attention, and became merely pumpkin head shows of Halloween horrors appealing to infantile imaginations. "The House of Fear," which has held forth at the Playhouse since last September, is an illustration of the way these plays have degenerated into puerile nonsense.

But the success of "Subway Express" ought to have a regenerative influence upon the makers of melodrama. It is ingenious and startling, but it does not stray out of the realm of reality. Its detective is not preposterously gifted; he is only a diligent and tenacious police officer who works his way to the bottom of a very dark affair. Its crime, although bizarre, is within the possibilities of daily life. Its characters are an average crowd of city toilers. Its comedians are not obtrusive lunatics.

"Subway Express," in short, is a long step in the right direction. Its staging is notable in its novelty and its story keeps a tight hold upon the attention. Melodrama has as much right to its classics as other forms of play writing, although they are not often honored with revival; and "Subway Express" deserves such rating, in my opinion. Its only concession to hack work is the use of a deaf man's affliction for an occasional laugh.

The other two openings of the last week may be dismissed briefly. "The Old Rascal" is a good vehicle for the leisurely humor and rural Americanism of William Hodge. "Cradle Call" is merely a suggestive anecdote, leaning on the crutch of Hollywood antics. Its leading woman, Lenita Lane, is new to Chicago playgoers, and should be noticed as a comely and accomplished young actress who handles some embarrassing material in a pleasant and appealing manner. There performances. They will, perhaps, come later in the season. Wherefore, it is now time to announce that two works will be added to the repertoire this week.

"Otello" will be sung Tuesday night with Charles Marshall as Otello, Vanni-Marcoux as Iago, and Claudia Muzio as Desdemona. This should be something to anticipate. Otello is Mr. Marshall's finest impersonation, a character that only a few in the world are able to do at all; Mr. Vanni-Marcoux is a marvel in presenting the psychology of devious emotions; Miss Muzio is another marvel in the singing and acting of characters like Desdemona.

"Mefistofele" will be revived on Saturday afternoon. In case you have forgotten, Arrigo Boito, who wrote the book of "Otello" for Verdi's music, wrote both the book and music of "Mefistofele." Here Alexander Kipnis will have the name part, Antonio Cortis will appear as Faust, Miss Muzio as Marguerite, Cyrena Van Gordon as Helen, and Coe Glade as Pantalis.

Most of the rest of the week will be repetitions of German works, a department of operatic art to which the Civic Opera company this season is entitled to do considerable pointing with pride. The exception is "A Masked Ball," on Thursday night. Tomorrow night the bill will be "Lohengrin," Wednesday "Die Meistersinger," and Saturday evening "Fidelio."

Missing, a Sense of Humor.

Showing some of the difficulties that one sometimes gets into when trying to express a meaning in the tone of irony, the music column a few days ago commented upon certain features of the "Mme. Butterfly" performance at the Civic Opera house. Nothing could have been in less serious vein, but it provoked a remonstrance in a letter signed E. E. F. Part of it follows:

"Yet Mr. William Moore" [a first blow to vanity], "the distinguished music critic of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, 'The World's Greatest Newspaper,' states in today's article:

"'The first thing noticed about Miss McCormic was that she sang her part in French while the others stuck to the original Italian. This proves, if it proves anything, that opera should always be done in any language as long as it is not English.'

"I should have enjoyed this as a bit of humor had it not been spoiled by the following clause:

"'For opera, when it is sung in English, always loses a certain, subtle, evanescent charm. Any one who has the interest of opera at heart will tell you so.'"

E. E. F. is hereby solemnly assured that the two paragraphs are intended to be read together and that neither of them mean what they say. I have been told exactly what is said in the second, and by persons who afterward confessed that they did not understand the foreign tongue. Hereafter, when this column attempts something in non-serious vein, the attempt will be properly labeled.

Buyers Are Judges.

E. E. F. continues: "I have spent a long life patronizing foreign art and languages. This season ends it. If I can find no opera in English, nor American opera in English, I can turn this small amount of money to other patriotic purposes without becoming bigoted or narrow minded."

This is one of the most sensible remarks to have come up in a long series of years of watching controversy of opera in English. If E. E. F. and a similarly minded company of sufficient dimensions will stay away from foreign opera and patronize English opera, they will get English opera almost over night. During twenty years the Chicago Opera company has made dozens of efforts to present English opera, all the way from "Lohengrin" to "The Bat" in translated form, and from "Natoma" down, of the native variety.

E. E. F. speaks of last season, when the American Opera company took enthusiastic criticisms and most of the audiences were enjoying opera for the first time. Both sides of the statement are entirely correct. The American Opera company was sheer delight.

But—the same American Opera company nearly starved to death before the season was over. Salaries, even its small ones, were weeks in arrears, and contributions had to be sought from all sources before the company could get home. And this year the American Opera company is not in existence. There is exactly one reason why it is not. It cannot find support.

The Civic Opera company needs no education as to its patriotic duty in the matter of languages. If any persons need the education, they are the patrons. They will get opera in English when they want it. As long as they prefer opera in foreign tongues they will get it that way. The buyers will always be the final judges.

Music Notes.

A company of Russian refugees, the Don Cossacks, advertised as "The Thirty-six Singing Horsemen of the Steppes," are giving concerts at Orchestra hall this afternoon and again on Wednesday evening, thereby making their first appearances in Chicago.

They and their conductor, Serge Jaroff, are described as former officers of the Russian imperial army. They began as a singing organization in the prison camp of Tschelengir, near Constantinople, where they were sent with the rest of Gen. Wrangel's defeated army. Later they became the choir in the Russian church at Sofia, Bulgaria. In 1923 they gave their first concert in Vienna, since when they have made over 1,500 appearances in Europe, the British isles, and Australia. They travel on "Nansen" passes, issued by the league of nations to persons without a country.

Their program will be of Russia, church music, art songs, folk songs, and, of course, "Ay, Ookhnem," which you may recognize more easily under the name of the Volga Boat song.

Harold Bauer, the pianist, will be the soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week, the tenth time that he has appeared in that capacity since his first in 1901. He will play the piano part in Scriabin's "Prometheus, the Poem of Fire," and also in Franck's Symphonic Variations. Mr. Stock will direct the orchestra in his own rescoring of Schumann's "Rhenish" symphony and the "Hary Janos" suite by Kodaly.

The orchestra is also scheduled for a Tuesday afternoon concert and a popular program on Thanksgiving night. That of Tuesday afternoon may without hesitation be described as symphonic since the program consists of three symphonies, Mozart's in E flat, Szymanowski's "The Song of the Night," in which Eugene Dressler will sing the tenor solo, and Dvorak's "From the New World."

The department of music of the Chicago public schools tells of its contests of the winter and spring, the glee clubs on Jan. 19, the bands April 16, and the orchestras May 14. In addition there will be concerts by the All-Chicago chorus and the All-Chicago orchestra in April.

The chorus is preparing an interesting program which includes the oldest piece of music of which there is a record. It is the Sephardic melody, "Sirath Hayyam" [The Song at the Sea], supposed to have been composed 1500 B. C. Another ancient but considerably younger melody is the "Hymn to Apollo," one of the very few to have been deciphered from Greek inscriptions, and composed about 278 B. C.

Other numbers will include an Ambrosian chant of the fourth century A. D. and a Gregorian chant of the eighth century A. D., a work by Palestrina, another by Kruger of the 17th century, two excerpts from Franck's oratorio, "Ruth," and some pieces that were popular in America fifty years ago.

Lotte Lehmann's appearance as Eva in the second performance of "Die Meistersinger" next Wednesday night will be her final one of the season in Chicago. In everything that she has sung here she has been one of the notables in the Civic Opera company's notable German wing.

Maria Rajdl, who came down with appendicitis just as the opera season was getting under way, is to sing a number of German rôles during the coming weeks of the season, but her Chicago debut is still listed among the unannounced futures. There is a future, however, which has become definite, and it is the first performance on any stage of Hamilton Forrest's "Camille," which is set for Wednesday, Dec. 10. Mary Garden, Charles Hackett, and Chase Baromeo will have the three principal rôles and Emil Cooper will conduct.

Fritz Kreisler will give his second and last violin recital of the season at Orchestra hall on Friday evening.

It is quite a long time in advance, but there is notice that Vladimir Horowitz will give a piano recital at Orchestra hall next Jan. 28 under the sponsorship of the Dorothy Kahn Club for Crippled Children. The proceeds will go toward the maintenance of the Dorothy Kahn convalescent ward and solarium on the roof of the Sarah Morris hospital.

[Daguerre Photo.]

BOITO'S opera, "Mefistofele," which, as to its libretto, is much closer to the Goethe play of "Faust" than is the Gounod like-named version, is to be revived at the Civic Opera house next Saturday afternoon. In this case the hero is not Faust but Mephistopheles, and the hero's part will be sung and acted by Mr. Kipnis. It will be a new role for him as far as Chicago is concerned, but his past performances in other parts show that no one need be fearful on that account.

Jolson Surrenders.

The theatrical paragraphs that flow over the wires from New York contain the news that Al Jolson, who went into the sound films in a big, outstanding way, has joined the procession of converts to the actual stage. Next February he will appear as the star of a musical show to be staged by Max Gordon in association with the Erlanger estate. Neither the authors, nor the plot, nor the title of the piece have been announced, but the producers seem to know what they are about, for preparations will begin within a month.

Mr. Jolson's last stage vehicle was "Big Boy." Since then, except for a brief appearance in an "Artists and Models," as an "added attraction," his activities have been in the talking pictures, which found their first great success with him in a version of "The Jazz Singer." His return to the footlights will be additional proof that the flesh and blood stage, recently said to be in its death throes, is giving its mechanical enemy the stiffest kind of competition.

The fourth play in the subscription season of the Damatic league of Chicago will be Pirandello's "As You Desire Me," which is scheduled to follow "Michael and Mary" at the Harris theater on Dec. 29. Judith Anderson, Jose Ruben, and Charles Dalton are prominent in the cast. The American première of this play by Italy's most distinguished dramatist took place in Princeton university's new theater last night. The performance was, in effect, a dedication of this academic stage.

"As You Desire Me" is said to have been inspired by a lawsuit which has held the attention of legal minds in Italy for several years. It was the subject of a cable dispatch printed in this newspaper last Tuesday. The case is that of the "unknown man of Collegno," who seems to have a dual identity. Two women are claiming him as husband and father of their children. Pirandello, however, has merely used the situation without attempting to dramatize the story, and the case of dual identity in "As You Desire Me" revolves around a woman.

Billie Burke to Act Again; Theater News

BILLIE BURKE [Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld] will return to the stage as co-star with Ivor Novello in a play by that London comedian called "The Truth Game." Viola Tree, daughter of the late Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, will also be prominent in the cast. Miss Burke acted in New York last September in "Family Affairs," but her stage appearances since her marriage to Mr. Ziegfeld have been few and far between. There was a time when she was the reigning ingénue star of the American theater.

"Simple Simon," with Ed Wynn as its star, will begin an engagement at the Grand Opera house, Dec. 7, after long runs in New York and Philadelphia. Among the other entertainers in this musical comedy are Harriet Hector, Winnie Shaw, Margaret Breen, Marjorie De Haven, Jack Squires, Carter De Haven Jr., Gil Squires, Harr Shannon, Hansford Wilson, Will J. Ferry, and Joseph Macaulay.

The repertory of Fritz Leiber's Shakespearean season at the Civic theater for this week will be: Monday, "Macbeth"; Tuesday, "Julius Caesar"; Wednesday matinée, "King Lear"; Wednesday night, "As You Like It"; Thursday, "Richard III."; Friday, "Hamlet"; Saturday matinée, "As You Like It," and Saturday night, "The Merchant of Venice." This will be the fifth week of the engagement, which is limited to eight.

"The Last Mile" moves from the Harris to the Princess theater tonight, to permit the Dramatic league of Chicago to transfer its season of subscription plays to the Harris, where "Death Takes a Holiday" will hold forth for its fourth and final week. When "The Last Mile" decides to leave Chicago it will return to New York for a supplementary run.

Margaret Love, character actress with Eva Le Gallienne's Civic Repertory theater in New York, has been added to the Goodman company. She has never acted before Chicago audiences, and will make her debut here in Noel Coward's "Hay Fever," opening Tuesday, Dec. 9.

"Green Grow the Lilacs," a drama of western life by Lynn Riggs, has been placed in rehearsal by the Theater Guild. Helen Westley has one of the principal rôles, and others in the cast are Richard Hale, C. Edwin Brandt, and James Patterson. Among the incidental characters are thirty cowboys. The play will have its first acting in Boston, Dec. 8.

Philip Merivale, the star of "Death Takes a Holiday," had training in Shakespeare as a member of the celebrated Benson company in England. He is one of the few actors who do not care to appear as Shylock. But he is eager to do four of the Bard's historical plays—"King Richard II.," the two parts of "King Henry IV.," and "King Henry V."

The Jack and Jill players gave a version of "Gammer Gurton's Needle" at the Princess theater yesterday morning. The performance will be repeated Nov. 29 and Dec. 6.

Eva Le Gallienne will stage "Alison's House," by Susan Glaspell, at her Civic Repertory theater a week hence. The play recently had its first time on any stage in Liverpool.

GIFTED DAUGHTER

CORNELIA OTIS SKINNER.

OTIS SKINNER, reigning dean of the American stage, is proud of his gifted daughter Cornelia, and with good reason. She is a competitor of Ruth Draper in the difficult specialty of self-written dramatic character sketches and has won a loyal following. Miss Skinner is now giving a series of Sunday matinees at the Selwyn theater. She received her stage training with her father's companies, and was his leading woman in "Blood and Sand."

New Shows on Shubert List; Gotham Stage

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—[Special.]—The Shuberts have six productions under way for staging before the first of the year, and three others for the midwinter schedule. Of the half dozen, two are musical shows—"Arms and the Maid" and "My Twin Sister." The latter is a Berlin success which is being adapted by Henry Wagstaffe Gribble. The four plays are Pirandello's "As You Desire Me," a vehicle for Florence Reed called "Purity," a new piece by Ivor Novello called "The Truth Game," and one other.

The theatrical managers are hungry for new material. The New York Times will say tomorrow:

"At the Shubert headquarters the loudest laments are not over business or road conditions but over the dearth of new plays. Producers generally are not bringing them forth in the prolific manner of other seasons, and it is up to Shuberts to fill their houses either by preparing productions themselves or by backing those enterprises which show promise. The Erlanger office is a bit better off both because it has fewer New York houses and because it books the Theater Guild attractions which fill considerable time in the larger cities. This show famine has spread to the houses of the subway circuit, and few of them have immediate bookings beyond this week or next."

The next production of Chester Erskin, who staged "The Last Mile" and "Subway Express," and is now the chief executive of Frohman, Inc., will be "The House We Live In," by a new playwright named Leopold Atlas. Its scene is an east side tenement, and the stage setting will show four apartments at once. This sounds like an indoor "Street Scene."

A new play by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur is in the throes of composition. Jed Harris hopes to stage it in January.

Reports from Boston, toward which city Florence Reed is headed as the star of "Purity," are to the effect that the central rôle is a scrubwoman who has lived in the Paris slums for fifty years without succumbing to the moral looseness of her environment. Then along comes a young man of twenty . . . So the story begins.

The salary list of "The New Yorkers" is said to total $25,000 a week.

"The Greeks Had a Word for It," by Zoe Akins, is said to have worked its way up into the hit class.

Brock Pemberton will try his luck for the first time since "Strictly Dishonorable" Dec. 15. The play is called "Made in Hollywood"; its author is Donald Davis. The first performance will take place in Jackson Heights, which is the spot from which "Strictly Dishonorable" took its jump into prosperity. The latter play is still running on Broadway, and is also represented on the road.

Olive Borden is the latest picture actress to sign up for a whirl in the legitimate. She will start off Dec. 22 in a Bronx theater. Her play is called "The Devil Is a Lady."

B'way Openings

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Miss Barrymore's premiere in the play made from Julia Peterkin's novel and Arthur Hopkins' staging of a new comedy by Robert Sherwood seem to be the most interesting items on the first night list for the coming week. The playbills follow:

"Oh, Promise Me"—Opens tomorrow night at the Morosco theater. Howard Lindsay and Bertrand Robinson, who have collaborated before, are the authors of this comedy which, from advance reports, seems to be in a vein considerably different from "Tommy" and "Your Uncle Dudley." The company will include Lee Tracey, Donald Meek, Mary Phillips, Edward H. Robins, Frank Sylvester, and Eleanor Bedford.

"Scarlet Sister Mary" — Opens Tuesday night at the Ethel Barrymore theater. This dramatization is Miss Barrymore's excursion into "blackface." Her daughter will make her New York debut in the mother's company, which has been two months on tour. Other of its members are Estelle Winwood, Beatrice Terry, George Drew Mendum, Anita Rothe, Walter Gilbert, Horace Braham, William B. Mack, and John Roseleigh.

"First Night"—Opens Wednesday at the Eltinge theater. A melodrama by Frederick Rath, the scenes of which take place in the prison theater at Sing Sing. The players will include George MacQuarrie, Emily Graham, John Irwin, Donald Blackwell Alf Helton, and Edith Broder.

"This Is New York"—Opens Friday night at the Plymouth theater. Mr. Sherwood's comedy, and Mr. Hopkins' third production of the season. Acting in it will be Lois Moran, Geoffrey Kerr, Audrey Dale, Robert T. Haines, Ruth Hammond, Virginia Howell, and Sam Wren.

Vox Playgoer

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Thank you for beautifully saying in this morning's TRIBUNE about "Hotel Universe" just about what I felt last evening when I saw it. Outside of the theater very few of us could be hired to spend an evening in the company of any one of the characters in it, much less pay for the privilege.

One of the first things taught us in play-writing is, clearly state your problem and then work out its answer. I failed to find any legitimate problem in any part of it, and certainly no answer in any of its harangues.

I overheard this comment:

"How did you like it?"

"O, I don't know; well, maybe it ain't so worse."

ELIZABETH MEYERCORD CULLIS.

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Permit me to thank you for the good sendoff you gave "Julius Cæsar" as played by Fritz Leiber's company.

To schedule eight weeks of Shakespeare this year of business depression required courage and vision. Three weeks of the engagement remain. There should not be a single vacant seat. If parents only realized what joy and benefits they can give their children by briefly reviewing the stories of these plays and taking the children to see them there would not be a vacant seat.

Our boy at 8 saw Sothern and Marlowe play "The Merchant of Venice" in 1924. He has since seen Shakespearean plays whenever produced here. I know how he anticipates and enjoys them.

The Leiber productions measure up to standards set in my own experience during the last 25 years. The prices are reasonable and surely we should show our appreciation.

Toscanini Again Wields Baton of Philharmonic

Orchestra Undergoes the Usual Change.

By Joan King.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—[Special.]—Arturo Toscanini has returned to the helm of the New York Philharmonic. He has been in charge of that organization for but a little more than a week, but already a remarkable metamorphosis has taken place. Each year since the incomparable Italian leader first came to these shores to assume leadership, the same change has come about in the orchestra and each year it becomes more amazing. Seemingly but by the wave of a wand, a body of musicians, which for weeks has played in passable but quite ordinary fashion suddenly awakens to become, over night, an ensemble of perfection, of scintillating, magnificent oneness.

New York's music world has come to look for this change and no longer does the true lover of music hereabouts consider the launching of a new season properly achieved with the opening of the Metropolitan. Instead it is now the return of Mr. Toscanini to which he looks forward.

This year it was at the 2,572d concert of the orchestra's career that Mr. Toscanini made his première bow. Perhaps this may be considered to have been as fine a concert as the Philharmonic has offered. Certainly the violin section has never brought forth a fuller, richer tone; the brasses more golden notes; the solos of flute, oboe, and Clarinet been more artistically achieved. The program comprised, for this first Toscanini occasion, the Three Chorales by Bach-Resphighi, Beethoven's Symphony No. 1 in C major, and Brahm's Symphony No. 1 in C minor. This last named had never been performed before by Mr. Toscanini for a New York audience, and its performance was replete with revelations.

It goes without saying that to its last recesses Carnegie hall was filled and overflowing to welcome the vigorous gray haired master batonist. As always both orchestra and immense audience rose as one man as he strode across the stage and took his place on the conductorial dais.

Opera Singers in Recital.

In the same hall, just one evening previous to Mr. Toscanini's return, a large audience greeted two opera singers of well known accomplishments in joint recital. They were Heinrich Schlusnus, baritone of the Berlin State opera, and Clair Dux, soprano, formerly of the Metropolitan and the Chicago Opera companies. They devoted the entire evening to German lieder.

Mr. Schlusnus is endowed with a virile and resonant baritone of wide range. His fine singing was much appreciated on this occasion. In fact, he was so well liked that every number was recalled and after one song he made exactly ten bows. His share of solos he devoted to songs by Richard Strauss.

Miss Dux chose Schubert, Trunk, and Erich Wolff compositions. Her voice, which suggests, perhaps, both lyric and coloratura, was used with taste and musical feeling. Together the artists gave duets from Mozart's "The Magic Flute," "The Marriage of Figaro," Cornelius' "Ich und Du," and Schumann's "Unterm Fenster."

Delightfully Unusual.

The appearance of Miss Harriet Cohen was one of the most interesting among the usual allotment of piano recitals during recent days. The English pianist, who made her initial New York appearance last month in a concert of the Beethoven association, proved herself the possessor of a notable technical fluency and finish on this occasion. She is one of the European musicians who came here at the invitation of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge to take part in the October festival of chamber music in Chicago.

Her program was unusually unconventional for that of a piano recital. It began with Bach's Clavier concerto in D minor, in which she was accompanied by a string ensemble under George Barrere. Followed two Brahm's intermezzi, four short numbers by Manuel de Falla, four pieces by William Byrd, including "Fancie," new to America, and a sonata in G major by Arnold Dax dedicated to Miss Cohen and introduced by her to this country on this occasion. The "Fancie," recently transcribed from the original manuscript, was not only the first performance in the country but apparently the first or second anywhere since the sixteenth century.

SUBWAY FLAPPER

GLORIA MAY KELLY.

THERE are forty-two characters in "Subway Express," the melodrama now at the Erlanger theater, but in this crowd you will not be able to overlook the girl who plays the incidental flapper. She has nothing to do but chew gum and chatter with her boy friend, but she is so vividly true to type that Miss Kelly gets credit for a hit.

THE ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

By Fanny Butcher

IN NEW YORK.

About a year and a half ago a novel was published called "Schoolgirl." It caused much comment, not only for its contents — the crushes of girls on each other, and the attraction of the sexes, even among the very young supposedly locked up in their boarding schools —but mostly because it was the work of a schoolgirl herself, Carman Barnes, aged, incredibly, 15. In August of this year the author published her second novel, "Beau Lover." And now, at the age of 17, she is not only the author of two spectacular novels but co-author of a play made from her fifteen year old opus. "Schoolgirl" has just opened in New York. Armchair playgoers can find its plot, its atmosphere and its characters in the novel.

IN CHICAGO.

Tonight at the Civic Arts theater, 1358 North Clark street, the Studio Players will present "Miss Julie," by August Strindberg, thereby opening for armchair playgoers a door into one of the strangest of all talents. It is accepted by literary historians that Strindberg, Sweden's great, if not its greatest, modern literary figure, was partially a madman. He certainly suffered from the persecution mania. His three marriages were all hopelessly unsuccessful and known by the world to be full of bitterness and unhappiness for both the husband and the wife.

Strindberg, in everything he wrote, told the world of his bitterness. His wives were not silent, either. "Miss Julie," which was presented in 1888, followed a public denunciation of marriage on his part and a public prosecution of him.

It is said by authorities not only to open a new phase in Strindberg's dramatic work, but to form a landmark of importance in the history of European realism. Read it [it is published in the Modern Library] and, if it allures you, there are fifty-five volumes of Strindberg's collected works awaiting you [if you read Swedish] and many of them available in a translation being made under the auspices of the Anglo-Swedish Foundation, to which Bernard Shaw turned over the money which the Nobel prize carried with its award in 1926, something around $35,000.

And speaking of Bernard Shaw reminds us that "The Apple Cart" has finally been published in book form. But there is a catch in it for most armchair playgoers. It appears only in the new, very de luxe Ayot-St. Lawrence edition of the collected works of Bernard Shaw. It is volume 17 in a set which, if not at the moment entirely oversubscribed, certainly will never last over the Christmas rush.

There are only 1,790 sets published by William H. Wise & Co. The first volume is a great Shaw treasure, the first novel he ever wrote and one which has, until this edition, remained in the obscurity of manuscript form. There are many additions and a few subtractions from the prefaces, and a general over-Shawing on the author's part. It is unquestionably the one Shaw to own—if you can afford it! Meanwhile, "The Apple Cart" will surely be published in the regular edition by Brentano's before many more months have passed.

The Chicago Art theater, 410 South Michigan avenue, is offering an award (undefined) and royalties from the presentation of a play which it hopes to find in a contest open until Jan. 1 for a new play, preferably about life in the city. Ethel M. Colson Brazelton, Wallace Rice, and Fay Ehlert, author of "The Undercurrent," will be the judges in the contest, which is open to every one.

Operatic Arias Are Given Unusually Fine Recording

By Edward Moore.

[Tribune Music Critic.]

AS it happens, most of the records remaining over at the end of the month are not sets but single disks and, generally speaking, operatic. Wherefore, by the process of merely dipping in, and without any attempt at the logic of arrangement by merit, vocal range, or any of the other customary classifications, they come in this order.

In No. 7320 Victor presents Sigrid Onegin in two excerpts from Saint Saëns' "Samson et Dalila," the two being "Mon cœur s'ouvre à ta voix" and "Printemps qui commence." Here is one of the few true contralto voices left in the world and one of the rarely beautiful voices of the world, regardless of category. It has been faithfully recorded in these two luscious arias, although one can hardly escape the feeling that Mme. Onegin regards them more as matters of music than emotion. They have been made in Europe.

Another European recording, No. 8185, presents Fernand Ansseau and Marcel Journet in the scene between Faust and Mephistopheles in the latter part of the first scene of "Faust." Both these artists have at one time and another, though not at the same time, been members of the Chicago Opera company, and it was by no means good news for the organization when M. Ansseau, the tenor, decided that for reasons of his own he would rather stay on the other side of the Atlantic than return to Chicago.

In his case, his unfailingly honest singing becomes beautiful singing, and it would be a fine thing if Victor should decide to continue him in some of the later melodies of the famous opera. M. Journet, a considerably older artist, is still in the possession of a fresh, vigorous voice, and the duet of the scene goes with a great deal of an air.

For the sake of continuity, or at least as much continuity as possible, this record should be kept with another of the Victor list, American made this time. In 9697 the Metropolitan Opera chorus and orchestra sing the Kermesse chorus and a somewhat abbreviated version of the scene of the waltz under the direction of Giulio Setti. Both are in a lively, spirited pace, and both are about as well done as could be expected from any operatic chorus, a department of the practice of music where one somehow gets out of the habit of looking for perfect performances.

Tibbett at His Best.

Victor continues with 7353. Here Lawrence Tibbett takes time out from the films and the other activities that occupy his working time to record "Largo al Factotum" from "The Barber of Seville," and "Eri tu" from "A Masked Ball." The two famous arias are widely diverse in manner and style, and the famous baritone interprets them both to the best of his notable ability. His is one of the fine voices of the generation, and he sings Italian so clearly that it is evident he could be a brilliant advocate of singing in English. It is another case of expert recording. The unnamed orchestra shows up rather better than the orchestras of the foreign recordings. Victor selects "Largo al Factotum" as its record-of-the-month in the field of great music.

Back to Europe, to Berlin, to be exact, Victor sends out a record that will be of special interest to Chicago collectors. By the time this is printed, though the event has not yet happened at the time of writing, the Civic Opera company will have given its first performance of Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," and in No. 7319 Friedrich Schorr, the German baritone, sings two excerpts from the great work, on one side, "Wahn! Wahn! Ueberall Wahn!" and on the other, "Ein Kobold Half Wohl Da!" in which he is assisted by the Berlin State opera orchestra conducted by Leo Blech.

These are philosophical reflections by Hans Sachs and by no means the most exciting or the most famous parts of the opera. But they contain a great deal of Wagner musically as well as philosophically, and are therefore worth having. For Wagnerian reasons the record should be coupled with No. 1477, wherein the lovely voice of Elisabeth Rethberg makes public Senta's ballad from "Der Fliegende Hollaender," "Traft Ihr das Schiff," and "Doch, dass der Arme Mann."

Song and Dance Numbers.

After so much operatic music it will be as well to turn to some works in a lighter vein. 4904—"Lullaby," from "Erminie," and "When You're Away," from "The Only Girl," by Jessica Dragonette, with orchestra.

English Co-Stars.

An English play called "Cynara" is said to be headed toward the American stage, with Herbert Marshall and Edna Best engaged for the rôles that Gladys Cooper and Gerald Du Maurier are now acting in London. It will come under Shubert auspices, and sounds as if it might be Dramatic league, or subscription plan, stuff. H. M. Harwood, who wrote "The Man in Possession," is one of its authors.

Rowles
MENTHO SULPHUR

Try a dollar's worth of this $3 powder
AND GIVE YOUR SKIN A NATURAL FINISH

FOR that natural, ingenue finish you must choose your powder with utmost care. A very light shade makes the complexion spotty. An extra dark powder makes the face hard and old. Primrose House Beige blends perfectly with the skin, actually becoming a part of it, leaving the complexion smooth and youthful. It is so exquisitely fine that it never cakes or clogs, yet it clings for hours. Try it. This $3 powder now comes in dollar portions. The smartest shades, keyed to the mode.

At all better class drug and department stores, in boxes, $1 and $3. Primrose House, 595 Fifth Avenue, New York.

Two More Failures.

There were two other failures to keep Miss de Putti company. George C. Tyler, in association with the Erlanger interests, produced a play called "Mr. Samuel," adapted from a Comédie Française success by no less a person than Winthrop Ames, and that lasted but a single week.

And Charles L. Wagner staged a Rafael Sabatini drama, called "The Tyrant," which began to tremble in the balance the day after its first performance, and it will be shaking itself out of town, I fear, before many days are passed.

Both these plays were handsomely and generously staged. But neither offered the kind of entertainment that playgoers are buying, these desperate days. "Mr. Samuel" was a business man's story, an echo of that "business is business" type of play that was ephemerally popular twenty years ago.

The hero is a shrewd Jewish gentleman who binds his weak brothers and his weaker son into a strong firm, as the Rothschilds and the Guggenheims are presumed to have done. When business is bad they turn on him as a visionary. Mr. Samuel has a heart shock at 10 p. m. but recovers long enough in the last act to shout orders into a telephone which set Wall street on end. It is a bad time of year for Wall street plays. Too many people are trying to forget it. Edward G. Robinson gave a good performance in the name part.

All About the Borgias.

"The Tyrant," Mr. Sabitini's opus, was played in London five years ago by Matheson Lang. It is a Cesare Borgia story in full hose and doublet, seeking to intimate that Cesare was much more gentle than history gives him credit for being. He did not throw his brothers into the river and he really murdered very few people. None, in fact, who deserved to live. According, of course, to the Borgia standards.

It is the time Cesare was collecting smaller states in middle Italy, hoping when he had gathered enough power to contest the supremacy of Venice. To stop this march on Sogliola, Count Guido permits his daughter to offer herself as a diverting attraction.

Cesare sees through the plot and though he falls in love with the young woman and accepts her invitation to stay the night, next day he takes Soligola as planned.

Louis Calhern in full hose is the play's chief attraction, he being a slim and attractive figure and a good actor as the romanticized Borgia. Julia Hoyt, his wife, sat in the second row and smiled superiorly as she listened to other ladies rave about her husband. It may be this Calhern interest will keep "The Tyrant" going for a time. Lily Cahill is playing the sacrificing princess.

The party was over. We were bidding the hostess good-night, when I reached into my pocket for my silk scarf, but, failing to find it, decided that it must have been left in the adjoining room where we had taken off our wraps. Excusing myself, I walked back into the other room, where, by the faint light streaming in from the hall, I saw what I thought was my scarf lying upon a small table. I hurriedly flung the scarf around my neck, pulled up my coat collar, and started to rejoin the two girls.

Suddenly I heard the hostess saying, "Did you girls see that lovely radio scarf which my sister sent me for my birthday?" and while yet speaking the three were walking towards me. Entering the room, the hostess' eyes traveled from one piece of furniture to the other, but, failing to find the scarf, she remarked that it was strange it should be missing, as she was certain she had laid it on the small table which stood near the door.

My mistake gradually began to dawn upon me and I felt the color mounting to my face when her gaze rested upon a point of green silk which stuck out from under my coat.

My embarrassment reached its climax when I opened my coat to remove the radio scarf and discovered that I was wearing my own scarf underneath it. Evidently I put it on unconsciously when I put on the rest of my wraps.

With much sputtering and mumbling I tried to explain the matter to the hostess while doubtful looks followed me as I left her house. J. F.

Both Got to the Party.

One night a girl asked me to attend with her a party given by a friend of hers. Giving her the excuse that I was too busy, I went instead to a party at the home of another girl. To say I was embarrassed when the hostess attempted to introduce me to the girl whom I had told that I was too busy to go out with would be putting it mild! N. H.

THE VOICE OF THE FAN

If you would like your letters printed in this column please write on ONE side of the paper ONLY. If you want a personal answer send stamped, self-addressed envelope—PLEASE!

This Critical Duty.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have made an interesting discovery, one which will tend to revolutionize my ideas and prove invaluable to me as a movie fan. I have found that my "movie mind" has become lazy, and I have failed in picture diagnosis, which has caused me considerable grief and sometimes uncalled for anger when I read a picture criticism. In the past I have been dwelling altogether on the performer's best points and because I like a star I am likely to overlook his shortcomings. After all, a man's best friend is often his most critical. We owe it to our favorites to view their work with a more critical eye.

I have finally arrived at this review of yours which has caused me all these mental somersaults. [Stop, thief! that's my expression.] It is Norma Talmadge's "Du Barry" to which I am referring. I glory in Norma's histrionic ability and of course I feel badly when her rôle is not her best. She is a fine actress and she has given many fine performances, but "Du Barry" is by no means a flop. It is a lavish thing, all right, and Norma, after almost eighteen years in the movies, looks about as beautiful as in the days of "Secrets."

When I first read your review I was infuriated. I glowered, but finally cooled down to my usual 97. I'm always in a battling mood when I think that "our Norma" has not been done well by [the dangling preposition]. I decided to revisit "Du Barry" and compare Norma's performance with the exotic Pola Negri's. [I'm also unearthing old movies and I saw "Passion" in a ten center not so long ago.]

Pola Negri is the temperamental type and the rôle of Du Barry fit her like a glove. I think it was in the more frivolous moments of the picture where Norma fell down. Du Barry wasn't a Bible student, and Norma struck me as being too refined in some places. A little more spunk in the coquettish moments would have helped. [Sister Connie could lend a hand there.] But during the grief-stricken moments Norma outshines Pola. Norma can register grief to perfection. You'll agree that Miss Talmadge is better in less turbulent rôles, like Moonyeen in "Smilin' Through" or Polly Pearl in "The Lady."

Anyway, two stars means a good picture. My compensation. If movie fans would only learn to be a bit more critical, many of these cuthroat letters that critics receive might become less bloodthirsty. I really am going to regard your reviews in a new light hereafter.

Sincerely, CHARLES McCORMICK.

Editor's note—Fair and square! That's you, sir!

Points Out Errors.

Good Morning: I hope I'm not being impertinent by sending this message, but if I am, then excuse me, please.

I fully agree with you when you gave "The Big Trail" 4 stars but I know that there were two very noticeable "slips" in the filming—one, when Lopez was removing Red Flack's boots after crossing the big river the soles of the said boots still retained the imprint of the maker. This situation really should have called for well worn boots; the other, Breck Coleman uses the same horse [or Roanies Siamese Twin] after he returns from the Buffalo hunt, as he had before.

Barring these two slight imperfections I agree when you say that this is an extraordinary film.

May I thank you for many interesting facts and sketches on movie life.

Your erstwhile fan,

ELEANOR P. W.

Editor's note: Thank YOU!

Objects to "Adults Only."

My dear Miss Tinée: After an absence of four years I have returned to the city of my first love, to the Cubs, and to your delectable cinema column. It is a pleasure to find you still on the job, I assure you.

I am writing this in a rather philosophical "what-is-Chicago-coming-to" mood, for I have had numerous rude shocks in the local moving picture palaces since my return. I object very much to the amazing number of those silly "adults only" signs, which I find about the movie lanes. How come? Why in the name of all that is right and proper, are a dozen ordinary and unobjectionable photoplays given an aura of naughtiness, of interest and piquancy, that they do not by any stretch of the imagination deserve? Why has censorship in Chicago sunk to a level of that in Ohio and Pennsylvania?

I have seen perhaps a half dozen of these things during the last month [not because I am over fond of the slightly risque but because about 50 per cent of all the pictures are so labeled], and not one of them proved to be in the least outside the pale. They were perfectly all right for my aged grandmother and my young niece to see, if they had been fools enough to go, as I did.

I am reminded of the simple, puerile old maids who objected to the scene of nude doughboys taking a shower in "The Big Parade" a few years ago, and I wonder if they have become Chicago's judges in the matter of cinematic moral turpitude.

Having said my say, I shall now retire into the gloom of the ever restless minority.

Most sincerely,

CHARLEY.

Editor's note: Restlessness promotes growth.

Conrad as Balm, Pro and Con.

Mear Mae: Didn't you like Conrad Nagle in "A Lady Surrenders"? Don't you agree with me that he should be given more rôles wherein he plays a gentleman? I cannot think of a single actor in the movies who expresses more intelligence, refinement, and courtesy while still remaining all man than C. N.

I wonder to how many women, like myself disillusioned with love and marriage, C. N. has been "the balm in Gilead." We see his face, we hear his voice, we sense the fineness behind the man, and buckling on the armour of courage go on hoping that we, too, may some day know a man like C. N.

Please, Mr. Producers, don't waste C. N. on any more crook stories.

A WRITER AND AN ACTRESS.

P. S.: Incidentally, Mae, I buy THE TRIBUNE just so that I may be cheered by your columns. So here's to both Mae and C. N.

Will you please print this? Thanks!

Editor's note: Y'wekkum! Also I thank you. I like Mr. Nagel, but he's no "balm of Gilead" to me.

Five Nations of South America Honor Bolivar

Pay Tribute 100 Years Late.

SANTA MARTA, Colombia.—(AP)—In this little seaport of the Caribbean, where five ungrateful nations permitted Simon Bolivar to die alone, 100 years ago, a grateful modern generation will pay tribute, Dec. 17, to the liberator of South America.

Colombia, where he died; Venezuela, where he was born; Ecuador, Peru, and Bolivia will join in the program here. For in this town is buried the heart of the man who declared:

"War is my element, its perils my glory. I am the man of difficulties."

Spirit Undimmed.

He said that after he and his nondescript army of barefooted, ill equipped volunteers had fought through jungle and over mountains against trained soldiery to wrest half a continent from the Spanish crown.

He died here Dec. 17, 1830, of tuberculosis in the house of a Spaniard. When Bolivar's countrymen denied him shelter, Don Joaquinn de Mier gave the arch foe of Spain a bed and a clean shirt that he might die decently.

Bolivar was 47 when he died. He was only 22 when he started his career as a liberator and he was destined to undergo 19 years of hardship and warfare before his work was accomplished.

Elected First President.

In 1819 the battle of Boyaca finally gave Colombia its liberty and in 1821 victory at Carabobo freed Venezuela. Ecuador was liberated in 1822 by Gen. Sucre, one of Bolivar's lieutenants, and Peru and Bolivia were cleared of Spanish rulers two years later.

Bolivar was elected first president of Colombia, but could not cope with politics and politicians. He resigned in January, 1830, sickened under the storm of abuse that followed him and died before the year was out.

Belgians Prefer Foreign Beers to Native Product

BRUSSELS.—(AP)—Increasing popularity of foreign beers literally has the Belgian brewers' backs to their barrels.

To combat the increase in imports, with the attendant drop in consumption of Belgian beer, the brewers have organized a research bureau to improve their product.

Since 1925 a school for master brewers has existed in Brussels, and last term there were 45 pupils. Thirty-one sat for the passing out examination and twelve came through with "grand distinction" and ten with "distinction."

All this should lead to the "perfection of production," according to a manifesto of the brewers, but beer from abroad still sells well.

Viennese Ex-Husbands Urge Dole for Ex-Wives

VIENNA.—(AP)—Unemployment dole for divorced women has been petitioned of the Austrian minister of justice by the Vienna League of Men's Rights.

The society, which devotes much of its efforts toward abolishing the burden of alimony which most of its members carry, argued that a housewife's duties constitute a regular trade or profession. Therefore, the petition said, when a woman was deprived of her regular work, she should be placed on the unemployment dole list until she found some other suitable job.

Critics of the move saw in the petition only an attempt to change alimoney from a private into a public debt.

a few of this week's crop gleaned from Broadway's humorists:

When Ina Claire was getting married to Jack Gilbert some well wisher piped: "How does it feel to be married to a star?"

"Ask Mr. Gilbert, he might know," responded the lady.

Then there is the one about Harold Lloyd, his favorite camera man and a taxi driver. The fact that the camera man was a friend of Lloyd's so impressed the taxi driver that he got up courage to hit the picture taker for a loan. The picture man couldn't see a loan, but arranged for a second hand overcoat to keep the shivering driver warm. The next day good luck showered on the camera man. A fellow paid back a $75 loan that was two years old. The camera man is looking for the taxi driver to help him celebrate.

A Good Samaritan.

While on the unemployment theme it appears that the New York Telephone company and the Astoria studio are working together these days. Paramount's casting director tried in vain yesterday to get a certain actor for a part. The actor's phone was not working, for good reasons. The telephone traffic manager was advised of the difficulty and he asked if the actor was at present unemployed. Told that was the case, Mr. Telephone Man said, "I'll fix that. I'll just send a messenger around and tell him you have a job for him."

For several days, recently, this town was treated to the spectacle of an Amos 'n' Andy taxicab running around on its last legs. It looked like just a piece of junk, but it is insured for $100,900 and cost $257 to have it shipped here from the coast to advertise the two black boys. Well, that's what I was told.

Right now the wives are coming in for a lot of breaks in the movies. First National began the circle with "The Office Wife," which probably has caused a lot of divorces. Now Fox is planning a feature to be called "Doctors' Wives," which will give away a lot more secrets.

Italian Workmen Brave Alps to Seek Jobs from French

MOUTIERS, Savoie, France.—Hungry and cold, and at the risk of perishing from exposure or of being buried in snow, Italian workmen traveling in groups, have recently crossed the Alps in search of work in France.

Harrowing tales of misery and hardships were told by a party of eleven, which negotiated the Little St. Bernard pass recently and reeling, staggering from fatigue and cold, reached the village of Bourg Saint Maurice.

The party was composed of twelve when it left Italy, but one of their number disappeared in a snow drift, high in the Alps. French "Blue Devils" and Italian carabineers searched the pass for the missing man but failed to find him.

Inasmuch as the men had no work contracts, the eleven survivors were deported into Italy going through Modane in a nice, warm third class passenger car.

The problem of keeping these impecunious Italian workmen out of France has become a serious one for the French frontier authorities.

Indians Love Ceremony.

Free Masons in the film industry, having organized their own club some years ago, Elks who are producers, actors, directors, writers or mechanicians, are now doing the same. The industry is so well organized that there are two conflicting unions of electricians. Even the American Indians, who take part in pictures, have a loose knit organization of their own. One of their stunts is to "adopt" a prominent actor or film notable, every now and then, with the new red man guest of honor at a big party.

The Indians often have a lot of sly smiles to themselves. When a group of braves decide it would be advantageous to induct some film star into some tribe (which often is not even represented here) there always is a big spread at which a feather bonnet and a socalled red skin name are bestowed on some highly flattered film celebrity. Richard Dix was recipient of one of these Indian baptisms this week.

Maurice Cleary, husband of May McAvoy, is suing Gloria Swanson for his commission on the deal he put over with United Artists concerning Gloria's contract. He claims she owes him $7,500 a picture for each of six pictures that net over $200,000 and that three have already done so.

Now comes the announcement that "Reaching for the Moon," the picture Doug Fairbanks and Bebe Daniels are playing in, is not a musical show. Only two musical numbers are used and they are not to be sung by Fairbanks, he announces.

Virginia Cherrill, Chaplin's leading lady in the as yet unreleased "City Lights," has also been signed by Fox. Her first rôle will be opposite Frank Albertson.

For 36 years, men and women by the million have settled stomach disturbances with a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet. A reliable remedy; a real relief. And you have never tried them! In 1894 a druggist sold his first package of Stuart's. Today they are a drug-store staple. The first thing that comes to mind when the stomach needs a sweetener. No burning soda! Just a happy combination of Calcium Carbonate (2½ times more effective than soda) Magnesia and other valuable ingredients. In ten minutes—or less—acidity is overcome; all that sourness dispelled.

Many parents have come to realize these tablets are ideally suited to children's digestive disorders. The tremendous sale of the family size boxes is proof of that. Next time a young stomach is complaining, think of Stuart's.

MAKE THIS TEST!

Purchase a 25c, handy pocket tin of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets from your druggist, use after meals and be convinced it is not necessary to suffer the distresses of indigestion.

Dansan Getting Lively Welcome from New York

Deb Parties Show Mastery of New Steps.

By Nancy Randolph.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—[Special.]—There has been a perfect dearth of divorces this week, due, I dare say, to the fact that we are in the midst of the Metropolitan season and society is much too busy being social to find time for domestic brawlings. What with debuts, balls, and theatrical openings there is activity enough to occupy even the most zealous of social round-the-towners.

There is a terrific revival in terpsichorean interest these days and, from what I can see, it looks as if the dear old fox trot, which has been with us since Hector was a well known pup, is doomed to pass—not immediately, but with a gradual certainty.

As every one knows, Havana is to be the place this winter. Palm Beach will be only a stopping off place, and Havana is wild about the new dances that emanate either from Spain or the Argentine. Not even considering the tango, which none of us do very well, there are the Paso Doblo, the Dansan and Cuba's own dance, the Rumba.

Chance to Improvise.

New York's society is going in for the Dansan this winter. The tempo is much faster than that of the fox trot, particularly the funereal manner in which fox trots are being played at present, but the best of the Dansan is that the steps are easy and one can improvise to his heart's content.

Pierre's new place is giving all the deb parties the new music. At the Samuel W. Reyburns' dinner dance for their daughter Frances and her fiancé, Freddy Abbott, the party insisted on being given Dansan after Dansan, and such lights as the Webb Hilberts, the Charles Tebbetts, Roger Hillhouse and Joy Mayn showed quite a mastery of the new dancing. Incidentally, Pierre has imported a pair of true exponents of the Spanish and South American folk dances in Medrano and Donna.

Bills and Wherewithal.

There are several bits of scandal going the rounds. One of them points a moral which I cannot quite decipher. In these days of busy matrons and maids it isn't sufficient that a young man provide the wherewithal to pay a lady's bills—no, indeed—he also has to provide the excuse for footing her expenses.

All of which is apropos a young man, recently divorced, who has far too much money, and a young lady well known in society through her own and her mother's efforts and the family name, who are rather fond of one another. There isn't much chance of their being married—neither of them likes to take a plunge into matrimony—he his second and she her first—so instead the young lady has been given a roving commission to see to the purchasing of many things which will aid the comfort of the young man while he is living in town. All the people from whom she purchases articles pay her a decent commission and thus the whole affair—i. e., the paying of her bills—is quite legitimate and not to be questioned. But what society doesn't know about the matter is negligible indeed, and the two concerned know that every one knows. Hi-ho, we live a funny life in town these days.

A Quiet Wedding.

We have had weddings this week, quite a few of them, in fact, and some have been large and others in the quiet fashion with only a single attendant to wait upon the bride.

One of the pretty weddings of the week was that of Rosalie Evans, daughter of Hartman Kuhn Evans, and Van Vechten Burger, son of Mrs. Clarence Chew Burger, who were married in the tiny chapel of St. Bartholomew's church, which is still in the process of being enlarged.

The Rev. Allen Evans of Hewlett, L. I., a cousin of the bride, officiated, standing at an altar banked with red chrysanthemums and a chancel rail that boasted both red and white blooms.

Rosalie was attended only by her sister, Evelyn. The bride wore a gown of white and silver lame, medieval in style with a square neckline and long, tight sleeves. A belt of twisted silver cord, knotted in front, fell to the hem of her gown. Her veil was of white tulle, trimmed with pearls draped tightly over a cap of cloth of silver. She carried a sheaf of calla lilies.

Her sister was in splendid contrast. Evelyn wore a gown of ruby velvet with a long, full skirt and a short, flaring jacket, fitted at the waistline. Her hat was of red velvet with a drooping ostrich plume, and she carried a muff of shirred red velvet, edged with sable. It was a striking ensemble, indeed.

Whitney-Richardson.

Clarence Chew Burger Jr. was his brother's best man and the ushers included Paul Bancroft Jr., Otto Harry Gruner Jr., Henry Clarkson Scott, Lawrence N. Snell, Theodore Bates, Arthur Greer, Robert Simkins, and Harkness Edwards of Pittsburgh.

Rosalie attended the Spence school and Miss MacLean's in Paris. She was presented at the court of St. James's in June of 1925. Her debut came the following season at the Ritz-Carlton.

Another important wedding of the week, a large one this time, was that of Hope Richardson, elder daughter of the Courtlandt Richardsons, to Howard Frederic Whitney in St. James' church, far up on Madison avenue, but still a favorite place of worship with society.

Miss Elaine Richardson was her sister's maid of honor and the other bridal attendants included Mrs. Thomas Welles Durant, Mrs. G. Douglas Debevoise, Mrs. Charles Francis Smithers, Mrs. Walter S. Hoyt, Carolyn Whitney, Louise Coburn, Natalie Ponvert, Mrs. H. Keasley Dramhall of Morristown, and Virginia Goldsbury of Sewickley, Pa. Tiny Don Stevens, Hope's cousin, was page.

MISS MARGUERITE WATSON, the daughter of Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, is considered one of the prettiest of this year's debutantes. She wore for her recent debut reception a frock of ciel tulle trimmed with stars embroidered in silver. Mrs. John Stuart Coonley Jr. is one of the young women working in behalf of the annual bazaar for the benefit of Grant hospital to be held by the women's auxiliary at the Drake on Tuesday, Dec. 9. Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy is assisting with arrangements for the dinner to be given by Henry H. Porter on Dec. 2 to discuss the finances of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society. Mrs. William L. Hodgkins is a member of the women's committee working with Governor Emmerson's relief commission.

Service Club Revue and Dance Will Benefit Mt. Sinai Hospital

By Roberta Nangle.

FRIENDS of the Service Club of Mount Sinai hospital are being asked to lay aside a few dollars for the club's annual benefit before Christmas shopping depletes their pocketbooks. Last year the proceeds of a theatrical benefit and dance made a substantial addition to the club's budget, so the benefit is to be repeated this year on Wednesday evening, Dec. 3, at the Aragon ballroom.

The program will include the second edition of the members' revue, entitled "Service à la Carte," a fashion show, and dancing. Mrs. B. H. Baskin and Mrs. S. S. Dick are chairmen of the affair and Mrs. J. A. Manfield is president of the club.

The Service club, like the women's auxiliary of similar institutions, is inspired by the urge to be useful to Mount Sinai hospital. After its organization in 1920, its earliest aim was to serve the hospital through the nurses.

Improve Student Quarters.

In 1926, following a tour of the nurses' home, the Service club members made the student nurses' quarters more livable by remodeling and redecorating at a cost of several thousand dollars which resulted in the attraction of a larger and better class of students for the hospital. The growth was so marked that in 1927 additional funds were furnished for further housing facilities.

Because a tired nurse in training with practically no resources cannot do her best work, the Service club furnishes partial relaxation weekly by sending student nurses to the theater and the opera. The allotment for this fund was doubled two years ago to take care of the enlarged class.

Having done everything possible for student nurses, the Service club inaugurated the outstanding department of its work, a special nursing service. In needy cases the organization furnishes trained nurses recommended by the hospital administration. The immediate bedside care thus provided has often been the means of saving an ebbing life.

Fills Surgical Requests.

The Service club also fills requests for wheel chairs, braces, and other surgical appliances. Linens used in surgical and obstetrical rooms are made at sewing meetings held every second and fourth Tuesday at the Hollywood Kenmore hotel. The regular club meetings are scheduled for the first Tuesday of each month at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

The present membership of the club numbers more than 600. Resources for its work at the hospital come largely from membership dues, a memorial fund and honor roll, and such benefits as the one now being planned for Dec. 3. The net income for 1929 was $6,500.

WHEN CHICAGO WAS YOUNG

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, May 10, 1875.

DEAR JULIA:

I am hastening to reply to your prompt answer to my inquiry about a school for young Martha. I think, as you say, Farmington might be a good choice, being in the country. Yes, I have considered Smith and Vassar, but I dread having her away for four years, and Martha herself thinks she never could pass the college examinations. Mrs. Willard's school at Troy, New York, has been suggested, too. Well, we shall have time to consider the matter before autumn makes a choice imperative.

We attended a pretty wedding this week. Miss Nelly Hutchinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Hutchinson, was married to Eugene Lancaster, on the sixth. Mr. Hutchinson is a friend of Will's and one of the best known operators on the Board of Trade. He has been a very successful man. Mrs. Hutchinson is a fine woman, one of the best mothers I ever knew. The Hutchinsons attend St. Paul's Universalist church and are devoted to this church. The bride is a lovely girl, and the groom, Mr. Lancaster, a fine young man, connected with one of our large wholesale houses.

The wedding took place at the Hutchinson home on Wabash avenue, near Fourteenth street. Dr. Ryder of St. Paul's officiated. The bride's gown was of white silk, decorated with orange blossoms, and she surely looked lovely. The bride's maids (Katie Hutchinson and Lydia Forrest) wore white tarletan. Katie's dress was ornamented with scarlet flowers and Miss Forrest's had trimmings of blue flowers. I wish I could describe how pretty this was. Mr. Judah and Calvin Cobb were groomsmen.

Will had a long talk at the wedding with young Charlie Hutchinson (the bride's brother) and has been talking about him ever since. Will thinks he is an unusual young fellow, and says he wishes he could persuade the young man to study law and come into the office of Freeman & Esmond. Charlie Hutchinson is very popular and has uncommon business ability, so that in whatever calling he entered he would undoubtedly be successful. George Howland, principal of the Chicago High school, says Charlie Hutchinson was an almost perfect student during his course there. He is now with his father in the commission business—B. P. Hutchinson & Son. His father founded the Corn Exchange bank, too—one of our important financial institutions.

We are sorry to hear that poor Mrs. Abraham Lincoln, who lives here, has had a nervous breakdown. One can hardly wonder at it, with all she has been through. Being in the White House during the civil war was enough of a strain, even without the tragic death of her husband, to which she was a witness. It must have been awful for her. Poor woman. They say she is haunted by the fear that Chicago is to be destroyed by fire again, and she has gone to the bank and removed all her valuables, in order to take them out of the city, in case the dreaded conflagration comes. Her son, Robert T. Lincoln, a lawyer here, is most kind and attentive to her. One hears nothing but praise for his conduct. I wish our country had been more generous in its provision for Mrs. Lincoln. Even the small pension given her, after her husband's death, was the subject of controversy and haggling in congress, you remember. She certainly has reason to think republics ungrateful.

We are reading aloud, "Boys and Girls in Biology," by Sarah Hackett Stevenson, and finding it most instructive and interesting, though it is supposed to have been written for juvenile minds. Dr. Stevenson is a Chicago woman of whom we are proud. She was graduated from one of Chicago's medical colleges as valedictorian of her class, and later studied with Huxley. This book is based on Huxley's lectures. Dr. Stevenson seems to know how to interest young readers, and our Martha has found botany can be made engrossing, instead of a bore, as she has always thought it.

We were noticing in today's paper that Charles B. Farwell has sold 72 feet on Wabash avenue, between Washington and Madison streets (the site of the old Farwell dry goods store), for $63,000 cash. Owners are holding property on Wabash avenue at about $1,000 a front foot. Don't you think that shows our city is established on quite a solid foundation? From Van Buren street north, the future of Wabash avenue seems quite assured. The delay in laying the horse car tracks is holding it back. Cars are urgently needed, but for some reason, after tearing up the road, the company isn't laying the tracks, as promised. Do you have such troubles in New York? I suppose all large cities are like that. The trail of politics is over the city.

Speaking of politics makes me think to tell you something we heard at a meeting last night. A speaker said, in stentorian tones: "Such conditions will come, as sure as Romeo built Rome." Will whispered that probably Susan B. Anthony's brother Mark was one of Rome's greatest citizens.

Much love, Your old friend,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Mrs. Lamont Is Guest of Honor at Paris Tea

Returns from Cure at Baden-Baden.

By May Birkhead.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special.] — The distinguished Chicagoans now in Paris include Mrs. Robert P. Lamont, the wife of the secretary of commerce in President Hoover's cabinet. After taking the neuritis cure at Baden-Baden she has returned here and is stopping at the Hotel Pont Royal on the left bank of the Seine, preferring the atmosphere of old Paris to the modern quarters. She was the guest of honor recently at a tea given by Welles Bosworth and his wife at their attractive apartment in the Avenue Victor Hugo.

The conversation ranged from Versailles to Chicago with a detour to Egypt. The host is the architect for the Rockefeller Foundation restorations in France and mentioned the resuscitation of a fountain behind the Grand Trianon in the far corner of a park in Versailles, whose existence for a hundred years has been overlooked. During Mr. Rockefeller's recent visit to Versailles he had the moving experience of seeing this fountain play after a century of disuse.

A Curious Dream.

Mr. Bosworth is particularly fond of Chinese things, having many works of art of old China in his apartment. He showed a mysterious painting and told the story of a haunting dream of an eagle plucking its breast, whence issued an eagle. Three times this was repeated and then the eagle flew away. The next morning he received from a friend this Chinese painting of an eagle perched on a branch, plucking its breast.

Mrs. Lamont, with her alert and varied interests, is especially fond of Egyptian architecture, painting and sculpture, and admired Mr. Bosworth's Egyptian pieces. She is leaving soon on the George Washington for home.

Consults with La Loux.

Among her Chicago friends whom Mrs. Lamont arrived in time to see were Edward Bennett, architect, and his wife, who have just sailed for home. Mr. Bennett has been in consultation here with Victor La Loux of the Institute de France. This eminent Frenchman has been the teacher for generations of architects at the Beaux Arts and among his pupils are numbered a large portion of the leading architects of our country.

Saturday M. La Loux celebrated his 80th birthday by giving a large party which was attended by several well known Americans who studied under him at the Beaux Arts, also Clyde Du Vernet Hunt, the sculptor, who is leaving soon to take his statue of Lincoln to Chicago. It will be recalled that M. La Loux was the consultant architect not only for the Chicago exposition, but for the new Amsterdam embassy building here on the Place de la Concorde at the corner of Rue Boissy d'Anglas and Avenue Gabriel, and he is using the original plans of Gabriel, an old French architect, which he was lucky enough to find.

Arts Club Hears Mary Borden in Talk on Authors

Literati, Social Lights in Audience.

By Cousin Eve.

THE Arts club supper Sunday night in honor of Mary Borden was a tremendous affair, crowded, gay, and interesting. Who was not avid to see this modern woman straight from London's inner literary guild, and to hear her reflections upon her contemporaries?

Mary Borden was born in Chicago, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Borden, who occupied for many years the gray stone house on the north corner of Bellevue place and the drive, in which today Mrs. Waller Borden figures as one of Chicago's leading, charming hostesses. Mary is a sister of John Borden, a leading citizen and sportsman, and another sister, Joyce, is married and lives in New York. The younger Bordens inherited a great fortune from their father, and later another from their grandfather Borden, who lived to a great age, in Lake View avenue.

Reared in Pious Atmosphere.

They were brought up in an atmosphere of great piety, to which Mary Borden referred in this way: She said her friendship with Bernard Shaw was born years ago when she told him of running away from school to hear "Man and Superman," and her family thought she would "be eternally damned."

Mary Borden is Personality with a capital. She is charm. Slender, with heavy lidded, light eyes (her last book is "The Woman with White Eyes"), a fluff of dark hair cut straight across the neck, a large humorous mouth and a delightful smile. She is smart, but negligently so, and unmistakably an intellectual. In a ruffled black velvet frock with jacket, jewelless but for long earrings, she sketched, in a high, Anglicized voice, an artistic London background—drawn curtains, murky atmosphere, a glowing coal fire, people with freezing backs, gooseflesh, burning hands, tea, toast.

Chelsea vs. Bloomsbury.

She told how the Chelsea of William Morris is being downed by the Bohemian effrontery of Bloomsbury (just as in Paris Montmartre has given way to Montparnasse). She is a phrase maker—the exotic Virginia Woolf, idol of Bloomsbury, she called "the Mad Madonna of London." She rated Edgar Wallace a "pure genius," and bracketed him with H. G. Wells and Arnold Bennett. The latter was called writer of twenty-five novels, but "only three good ones." Wallace's background of racing stakes, races, underworld, the tremendous pressure of his life, were most diverting, his six secretaries, his forthcoming play with theater, actors, staff engaged, date set, but not a word of the drama written as yet.

Opposed to Wallace were the vagaries of Maurice Baring, a modern mystic, who belongs to the great world and has lived all over it. She related with humor the story of the elegant ex-diplomat striding across St. Peter's piazza in Rome, a basket of fresh eggs on his arm. Ultimately he smashed an egg on each step of the basilica.

A Canny Scotsman.

I enjoyed her light hit at Sir James Barrie—Scotsman. Struck with an idea at a dinner, he economically writes it on his cuff instead of passing it along to the party. Lastly, a side step to Paris, with a most striking picture of Marcel Proust, always writing in the dead of night, a vacant flat above and below, to insure quiet, and crossing Paris on foot during an air raid, to hear an Italian pronounce a certain phrase.

"That was real art," said Mary Borden. Every writer of fiction in town seemed to be at Mrs. Carpenter's supper table, and also Gen. Edward Spears, the blonde and soldierly husband of the author, whom she describes as up to the ears in politics and hunting, two of the three diversions of the English great world, racing being the third.

Among the noted there were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamill, the Chauncey Borlands, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Dr. and Mrs. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Murry Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. John E. May, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Traylor, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bradley, and Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank.

A collection of Renoir's early nudes and Riviera gardens on the walls greatly intrigued the supper guests as they ate, and the club was a rare picture, with its fresh white flowers and candles and the subdued elegance of its new décor.

The Arts club has the distinction of not having lost one member during the late unpleasantness in the money market, which speaks eloquently for its popularity.

Plan London Trip.

Its gifted president and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Carpenter, are off for London after Christmas. Their daughter, "Ginnie," tall and sweet and fair as fair can be, goes on ahead to help install the Persian exhibition at Burlington house in London.

When Dr. Arthur Pope was here a fortnight ago, lecturing one morning at the Arts club before a great audience on that remote subject, "Persian Architecture," the matter was arranged. Ginnie goes to London as aide to Dr. Pope. But the real objective of the Carpenters is China, and not London. John A. Carpenter, at present in the east and not in the best of health, is taking a cure in order to get ready for China.

With her marvelous taste, Mrs. Carpenter will undoubtedly do some shopping in Peking which will result in added beauty to Chicago and increased collections of rare ideas and objects.

Absent from Large Parties.

Owing to the serious illness of John H. Winterbotham, his family is absent these days from large parties. He is at home in the topmost apartment, newly built at 1301 Astor street, the family having only recently moved in.

Mrs. Joseph Coleman is another among the absent these days. Latterly having rented her apartment in

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

DO you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or aged complexion is one fair to look upon? Nature causes the normal skin to peel off in tiny, unseen, flour-like particles, a little each day, renewing the complexion of youth naturally, but there comes a time when this skin shedding slows up. Worry, overwork, sickness, inactivity are reasons that cause the face to be blotchy, discolored, pimply and old looking. The thing to do, if you wish to look your prettiest at all times, is to assist nature in the process of absorption by using pure Mercolized Wax. Get an ounce at any drug store or beauty counter and use as directed. It gently but surely peels away the outer scarf skin, removing freckles, pimples, blackheads or a muddy complexion. The underneath skin, now in evidence, is clear, pink, fresh and velvety, and the entire face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty.
To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines we recommend a face lotion of unusual merit. One ounce powdered saxolite and one-half pint witch hazel.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

upper Astor street to Mrs. Leverett Thompson and her daughter, Laura, she was established at the Lake Shore drive, and took a little cure in the Passavant hospital, of which she is president of the woman's board. Mrs. Coleman's recent guest, Mrs. Bruce Clark, was greatly feted during her stay. A daughter-in-law of Mrs. John M. Clark, and sister-in-law of Cecil Clark Davis, the distinguished painter of portraits, she was in years past a young married belle of Chicago, and now lives in New York, as do the Clarks.

The news from Cecil Davis is of a condition following typhoid which has prevented her from painting for months. At their summer place in Marion, Mass., she spent the entire season resting. Anything so foreign to Cecil Davis as illness is hard to imagine. She and her art both have backbone.

En Route to Other Cities.

Many noted people are flitting through Chicago these days. Among them last week were the L. Hamilton McCormicks, who were almost precipitate in their flight from station to station en route to New York. Robert Hall McCormick met his aunt and uncle, but apparently was unable to detain them over night, although they promised to return soon. The McCormicks for the last year have had an apartment at the Mark Hopkins hotel in San Francisco and have greatly enjoyed motoring over the state of gold and oil.

The Hamilton McCormicks are much [illegible] in Chicago's highest circles. Mrs. McCormick's beauty, amiability, and kindness are proverbial, and their large, hospitable house at the northeast corner of Ontario and Rush streets, which overlooks on the north Mrs. Emmons Blaine's gardens, is empty indeed.

Other visitors from west of the Rockies were Senator and Mrs. Tasker L. Oddie of Nevada, who stayed with Mrs. R. T. McKeever at 1500 Lake Shore drive for a day or two, on the way to Washington. The Oddies have many Chicago friends and several parties were arranged for their pleasure.

Some of the Lake Foresters were greatly stimulated this week by invitations to 8:30 Sunday breakfast—or was it 7:30 a. m.?—in honor of the young Baron d'Oppuyers of Belgium. This visitor brought letters from the Belgian embassy to Judge and Mrs. Clarence Goodwin, but he was so quickly booked up in town, that breakfast was the only time that seemed to be open to this hospitable family.

A Charming Luncheon.

An interesting luncheon of the other day was given by Mrs. Arthur Small for some army women in her charming Division street house. Afterwards, a band of distinguished French officers, touring the country with their wives, came in. They are twelve in all, among them Gen. Debeny, Col. Jeannel and Capt. L'Hopital, known to many Chicago fighting men as the dashing aide to Maréchal Foch in the great war.

The object of their tour is an odd one, or so thought I. These brave Frenchmen are traveling to discover what has got into Americans that they find France no longer belle and don't love the French any more.

The lovely wife of a former U. S. military attaché at Paris tried to soften their verdict that the French are now very unpopular in the United States, with gracious, tactful phrases. But the French government need send a delightful commission no farther than the boulevards of Paris, where the newspapers, the plays, the books, the shopkeepers and the general public has been taught to regard us as a race of Shylocks.

The great joke of the Paris revues last summer was: "What has become of the dollar Americain?" The same question is now being asked here at home, but seriously.

Working to Aid Unemployed.

Another recent luncheon was that at the Knickerbocker of the Lower North Community council, arranged by Miss Frieda Foltz. Collected at the speakers' table were Dr. Anderson of the First church, Dr. Keeler of St. Chrysostom's, Dr. Barr, Mr. Loomis of Cook county relief, Mr. Calvert of the famous boulevard bridge hostel, and the principal speaker, Lewis E. Myers, who is rapidly becoming the Mussolini of Chicago charity. He already holds the portfolios of Allendale farm for boys, the Salvation Army, and Gov. Emmerson's committee on housing and shelter, and other reliefs are seeking his leadership.

Each speaker agreed that this winter will be the hardest in Chicago's history. Mr. Calvert described vividly the refuge under the bridge of the jobless and homeless, sleeping on boards with newspaper covers, which has caught the sympathy of the charitable public, with its picturesque side, so that the story has a good ending. With regular meals, baths, warm clothing and friends, many of these men, who are honest workers out of employment, are finding jobs.

Dr. Anderson made a plea that people hit by the times should apply to the Fourth church for spiritual as well as material help.

Among the listeners, many being social workers, were Mrs. Arthur Farwell, Mrs. George Payson, Mrs. Irwin Martin, Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, Mrs. Henry Hollis, Mrs. S. R. Rinaker, James B. Waller, and Mrs. William Yager.

Musical for Friends of Opera.

The first musical of the Friends of Opera was staged on Monday afternoon in the blue and gold ballroom of the Drake. An overflowing audience greeted three great stars of the Civic Opera, Mme. Frieda Leider, Lazzari, and M. Vanni-Marcoux. Mrs. Arthur Meeker presided over the meeting with the grace and charm which are ever hers and the "Friends" were treated to a beautiful program of the perfect song of the Italian, the German, and the great artist, avocat, and warrior, Vanni-Marcoux.

The posture and gesture alone of M. Marcoux, who is a complete master of stagecraft, delights his admirers whenever he appears. Mme. Marcoux, who is a handsome dark haired French woman, made a cheery picture in a bright red velvet afternoon costume and hat touched with gray fur which was a relief from the sable costumes and somber effects achieved this fall by our social gatherings.

[Drake Photo.]

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH HAYES of 4832 West Madison street announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Oralle Randall, to Robert J. Raleigh, son of Mrs. James F. Raleigh of River Forest, to take place next Wednesday at 6 o'clock at the First Methodist Episcopal church of Oak Park. Mr. Raleigh is a graduate of the University of Chicago Law school.

in 1927. Mr. Lancaster lives with Mrs. Brewster in Lake Forest.

Young Charlie Hutchinson became president of the Corn Exchange bank, which his father had founded, and added to its prestige during his incumbency. When he died in 1924 it was said that Chicago had lost one of its best and greatest citizens.

Thanks to H. P. Junkins of Aurora for a copy of "Aunt Tabitha," and to Charles Naylor of Chicago for a reminiscence of George Howland, principal of the Chicago High school, who read on a Friday afternoon the rhymed romance of "Katie Lee and Willie Gray," a ballad popular in the seventies.

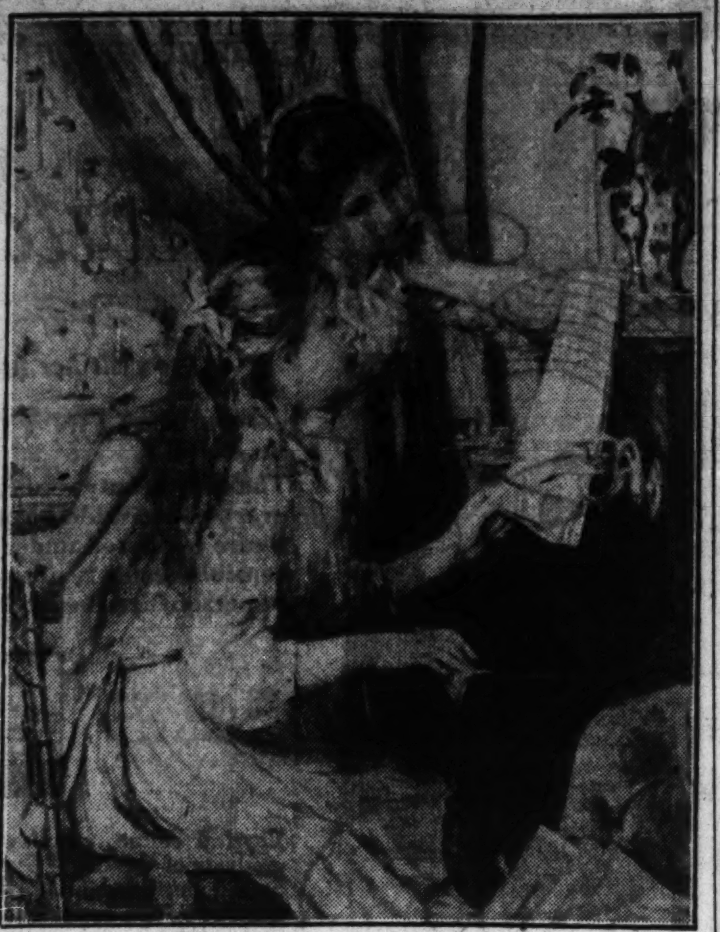
ART SHOWS OPEN THIS WEEK

Lucile Kaltenbach's Exhibits Range from Charming Paper Mosaics and Ceramics to Business Men's Sculpture and Modeling.

By Eleanor Jewett.



"LE PIANO," by Renoir, the French master, to be found in the current exhibition of some fifteen of his paintings at the Arts club. The exhibit is rounded out by the introduction of six bas reliefs by Carl Milles, the Swedish sculptor.

So many and various are the exhibitions which are being thrown open this week and next that it is practically impossible to cover each fully. It might be a good plan to describe two at some length and then deal lightly with the others, you on your side letting your interest be your guide in any attempt to penetrate the labyrinth of art adventures so lavishly laid wide before you.

Lucile Kaltenbach, who last fall gave us a gorgeous entertainment with her water colors, this year offers us paper mosaics and ceramics in the little gallery at the Allerton house. It is one of the most charming exhibits in town. How Miss Kaltenbach gets her effects is a secret. She could never do it unless she were truly the artist we have hitherto thought her to be. She is the perfect craftsman, more than that, she is the poet and the musician. Her colors come back to you as clear and sweet as chimes at sunset.

We wonder the more at Miss Kaltenbach's courage and persistence in the light of what we know of her history. She graduated at the Art institute and went abroad. Only with the greatest economy was she able to stay in Paris, where she studied under various of the better known teachers. She managed by ways and means that are almost incredible in the hearing to stay abroad for three years. At last ill health drove her to give up her training and come home.

Gay and Charming Talent.

She brought a number of oils and water colors with her. These were exhibited in various juried shows. She was awarded prizes at the institute and elsewhere. People knew her to possess a gay and charming talent. She has the priceless gift of understanding a personality or situation and putting her impression of it across. You laugh with her; cry with her; wonder at beauty with her; delight in the comic with her. And always her grasp of the situation is heightened by her clever, subtle, excellent use of color.

Forced by more illness, some of it to do with her eyes, to give up painting (that is, to give up persistent painting—twelve and fourteen hours a day, which was often her choice), Lucile Kaltenbach turned her attention to the novelty of paper mosaic and to modeling. Her ceramics are delightful. The little figures in the present exhibit are full of charm and individuality. You will fall in love with "Mr. Caradam," "Old Woman Holding a Child in Her Lap," and with the "Little Girl."

You will like, as did I, the various tiles for holding hot tea pots and the other tiles to decorate a wall or chimney piece. You will smile at the "Water Carrier" on the green plate, and you will like the jars and bowls. But from these your eyes and attention must go back to the pictures on the walls—these paper mosaics made by her clever fingers from odd scraps of paper and woven into decorations by her own genius. They are little short of marvelous. If you can resist carrying off one of them, you are made of stronger stuff than most of us. Again and again, in "Spring," for example, or "Chateau," "Beehives: Savoy," "Over the Hills," "Winter," or "In the Loge," the artist in Miss Kaltenbach fascinates us, enchains us, imprisons us in a romantic adventure that gives wings to our own imagination.

The exhibition will continue through Nov. 30 and is well worth several visits.

Mary C. Peterson's Show.

The Art salon of the Illinois Woman's Athletic club has been for two weeks the happy hunting grounds for those who appreciate an exquisite talent in still life. Mary C. Peterson, whose still life in the "White" room at the Art institute is one of the delightful incidents in the current American exhibit, has a one man show of paintings at the Illinois Woman's Athletic club. Miss Peterson studied with Mr. and Mrs. Oberteuffer and a certain delicate quality which is found in their work is revealed in hers.

There are, of course, paintings other than still life in the exhibit. There are various portraits and studies of people and there are a number of landscapes, but one returns invariably to the beauty of such arrangements as "The Ginger Jar," "An Old Chinese Vase," "The Sunny Window," "Study in Values," "Sweet Peas" ar "Fruit and Glass." Here is where Miss Peterson touches her highest point. There is an inexhaustible magic in her rendering of textures. Her play with values is enthralling. Her knowledge of color nuance and her use of this knowledge captivates our imagination. The "Study in Values," which was to her like a practice of the music scale to a pianist, is a fascinating composition. Another painter called it a painters' picture, but to any one who appreciates the game that painting can be it is a tangible delight.

Both Lucile Kaltenbach and Mary Peterson will bear watching. Young as they are, they are two of Chicago's most gifted and intelligent artists. It might not be out of place to add that Mary Peterson is a singer as well as a painter.

At the Cordon Club.

At the Cordon club a most delightful exhibit of etchings by Bertha E. Jaques and of miniatures and pastels by Carolyn D. Tyler has just come to a successful close.

The Business Men's Art club is holding its first exhibition of sculpture and modeling by members in the club rooms at 81 West Van Buren street.

Mrs. Arthur J. Rich is exhibiting a number of paintings and pieces of sculpture in her home on Blackstone avenue. The idea back of the exhibit is to show how the pictures and sculpture fit into the average domestic background. Among the artists whose work Mrs. Rich is showing are Florence White Williams, Tunis Ponsen, William Eppens, Marshall D. Smith, and Josephine Kern.

The Walden-Dudensing gallery opened this week an important exhibit of modern American paintings. Between them the thirty-five exhibitors pretty well cover the history of the modernist art movement in America during the last ten years. Among the artists represented are Alexander Brook, Jules Pascin, Peter Arno, Buk, Nura, Peggy Bacon, Ernest Fiene, Bernard Karfiol, John Marin, Henry Schnackenberg and William Zorach.

Byron B. Boyd, whose one man show was an affair of importance last winter in the Chicago galleries, is back from a summer in Jugo-Slavia and his recent paintings are started on their winter round of cities. We may expect to see them here in the O'Brien gallery next spring. The exact date for the exhibit is April 15 to April 25.

The South Side Art association opened an exhibition of paintings by members last Wednesday in the Chicago Woman's club. It will continue to Dec. 10.

Whistler's First Etching.

A note from William R. Dutcher, 1555 Hollywood avenue, Chicago, gives us an interesting item. Through the death of his aunt, Mr. Dutcher has come into possession of James McNeill Whistler's first etching. He writes: "John Ross Key was associated with Whistler in 1854-'55 in the United States Coast Survey and was presented with this etching." John Ross Key was himself an artist of some note and the husband of Mr. Dutcher's aunt.

Rudolph Weissenborn has a one-man show of paintings in the clubrooms of the Chicago Woman's Aid from Nov. 12 to Dec. 12.

Irving Manoir, a Chicago artist, who has been abroad for several years, has two paintings in the current "Salon Automne" in Paris. This is considered something of an honor.

Adam Emory Albright is holding an exhibition of his paintings in Joliet under the auspices of the Joliet Woman's club. Contrary to his usual custom, Mr. Albright intends to spend the winter in Warrenville, Ill., where he has his studio and home.

A special exhibition of great interest, a group of representative paintings by Derain, will open in the Knoedler gallery tomorrow and continue on view to Dec. 13.

A collection of Japanese netsuke lent by A. Kroch is an interesting exhibit in gallery H-4 of the Art institute during November and December. Mr. Kroch has lent the institute over one hundred examples of netsuke and okimono [small carvings].

Miniature Wax Portraits.

An exhibition of miniature wax portraits by Ethel Frances Mundy may be seen in the Ackermann galleries for another week. Many of them are charming portraits of little children.

Diana Thorne, who is now living in Chicago, so we can follow her movements with justification, has gone from a busy week in Detroit to a busier two weeks in Kansas City, where she is filling commissions and holding forth with a comprehensive exhibit of her etchings and paintings.

The Palmolive gallery of the Walden Book shop opened this week an exhibit of works by a group of younger Chicago artists who before now hav. not exhibited formally. The six young artists are Frank Long, William Simon, Edgar Britton, Edwin Boyd Johnson, Richard Crisler, and N. Stanley Crane. The exhibit will continue another week and then be displaced by a showing of drawings by Alfeo Faggi and new lithographs by Nura, Helen West Heller and William Schwartz.

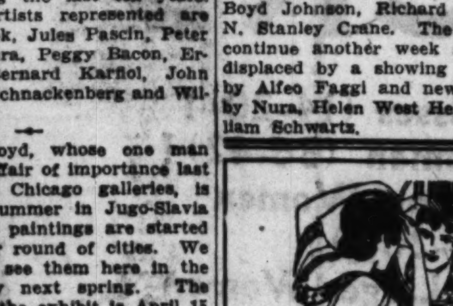
Dandruff All Goes, Sure Pop!
If you have dandruff you no doubt have tried many things to get rid of it, and chances are you still have it. On every scalp dust, dirt and fatty accumulations form that in time cause dandruff, clog up the scalp pores and prevent them from doing their work, so hair becomes dead and falls out. In most cases soaps and most shampoos will not get rid of this trouble—liquid Calonite will dissolve away every particle of these scalp accumulations and let your hair breathe so it will retain its life. Get a little liquid Calonite from druggist and try it today.



Does He Play or Sulk?
Play boys are healthy boys with good digestion of everything they eat. Sulky boys may be good eaters or poor eaters, but their digestion is almost surely poor. Give your boy two teaspoonfuls of Thompson's in his milk with meals. It will build up his energy and aid the digestion of other foods. Thousands of sulkers have been made into play boys through improved digestion. All druggists and grocers.

REALIZE YOUR DREAMS of HEALTH and HAPPINESS

THE greatest things in life are frequently the result of good health. It follows then that men and women who protect their health have greater promise for happiness.

Of the dangerous communicable diseases which threaten the health and happiness of individuals, "Social Diseases", syphilis and gonorrhea, are outstanding. While Osler, a wise physician, has declared syphilis the leading killing disease, gonorrhea is a grave danger to men, and an even greater one to women and children. Unless checked by an unusual bodily resistance, or prompt and efficient treatment, the germs of this disease often invade delicate tissues, causing acute inflammation which may be remedied only by serious surgical operations. Because of this, more women than men die from the effects of gonorrhea.

In addition—an expectant mother with uncured gonorrhea may infect her child's eyes during birth, causing blindness. Three out of every five cases of blindness of the new-born are caused by gonorrhea. For this reason it has become a required medical practice to treat the eyes of every new-born baby with certain silver solutions which kill the germs and save the baby's sight. In communities where every new-born child receives this treatment, there is practically no blindness of children due to gonorrhea.

Sterility in husband or wife is another disability often due to this disease, adding lonely, childless homes to the long list of gonorrhea's tragic consequences.

These are some of the reasons why health authorities are so emphatic in urging prompt and thorough medical examination and treatment for infected persons as early as possible in the course of the disease. This is especially important before marriage or during pregnancy. Neglect leads to disaster more commonly in the wife than in the husband. Attempted self treatment may cause irreparable damage.

Good medical treatment for either gonorrhea or syphilis, including Wassermann and Kahn blood and other necessary laboratory tests, can be secured within your means from an experienced family physician, or from the Public Health Institute. Treatment also is available through the Institute and many free clinics for those without funds.

The Public Health Institute was organized more than ten years ago to combat "social diseases" (syphilis and gonorrhea) in Chicago. Every facility necessary for competent and reliable medical service is provided. Members of its medical staff are experienced and are registered by the State. All treatment and advice are given by these men and women physicians.

The fees are within the reach of all. The first examination is only $3.00, and includes Wassermann and Kahn blood and other laboratory tests. Six consecutive treatments in the Urological or Gynecological Departments for $4.00. Examination and treatment are available to those without immediate funds. No one is turned away because of inability to pay.

More details of this subject will be found in Leaflets Nos. 1 and 2 sent free on request.

Announcement . . . This advertisement has been submitted to and been approved by the Medical Advisory Board which has been formed at the invitation of the Trustees. It is published by a health agency established for public service to inform the public of the dangers of "social diseases," of the importance of securing good medical care, and the facilities whereby this can be obtained.

Hat Gets the Attention.

The best saving I do is to take my husband's light colored hat when he comes home at night and rub it briskly with a light colored rubber bath sponge. This removes every bit of dust or discoloration. Then I sprinkle it lightly with talcum powder and rub in till not a particle shows [if a tan hat use tan talc, if gray use gray talcum powder]. This makes it clean easily. I wash the sponge after each operation so it will be perfectly dry for the next using.

Cheap Hangers.

I take a newspaper, roll it tightly, tie it in the center, making a loop in the end of the string to hang it up by, and I have cheap hangers for the children's school dresses.

Reduces Light Bill.

We use electric light bulbs of different sizes in our two bulb lamps. When we want a light to read by the larger one is used. If it's just for effect, we use the smaller bulb. This plan has made our light bill considerably less.

Broken Bits of Rouge.

Have you ever purchased a new box of rouge and after using it only a few times, dropped it? Of course it broke and of course you bought another one.

The next time this happens mash the pieces into a fine powder, put it back into the box, moisten with water and it will harden and be as good as new.

UP ALL NIGHT WITH BABY'S COUGH

If it was hard on you, think what the baby suffered. The poor little thing couldn't tell you how it was choking and fighting for breath. Nothing is more pitiful than an infant in the throes of a cough, yet nothing is more easily relieved than a cough, if you go about it in the right way.

At the first sign of a cough give good, dependable old "Piso's for Coughs." It does the five things necessary to stop a cough and repair the damage done. It checks the cough spasm, loosens the mucus, opens the air passage, soothes the inflamed tissues and at the same time, has a tonic effect that tends to build up what the cough tears down. Only Piso's supplies these five vital effects and it contains no opiates and does not upset the stomach. Safe to give, even to babies. All druggists sell Piso's in 35c and 60c sizes. Be sure you ask for "Piso's for Coughs."

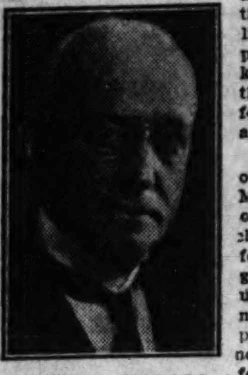
Angus Hibbard Reports Study of Men, Churches

Finds Clubs 'Are Doing 'Active Work.

By the Rev. John Evans.

ANGUS S. HIBBARD, retired capitalist and active religious worker, has made a recent study of the relation of men to churches. He declares membership rolls show an increased proportion of men and that men's appetites for religious expression are keener than they were a few years ago.



ANGUS S. HIBBARD.
[Chambers Photo.]

On the other hand, Mr. Hibbard observes the churches' efforts to organize and utilize this new man power have not been uniformly successful. He points, however, to rising movements throughout American Christianity which aim at more active participation in church affairs by men. High credit is awarded women's religious organizations and Mr. Hibbard points to the astonishingly successful aid societies, guilds, missionary and social groups women have formed.

In an open letter to religious leaders of Chicago Mr. Hibbard asserts that men form the foundation on which churches are built. He suggests methods whereby church interest can reach beyond official boards, vestries or deacons and elders, and claim attention from greater numbers of men.

A Noted Men's Club.

Successful parish men's clubs are noted by Mr. Hibbard in his letter as examples of what already has been accomplished. He cited the men's organization founded by Phillips Brooks at historic Trinity church, Boston, which he recently visited.

"This club," Mr. Hibbard said, "still has several hundred members and includes the wardens, vestrymen and participants in all parochial activities. Monthly meetings are held and as a first business of the club the various undertakings of the parish are discussed. The budget of the parish is presented and explained in detail by the finance committee. The men's club then appoints a large committee to conduct the every member canvass."

Other clubs were mentioned where members are delegated to call on the sick and form themselves into committees to help civic charities as well as parish matters. But, Mr. Hibbard pointed out, there is a rising aversion to the word "club," and many men shy off when approached in interests of church clubs or church brotherhoods.

Suggests New Name.

To overcome this difficulty Mr. Hibbard makes the following suggestion: "I suggest that we call ourselves 'churchmen,' associating with that word the name of the local church to which we belong. Can there be too many St. Paul's churchmen or churchmen of any other parish name? Can there be too much man power in any Christian church, regardless of name? May not our 'Onward, Christian Soldiers' be more effectively sung and its intention carried out by a better organized body of churchmen?

"Confident in the belief that thousands of men of the churches are ready to serve, ready to do something if they are given something worth while to do, I write as I have to show what can be done. I express to men of all communions the hope that we may, in greater numbers, be given an opportunity to organize and to participate in this, the greatest of all works, and so be able to do our part as Christians and churchmen."

Young People Yearn to Learn More of City

By Joseph Ward II.

THE REV. VICTOR EDWARD MARRIOTT, associate director of religious education for the Chicago Association of Congregational Churches, 10 South La Salle street, has outlined the work done by the department of religious education for young people's work during the month of October and the initial weeks of November. The Rev. Mr. Marriott challenged the young people of Chicago with the following questions: "Can Chicago as a whole be made to correspond to the development of the city for our World's Fair in 1933?" "Can its streets be widened and made clean?" "Can its politics be purged and a new moral ideal be established?"

THE REV. VICTOR E. MARRIOTT.

"There are two ways whereby the younger generation of our city can help," said Dr. Marriott. "First, by knowing Chicago, and by this I mean knowing all of the city, not only its parks, boulevards, and tall buildings, but its slums, tenement districts, gang habitats, and social settlements. Second, we must cultivate friendly relationships with the other races and sects in our city. This does not imply an occasional sight-seeing trip to these neighborhoods, but an actual attempt on our part to see these things from every possible angle and to understand them. By such methods a constructive and progressive ideal may be established."

The Rev. Mr. Marriott spoke enthusiastically about the program already completed, as well as of the events to come. In October trips were made by groups representing the Congregational churches of the city. Various missions and foreign churches were included in the itinerary. A thorough study was made of each case. An older young people's group penetrated the Negro centers on the south side, Chinatown, the Ghetto, Hull House, "Little Bohemia," and "Bug House square." About 50 persons undertook the tour, while others were unable to make the journey because of lack of space in the chartered buses.

Chicago's Board of Trade was the object of another tour. One of the comments made by the director of the visit there was that few Chicagoans had visited the new building. "Considering the fact that Chicago has one of the most active grain pits in the world," said Dr. Marriott, "this statement is worth a little thought."

Fellowship Meeting.

One of the high spots in November was the fellowship meeting held at the New First Congregational church, Washington boulevard and Ashland avenue. Representatives from all the foreign speaking churches in the city were present and gave demonstrations of their native customs and social work. A statement by the Assyrian pastor revealed that "Chicago is the home of the largest colony of Assyrians in the world, excluding their native territory, Persia." Approximately 250 young people, representing 40 churches, attended the meeting.

"These young people who are participating in the educational work outlined by the federation are gaining an advantage," said Dr. Marriott. "They are really learning to know Chicago, and are rubbing up against all types of international personalities. Certainly the future leaders of a 'greater Chicago' will need to know existing conditions, and these progressive thinkers are well on the way."

Round the World

Run away from care, from winter, from familiar scenes. Raymond-Whitcomb has chartered the luxurious, 32,000 ton "Columbus" for a world cruise sailing January 21 from New York. The amazing speed of the "Columbus" carries you to the warm Gulf Stream in a few hours. Then, in only 107 enchanted days you visit the most interesting places in the world—not only Egypt, India, Ceylon, Java, China, Japan, Hawaii, etc., but such unusual places as Penang, Malacca, Siam, and, if you like, Angkor Wat and Bali, the Last Paradise. One-third of accommodations are between $3000 and $2000.

Mediterranean

Visiting Nice at the time of the Carnival.

Off with your overshoes — you won't need them on the Riviera. Board the S. S. "Carinthia" on January 31. It's the newest of the great Cunarders. Visit Madeira, Gibraltar, the Riviera, Italy, Malta, Jugo-Slavia, Greece, Turkey, Palestine, Rhodes, Egypt, Corsica, etc., etc. If you want to concentrate on the Mediterranean, this cruise does it in 59 days. The cruise ends at Southampton, but the rates, ($1000 and up) include return to New York immediately or thereafter.

West Indies

The "Statendam" is a "first class" cruise ship in every respect. It's fast. It's luxurious. The food is excellent. And, of course, Raymond-Whitcomb know how to run cruises. You will be happier with Raymond-Whitcomb service. You will find the Statendam's passengers more your kind. Cruises sail Dec. 20, Jan. 8, Jan. 28, Feb. 24. Let us send you a booklet — the rates are as low as $227.50.

Raymond-Whitcomb has taken thousands of people to the tip of the North-Cape, to the Antipodes, to the Orient. If experience means much to you, travel with
